WORDS WON'T HELP $: FRENCH

Times News Services

LONDON — The U.S. dollar today floundered downward again on world money markets when there was no sign that government banks were intervening to prop it up.

"The Americans are trying to talk the dollar up rather than pull it up," said a bank official in Paris.

The dollar dropped to 4.0825 francs on the Paris market from its overnight price of 4.17 francs. It slipped to 36.325 Belgian francs in Brussels, to 2.8425 Swiss francs in Zurich — all lower than Wednesday night's closing prices.

Only in Frankfurt, where rumors persisted that government banks were propping it up, did the dollar show some early gains.

"If no support comes soon for the dollar, I expect it to fall back quite a bit," said a London foreign exchange dealer.

In Washington, world monetary experts met again today for talks on reforming the international money system, hopeful of a compromise on how countries should reduce unacceptable balance-of-payments surplusses or deficts.

The experts, members of the Committee of 20—a technical organization charged by the International Monetary Fund with designing a viable blueprint for reform—saw several senior U.S. financial advisers Wednesday urging the need for a compromise formula.

In Europe, the price of gold rose as the dollar dropped. In other commodities, copper skyrocketed $145.60 per metric ton, breaking a 1968 record price to reach $2,114 per ton. Tin made a comparable leap Wednesday.

B.C. Fishermen Reject Offer

Union fishermen along the British Columbia coast have voted to reject the latest offer on salmon prices and the strike continues, it was announced this afternoon.

A joint statement by the United Fishermen and Allied Workers Union and the Native Brotherhood of B.C. said the price offer, described by the Fisheries Association of B.C. as "final," was rejected by 58.3 per cent.

The two groups met the fisheries association, bargaining agent for the companies, at midday and told the association "there would have to be further progress on prices, the salmon welfare fund and coverage under the Workmen's Compensation Act."

A statement by the UFAWU and Native Brotherhood said the joint negotiating committee "indicated it was prepared to revise earlier demands quite considerably but would not recommend any settlement unless there were improvements beyond the last offer."

The statement said meetings are continuing.

Also slated to meet today are the UFAWU shoreworkers negotiating committee, on behalf of 3,000 plant workers, and the fisheries association.

A meeting between the 500-member tendermen's section of the UFAWU and the association was being arranged.

British Columbia so far has lost about 300,000 sockeye salmon to the Americans as a result of the fishing industry strike, regional Fisheries Director Rod Hourston said Wednesday.

Hourston computed the value at about $750,000 and warned B.C. will lose more if the strike continues.

Under a Canada-U.S. agreement administered by the International Pacific Salmon Fisheries Commission, the two countries split the Fraser River salmon catch 50-50. But the split is void during a strike.

"The loss up to now could be at least 300,000," Hourston said. "Those 300,000 are sockeye we lost and the Americans got and aren't part of the (agreement) division."

The price of the fish under the latest management offer is about 50 cents a pound and an average fish weighs about five pounds, yielding approximately $2.50 for each sockeye, he said.

Meanwhile, about 60 trollers, commanded by Indian fishermen from the Barkley and Clayoquot Sound regions on the west coast of Vancouver Island, sailed this morning, after forming a new fishing association.

They joined the Pacific Trollers Association in returning to the fishing grounds in defiance of a strike called by the UFAWU. They plan to sell their catches to Washington State ports.

SHOCK KILLS BOYS

Two Chemainus youths were electrocuted Wednesday when they apparently touched a B.C. Hydro power line carrying 138,000 volts.

RCMP said Barry James Cocks and Paul William Livingston, both 17, climbed a steel pylon tower on a B.C. Hydro right-of-way about 200 yards west of the Georgia turbine station at Bare Point.

At the top of the tower they apparently touched a 138,000-volt line which supplies auxiliary power to all of Vancouver Island, causing a split-second power shortage over the entire island.

The operator at the generating station noticed a "bump on the line" at 10:18 p.m. but had no idea what caused it.

Shortly after the bump RCMP were notified of the deaths by other youths who had gathered in the area. Police are in the process of taking statements today from people who witnessed the accident.

"The area is a favorite hang-out for kids," a police spokesman said. Wednesday's incident was the first of its kind on Vancouver Island.

A B.C. Hydro spokesman said there have been occasional instances of people trying to climb these things; "they're difficult to climb."

Duncan coroner T. H. Lines has not yet decided whether to hold an inquiry or an inquest.

Gov't Leasing Land

Nicolson said three areas being considered for such development include about 1,700 acres of the University of B.C. endowment lands, 200 acres of provincial land on Burnaby Mountain and some of the 650 acres of the Blair Rifle Range in the district of North Vancouver which is owned jointly by federal and provincial governments.

The minister said he believes the prohibitive price of land is the main reason for the current high cost of housing in Greater Vancouver and said he plans to make use of government programs and legislation to influence the market and force prices down.

The government intends to lease land below market values with adequate restraints to prevent speculation, he said.

Humanity Hangs In Balance

By JACK SCOTT, Times Staff

(Fifth of a six-part series)

TOKYO — The first surprising thing you learn about the man who runs the largest and most troubled city on earth, a city of some 12 million people with every problem known to urban man, is that he has yet to develop an ulcer.

I was sure that it would go naturally with the job and it was the first question I put to him in this rarely-granted interview.

"Nobody's ever asked me that before," he laughed. "The fact is that I've been blessed with a strong stomach that seems to have been designed for the job. I eat anything going and I'm always hungry. But my real secret is this: I leave my troubles in the office.

"If you have gained the impression that this is not only the largest city on earth, but the one with the most difficulties for the present and future, you are absolutely right. Our problems are truly staggering as you'll find when you talk to our planners. I've discovered that the only way to survive is to escape by leaving them behind in my office when the day is done. Then I go home and forget them until the next day comes."

A tall, slim, balding man, impeccable in British-styled tweeds in contrast to the blue-suit uniform of every other Japanese executive I've met, this onetime economics professor has occupied Tokyo's hot seat, ulcer free, for six years.

His humanity-congealed domain includes 26 cities, 23 suburban wards, six towns, nine villages and a cluster of islands, a total land area of some 800 square miles. The last census put the population at 11,580,000, but the movement into the city is so constant that now it's anybody's guess.

Like mayors or regional heads everywhere, Governor Minobe puts the blame for the city's agonies on a meagre budget caused by the underfinancing of the central government.

He's no friend of the business-oriented, rightest coalition that's ruled Japan for 25 years. While he disclaims any political affiliation, himself, his support comes mainly from the uncomfortable, but effective, alliance of socialists and communists.

"The over-all problem here in Tokyo is an ecological chaos," the Governor told me, "but the crisis is the indifference of a government that cares only for economic growth. They think only of the Gross National Product. They're saying now — oh, so proudly — that the GNP per livable square mile is 15 times that of the United States. If it goes up 10 per cent a year — and it always does—that's enough to satisfy them. The future of their capital city does not concern them. You will see here the very worst evidence of what happens when capitalism runs amok."

When I asked if industrial pollution was his severest problem, the governor walked across to the windows of his beautiful, all-grey reception room and gazed upon his enormous city. You could have sliced and packaged the smog that lay in the concrete canyons of Tokyo that morning.

"The environmental pollution here is a combination of many things all lumped together," he said, turning from the horrendous view. "Industrial pollution is simply one of them, but the lack of decent or reasonably-priced housing, the traffic congestion, the rising prices, the problems of the aged, the very quality and pace of life are all forms of pollution that the government will not recognize.

"In Tokyo, for example," he went on, "the automobile is our worst enemy. It is the main cause of our smog. It

HERE COMES SNIFFERBUG

By BRIAN BUTTERS
Times Staff

It hates air pollution so much that it is planning to rumble around the province for the next six months, nosing up bad smells wherever they exist.

"Snifferbug" is a new $75,000 mobile air quality laboratory put into service today by the Pollution Control Branch of the B.C. Water Resources Service.

It is housed in a 31-foot-long bus loaded with scientific measuring instruments, designed to monitor air quality continuously 24 hours a day whether its crew is present or not.

The apparatus is fully automated and air-conditioned and prints out measurements of air quality on a teletype console and punches out a paper tape which is fed directly into the provincial data centre in Victoria.

"Snifferbug" doesn't miss much in the way of air pollution, either. It is programmed to detect and measure almost any contaminant which could come from industrial processes, including: sulphur dioxide, hydrogen sulphide, carbon monoxide, oxidants, hydro-carbons, particulate matter and oxides of nitrogen.

The Pollution Control Branch says it intends to use "snifferbug" to monitor effects of industrial air pollution on air quality in surrounding neighborhoods. In this regard, the nosey vehicle will be co-operating with about 100 fixed air monitoring stations scattered throughout the province.

First stop on the trail of bad smells is to be a six-month junket to Prince George, Kamloops, Trail and Victoria with stays of one or two months in each place.

ASPER CUT OUT BY FINAL VOTE

WINNIPEG (CP) — Returning officer Jim Maloway cast the deciding ballot in deadlocked Wolseley constituency Wednesday and declared NDP candidate Murdoch MacKay the winner over Liberal leader Izzy Asper. Asper's executive assistant, Peter Liba, immediately announced a judicial recount would be requested.

Pending the recount, standing after the Manitoba general election June 28 is NDP 32, Conservatives 21 and Liberals four.

LOS ANGELES (AP) — A bomb-threatened cruise ship with 300 passengers aboard resumed its voyage to Vancouver early today, after two searches failed to turn up any evidence of explosives on board the Ss Mariposa.

Vancouver IAM Out

VANCOUVER (CP) — Air machinists left their jobs at Vancouver International Airport late this morning for a "study session." Several hundred day shift workers were involved.

FRENCH FLIGHTS GUARDED

Times News Services

PAPEETE, Tahiti — Armed guards were placed on all French commercial planes flying to or from Papeete today as a precaution against hijacking as the first nuclear explosion in France's 1973 test series became imminent.

All airline passengers and their baggage were closely searched at the airport since officials feared nuclear-test opponents might attempt to divert a plane into the test zone.

Facts Hidden, Says Senator

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Nixon administration was accused today of making false statements about the proposed Alaska oil pipeline and withholding information that would promote development of an alternative route through Canada.

Senator Birch Bayh (Dem. Ind.) said in the Senate it is "common knowledge" that the administration has given its allegiance to the oil companies that want to build the pipeline across Alaska.

Bayh cited the state department's recent letters to members of Congress that said "the Canadian government has no strong current interest in the construction of a Mackenzie Valley oil pipeline."

He said the state department "did not inform Congress of the existence of those questions and answers.

telligence gathering must be rather poor since Canadian Prime Minister Trudeau said on the floor of the Parliament on May 14, 'Our policy is still to indicate that the Mackenzie route is one which we would be prepared to consider if there is an application made in the proper form, and that we would be very happy to follow-up on that,' " Bayh said.

The senator also said the state department sought to withhold information "from the Canadian government to questions state had asked relative to the possibility of a Mackenzie Valley oil pipeline."

TRUDEAU A LIAR —SNUBBED MP

OTTAWA (CP) — Jack Horner (PC-Crowfoot) accused Prime Minister Trudeau of telling "a downright lie" in the Commons Wednesday and managed, temporarily at least, to get away with it.

The cause of it all was a dinner the government held for the Queen at the Palliser Hotel in Calgary June 5 during her 11-day visit to Canada.

Douglas Roche (PC-Edmonton Strathcona) raised the subject by complaining that the government failed to invite a number of Alberta MPs in order to make room for defeated Liberal candidates.

The complaint was echoed later by Ken Hurlburt (PC-Lethbridge) and Horner got into the act when Trudeau rose to reply.

The prime minister said "a sincere attempt" was made to invite a cross-section of people representing all political parties.

"That's a downright lie!" Horner shouted.

I don't think the prime minister should be allowed to make statements that are totally false," he said later in an interview.

Roche, who spoke at the start of the House sitting, said he was told by the prime minister's office before the Calgary dinner that only "the four Calgary" MPs were being invited.

Defeated Liberal candidates from as far away as Winnipeg were invited, he said.

Roche said those attending included Hu Harries, a Liberal MP he defeated in the 1968 election. He called this a deplorable partisan abuse of MPs' rights.

A Probe Into the Mind of Mitchell

By JULES WITCOVER
The Washington Post

WASHINGTON — It was about 4:50 p.m. Wednesday and the former attorney-general of the United States, John Mitchell, was just completing nearly 10 hours of testimony before the senate Watergate committee.

It had started out as an effort to extract from him all he knew about the Watergate break-in and related "White House horrors," as Mitchell himself had dubbed the assorted other illegalities.

But, finally, it had become an inquiry into another question.

What manner of man is it who can serve as the chief law-enforcement officer of the nation and remain silent when he knows crimes are being proposed, and in fact have been carried out, under White House auspices?

On Tuesday, Sen. Herman Talmadge (D—Ga.) had begun the line of questioning in asking why Mitchell had never told the president that he knew during the 1972 campaign that, for example, a White House burglary team had broken into the office of Dr. Daniel Ellsberg's psychiatrist.

Earlier Wednesday, Sens. Daniel Inouye (D—Hawaii), Sam Ervin (D—N.C.) and Howard Baker (R—Tenn.) had pressed him on the point.

But all three succeeded only in eliciting the same response from Mitchell — that he kept his mouth shut so as not to jeopardize President Nixon's re-election.

Now, in late afternoon, the final questioner of the day was Mitchell's fellow Republican, Sen. Lowell Weicker of Connecticut. Weicker had methodically gone over the circumstances under which Mitchell said he was told of "the White House horrors" and then started bearing down on the same old question: Why hadn't he done something to see that justice was done?

He had been, after all, not just any American citizen, Weicker reminded Mitchell, who had become increasingly gloomy as he sat in the witness chair. Mitchell had been attorney general, said Weicker, and Mitchell still was a lawyer and as such "an officer of the court" pledged to uphold the law.

Weicker: Did you bring the Ellsberg break-in to anyone's attention?

Mitchell: I notified no one about the break-in.

Weicker: As an officer of the court, as a former attorney general, you were content to remain silent . . . even though you knew that your silence might possibly convict an American citizen (Ellsberg) by means of illegal conduct . . .

Poor Being Jailed in B.C., Says Vancouver Legal Aid

VANCOUVER (CP) — A shocking number of persons, many of them native Indians, go to prison simply because they are poor, says Ian Waddell of the Vancouver Legal Assistance Society.

Almost one-quarter of all offenders committed to British Columbia jails serve time in default of payment of fines, Mr. Waddell said.

But a B.C. Corrections Service survey indicates the percentage is much higher in Kamloops and Prince George, where large numbers of Indians are sent to jail.

In two interior provincial prisons, 39 per cent of all those committed served jail terms in default of payment of fines, the survey revealed. Fines range from $250 up, and the jail terms in lieu of fines range from five days to six months and up although most are under 30 days.

"If I were convicted of impaired driving all I would have to do is write out a cheque," Mr. Waddell said. "At present, if a person cannot pay the fine within the time limit set by the court, he automatically goes to jail without appearing before a judge."

Mr. Waddell says an offender's financial status should be examined in a court inquiry before sentencing, and if a defender defaults, he should be brought before a judge to explain why.

In the B.C. Corrections Service survey, the Lower Mainland Regional Corrections Centre was found to have 559 offenders committed in default of fines, a 17-per-cent rate.

The default figures in other B.C. prisons averaged 23 per cent with the following breakdown: Kamloops, 39 per cent, with a high Indian population; Prince George, where 26 per cent of the convicts are Indians, 39 per cent; Vancouver Island, where 11.5 per cent are Indian, 24.5 per cent.

The B.C. government recently changed the Small Claims Act to require sheriff to bring a debtor to court before committal, but this does not apply to criminal cases.

To a large number of persons, Mr. Waddell says, a fine is an indirect jail sentence.

Pilot Is Hailed As Hero of Crash

SAULX — Les-Chartreux, France (UPI) — The surviving pilot of a Brazilian airliner was hailed today as a hero for the skillfully executed crash landing of his flaming airliner. It apparently was smoke and flames that killed the 122 vicitims, not the crash itself.

Rescuers who rushed to the wreckage in a lettuce field outside this Paris suburb said the victims died strapped in their seats, choked unconscious by fumes and then burned by the flames that started in a restroom and flashed through the aircraft, fed by the emergency oxygen system.

Firemen who brought out the blackened bodies said many were in the correct position for a crash landing—heads down and knees together.

Doctors fought today to save the lives of the seriously ill among the 12 survivors of the Boeing 707 jetliner. One survivor died in a hospital today, bringing the official death toll to 122.

All the survivors were crewmen. Among the badly injured was the pilot, Gilberto da Silva, hailed by Frenchmen today as a hero for guiding the plane past rows of houses to a safe landing.

The plane was only two miles — 90 seconds flying time — from Irly Airport at the end of a 5,800-mile flight from Brazil when it ditched, "like a bomb," according to one witness, because of a fire which a survivor said started in a rear toilet, apparently as a result of a short circuit.

A local farmer who was among the first to reach the plane said, "I got into the cockpit and two crew members were unconscious in their seats, their faces black. The passenger compartment was silent."

The crash was the worst in France since June 1962, when an Air France Boeing 707 crashed on take-off from Orly airport, killing 131 persons.

. . . MIND OF MITCHELL

Weicker bore down. Was that really what mattered? The break-in was illegal, whether or not it produced any evidence.

"As an officer of the court," he demanded of the man who once was the law-and-order symbol of the Nixon administration, "did you do the right thing in not notifying the judge (in the Ellsberg trial)?"

Mitchell glared at Weicker, tight-lipped. For one of the few times during his long ordeal in the senate caucus room, he appeared to have been unnerved by the inquiry that touched so directly and unavoidably on his personal and professional ethics.

Then the voice of chairman Ervin broke in, cutting the high drama by declaring a recess for the day. Mitchell, hunched over the twin microphones before him, blurted out clearly, sardonically:

There, in that single bitter comment, John Mitchell said what he thought of the Watergate committee. It was casting him as a defendant even though he had spent 10 hours telling the senators he had never authorized the Watergate break-in and knew nothing about it.

The questions of Weicker, however, and those of the other senators before him, indicated that it was not guilt they were looking for in Mitchell, but an explanation of his silence. Again and again, with repeated incredulity, they probed this hitherto stolid, unshakable man to glean a clue to his thinking, his ethical priorities, his sensitivity to the democratic process.

Inouye, noting Mitchell's testimony Tuesday that he kept silent to protect the president's re-election, asked him: "To what length are you now willing to go to deceive in an effort to avoid further implication of the president . . . ?"

". . . I do no have to make that choice," Mitchell replied, because the president didn't know about Watergate or the subsequent cover-up.

Later, Weicker tried again: "Would you lie at the present time to protect the president?"

Mitchell replied: ". . . If you are putting a hypothetical question to me, the answer would be no, that I would not be here under oath . . ."

Well, Inouye inquired, what about after the election? Why didn't Mitchell tell the president all afterward? Because, Mitchell explained patiently, "there was no reason in my mind to cast a pall over the second term of the presidency." A staff housecleaning already was planned, he noted.

Inouye reminded him that Jeb Magruder and John Dean, two who have acknowledged being key figures in the Watergate cover-up, were still aboard months after the election, but Mitchell was unimpressed.

Baker tried another approach to get inside the head of John Mitchell. He pressed him on how he perceived the presidency; on whether it is "so shrouded in mystique" that its occupant must be spared from making difficult decisions by keeping facts of "the White House horrors," Mitchell replied, "in the interest of his re-election."

It was Baker's turn to be incredulous. By denying the president information on which to act, he asked, "do you not in fact, by that, arrogate unto yourself a presidential decision?"

Mitchell readily agreed What, Baker wanted to know, "is the constitutional basis" for it? "I have not found one in the constitution," Mitchell said. "... There is a matter of judgment you make in connection with these areas."

And in that judgment, Mitchell said a moment later, "I was not about to countenance anything that would stand in the way of (Nixon's) re-election."

Mitchell: "I am sure if it had to involve treason and other high crimes and misdemeanors that were directly related to the office, that there would be a very definite breaking point."

Illegal Funds Returned

WASHINGTON (Reuter) — The Nixon re-election finance committee has returned $55,000 to American Airlines, which admitted it illegally contributed the sum to President Nixon's 1972 campaign.

The airline said last Friday the money had been solicited by Herbert Kalmbeach, then Nixon's personal lawyer.

The airline said $75,000 was contributed, of which $55,000 came from corporate funds. It is illegal to contribute corporate funds to a U.S. election campaign.

Phil Barrick, treasurer of the finance committee to re-elect the president, sent a letter Wednesday to the lawyers for the airline enclosing a cheque for $55,000.

NIXON GETTING A LAST CHANCE

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Senate Watergate committee sent President Nixon a letter today that represents the last opportunity for the White House to provide voluntarily papers the panel wants, committee sources said.

The committee will vote to subpoena the presidential papers if the White House turns down this last request, the sources said. Nixon last week refused to turn over the papers.

The White House said today Nixon will meet at some future time with the chairman of the Senate Watergate committee, but declared "there will be no change" in Nixon's refusal to turn over presidential papers to the committee.

Today's committee meetings bracketed the third day of testimony before the Watergate hearings by former attorney-general John Mitchell.

The committee has asked the White House for all documents relevant to the activities of staff members involved in the 1972 campaign.

In a related development, deputy White House press secretary Gerald Warren said that, effective last May 23, presidential aides were barred from copying documents they worked on while at the White House.

Warren said that former aides H. R. Haldeman, John Ehrlichman and John Dean "can come in and peruse papers on which they worked, but they can't copy in any way . . . not even in notes."

Granny Slays Lion To Save Mauled Baby

RAPID CITY, S.D. (AP) — "He was just ripping the baby apart," says a grandmother who killed a mountain lion with a butcher knife as it mauled her infant grandson.

"I did what I had to do, that's all," said Mrs. Peter Underdahl of Anoka, Minn. "I think anyone, with God's help, could have done the same thing."

The boy, 18-month-old Jason Cowden, was listed in serious condition Wednesday in hospital. He is the son of Mr. and Mrs. James Cowden of Anoka.

The 120-pound lion leaped through a partially opened window of a motor home Tuesday and began mauling the child in a tourist attraction called Bear Country. The boy was in the motor home with his mother and her parents. The vehicle had stopped momentarily.

Bear Country is a fenced park containing bears, buffaloes, wolves and mountain lions. The animals roam freely within the fenced area, and tourists drive their own vehicles through the park eight miles south of Rapid City.

Mrs. Underdahl, 53, a slender, five-foot-tall woman, fought back tears as she described her ordeal in an interview at the hospital.

"All I kept saying was, 'Bring me a knife! Bring me a knife!' Finally, my husband handed me a butcher knife and I jammed it in and twisted it and the lion went slack, and I knew I had pierced the heart.

"I said a prayer that the Good Lord would give me the strength and the right spot, and He did."

Mrs. Underdahl said the lion was about 10 feet away when Mrs. Cowden stopped the motor home and opened a side window to take a photograph.

"It was just lying down and calm as could be," she said.

She said the lion sprang when the baby came toward the window.

"I think it was the quick motion and the baby's small size, the prey thing," she said. "You know, those animals attack anything smaller and weaker than they are."

Oceans Policy Aim

By JEFF CARRUTHERS
Times Ottawa Bureau

OTTAWA — The federal cabinet today decided that Canada must develop and control domestically the essential elements and technology needed to exploit offshore resources such as oil and gas.

Cabinet also gave the green light to a proposal to launch a major Canadian scientific effort to give the country within five years "world recognized excellence in operating on and below ice-covered waters."

Federal departments have also been instructed to devise special programs for the development and support of Canadian ocean industries on both coasts.

These are the most important elements of a first attempt at a national oceans policy for Canada.

It will have significant implications for industry and government on the Pacific coast (which already has a strong oceans industry in some areas) and on the east coast and in the Arctic.

For B.C., it will likely also have important implications for fisheries development and for environmental activities related to any oil tanker route.

Under the policy, Ottawa will place special emphasis on a wide range of marine science and technology programs relating to such things as the management of the marine environment; the development and maintenance of ocean engineering in university and in government laboratories; and better forecasting of weather, currents, ice and other atmospheric and oceanographic factors.

The government has also decided that Canada must keep ahead or at least keep even with large multi-national corporations and foreign governments on gathering basic information about its renewable and non-renewable offshore resources.

Cannery Purchase Admitted

VANCOUVER (CP) — A minority interest in Cassiar Packing Co. Ltd. near Prince Rupert has been sold to Marubeni Corporation of Japan.

Announcement of the agreement was made Wednesday by A. Ewen MacMillan, who holds 51 per cent control of the company.

MacMillan said the 75-year-old British Columbia fish-packing firm would benefit from the technological and marketing experience of Marubeni, Japan's third largest trading company.

Highways Minister Graham Lea, MLA for Prince Rupert, met today with officials of Marubeni to discuss the corporation's acquisition of 49 per cent of Cassiar.

He said he would be discussing the matter also at today's cabinet meeting.

Norman Aoyagi, representative of the marine products section of the Marubeni, said the agreement is consistent with the company's preference to deal in joint venture arrangments in countries such as Canada.

A New Slant on Inflation

The phenomenon of galloping inflation, now general throughout most of the world, appears to be as easily attributable to a new mental state of the people as to the cost-of-production, pressure-of-demand explanations which are usually offered.

In the early stages of the present inflationary spiral, each succeeding evidence of the increasing cost of living was greeted as shocking and something to be halted immediately. But the state of alarm has slowly been altered. Although fresh announcements of climbing costs still arouse resentment or anxiety, the public attitude leans more to resignation, and a determination to keep abreast of rising costs by getting more income in one way or another rather than by attempting to halt the flooding tide.

The tide is international; the likelihood of any one nation holding the line is small. The result is that people have become accustomed to inflation and are beginning to take it in stride. As the chairman of the central bank of the Netherlands is quoted: "There is no particular reason why the process (of inflation) should not continue." That might be altered a little to read: "There is no particular indication that the process is not going to continue."

Numerous countries have found that rapid inflation has been an aid to a marked business recovery, with a rising rate of increase in the Gross National Product and greatly increased employment. So why worry? Accept the dislocation which accompanies the phenomenon and take advantage of the booming business that results.

The reasoning has a short-term logic. But a farther look into the future indicates difficulties as currencies depreciate to abysmal depths. And the fallacy of the whole process, of course, may be seen in the fact that the whole inflationary movement is a bootstrap operation; all the efforts to keep up with the trend merely land the individual in the same relative position he would have occupied without any inflation.

There are exceptions — many of them. They are the people whose income does not rise each year to keep pace with the depreciating dollar. The people living on savings, on pensions, on annuities and similar income sources. They see their incomes able to purchase less and less, and their capital resources worth less each year. At the present time, in Canada, that wastage of income and savings is proceeding at an annual rate of 10.8 per cent.

That can hardly be continued indefinitely without acute impoverishment of the portion of society which has been most concerned to provide for its own old age. Government pensions presumably are to be increased to keep pace with annual inflation, but that itself will be an added contribution to inflation. The dog will never catch its tail.

The federal government appears to have relaxed its earlier efforts to control the process. Banks advertise easy loans for trips and luxuries, other agencies urge public borrowing for every conceivable purpose and retail stores are delighted to sell on credit. Governments are finding it easier to dole out money in increasing amounts to make up citizens' deficits than to try to find the root cause of inflation.

The Organization for Economic Co-Operation and Development has described inflation as an international problem calling for co-ordinated action by individual countries. The response of the countries with plans for such co-ordination has been almost non-existent.

Some countries, such as Sweden, have tried to mask inflation of food prices by subsidizing farmers — a matter of making the consumers pay out of a different pocket. That is a band-aid treatment, not a cure.

The over-all result of the inflationary tide could well be, then, a decided impetus to the socialistic trend of governments. Individuals' incomes will become more and more dependent on government assistance, even the people who normally would never need such help. And with greater dependence on government will come acquiescence in greater government powers. Inflation in the long run may help to achieve what revolutions have failed to accomplish.

"... this conference with the western premiers will represent only the tip of the iceberg..."

An Arrogant Attitude

Mururoa Atoll and Victoria have little in common except the Pacific Ocean and the common humanity that binds people everywhere. But when France—a nation which takes pride in its civilized traditions—disregards world opinion and makes ready to set off an atmospheric nuclear blast on the atoll, common humanity becomes deeply concerned.

Australia, New Zealand and Japan have vehemently protested the proposed series of blasts, yet France last Monday gave final warning to stay clear of the blast, indicating that the atmospheric explosions are immiment. The force de frappe apparently takes precedence over civilized traditions.

On June 10, 1963 President John F. Kennedy said the U.S. had halted atmospheric tests and would not resume them unless another country did so. Britain and the Soviet Union followed suit. But France and China have continued atmospheric tests, polluting the atmosphere with deadly rediation that has been proven to cause birth defects and some cancers, among other horrors.

Admittedly, U.S. scientists say they have no evidence of increased radiation in the upper atmosphere following the latest Chinese test, but one "clean" bomb is a poor argument for continuing atmospheric nuclear blasts. If France and China continue to ignore world opinion there is little the world can do. But it is a sad commentary on humanity generally that two of the world's most cultured nations —one occidental, one Oriental— maintain such an arrogant attitude towards their fellow human beings.

MAURICE WESTERN

Robbing the Working Poor

OTTAWA — The argument that a little inflation is good for us has certainly been effective. We are now inflating at an annual rate of 10.8 per cent.

What began with a little nip is turning into a national drunk. The government, determined to live with inflation, moves intermittently to sustain the more conspicuous victims but the casualties obviously are multiplying faster than the means of dealing with them.

Parliament, at the present session, increased basic old age pensions and provided for yearly adjustments reflecting increased costs as measured by Statistics Canada. This took about a year to achieve. It appears that something will be done next year about Canada Pension Plan payments. Unfortunately, the market works a great deal faster than legislators and—unlike Parliament—it works universally.

Difficult Controls

The government, when harried about this situation by critics, insists that controls would be monstrously difficult to administer. It seems to be assumed that the policy of non-controls is administratively simple. Health and Welfare Minister Lalonde's current plans suggest the contrary.

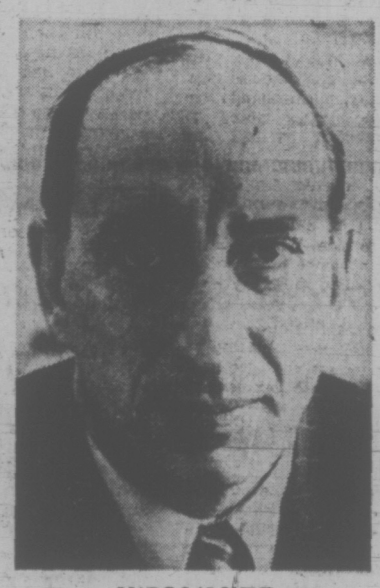
Unfortunately the vast sums paid out for welfare do nothing for the so-called "working poor" who may very well take less home to their families than those drawing state aid. In effect, they are penalized for self-reliance, with the penalty increasing daily as uncontrolled inflation steadily worsens their plight.

Thus it is now proposed that the federal and provincial governments in co-operation should subsidize the whole group. Mr. Lalonde has found that the scheme developed in British Columbia is generally consonant with his Orange Paper although some differences remain to be settled. Generally, however, the working poor will be guaranteed as much as welfare recipients, with an allowance (up to $100 a month) for what such recipients are permitted to earn without a reduction in benefits.

By all past standards this is a very strange scheme. It blurs the distinction between working and non-working since both groups, in differing degrees, will become state dependents. In a way it pushes people towards dependency for if they are to accept $100, why not $200 or $300? What is the difference in principle? Why not work a bit less and draw on the government for a bit more?

On the other hand, it does accord with the principle of living with inflation. The worse inflation gets, the more first aid stations the government will necessarily have to set up.

Unhappily, the standard remedy of adjusting incomes at various intervals to a cost-of-living index may not even avert injury to those groups who are theoretically covered. A wage-earner now counted among the working poor may in his more fortunate days have acquired some savings, perhaps in the form of insurance. This is the more likely since he now clings to work despite the inducements of welfare. These savings are being stolen from him at an alarming and increasing rate and the policy of living with inflation rules out any interference with this continuing theft.



MARC LALONDE
... likes B.C. plan

The daily interrogations in Parliament leave the impression that ministers are determined to stick to their shellhole. Anything outside must be worse. It is plainly an unhappy business, however, because the market week by week is repealing or nullifying the efforts which ministers did make earlier in the year.

Food prices are by no means the full measure of inflation. But there must have been an expectation that the Food Prices Review Board would do something to improve the situation. Instead, it has grown steadily worse and no one can draw much consolation from assurances that the Board, some months from now, will enlighten the country with its first quarterly report.

Again, the government took the desirable action of reducing some tariff rates. The results were to be monitored to ensure that savings were passed on to consumers. Monitoring must present a difficult problem, for while benefits may well have been passed on, many have been swallowed long since by the rising cost of imports from most countries.

The government continues to argue, almost ritualistically, that the housing legislation now on the parliamentary agenda is the best answer to the housing crisis. But it seems to be in no hurry to push to completion measures which are not very controversial, at least in so far as the Conservative Opposition is concerned. If the government has much faith in its own assurances, it is difficult to explain this apparent lack of a sense of urgency. The housing index, up 6.7 per cent in a year, is obviously under new pressure with the ominous advance in mortgage rates.

Inflated Housing

Beyond the working poor are the hard-pressed. In the government's view, they have been helped by Mr. Turner's tax cuts. But inflation is swallowing those too. It would require a very large cut in the tax bill of a wage-earner to offset a three-quarter per cent increase in the mortgage rate on fantastically inflated housing, combined with all the other advances recorded in the Consumer Price Index.

No one denies that policy involving controls would be difficult and fall short of perfect results. But the no-controls policy is also becoming greatly complicated as the government is pressured into ever larger and more diversified subsidies to suffering groups. Pessimists feared that the inflation rate by year-end would reach 10 per cent; it passed that rate at mid-summer. As a policy for limiting inflation, freedom from controls is a disaster.

What it does ensure, as was demonstrated on Tuesday in the House of Commons, is a miserable life for the ministers. Not to mention the general public.

C. L. SULZBERGER

'Impersonal and Motiveless'

LONDONDERRY, Northern Ireland—Almost 1,500 years ago this city was founded by a man so gentle that all creatures loved him and his old white horse came weeping to his deathbed. Saint Columcille called this "Derry, my own oak grove, little cell, my home, my love." But apart from a grim Protestant cathedral beneath whose chancel tough apprentice boys who withstood a Catholic siege in 1689 are buried, none of sweet Columcille is left.

Troubles Fester

The "troubles" continue to fester in the little cities of lovely green Ulster. Londonderry (the "London" was added by King James I who gave it to London and stuffed it with Protestants) still has a Catholic majority but that makes it no less subject to murder. Only here, occasionally, the quarreling rival IRA wings, "Provisional" and "Official," stage protests together.

The British station almost 20,000 of their best soldiers in Ulster and spend a fortune trying to pacify it. They have hopes that a new electoral experiment will ease the strain, but the nastiest kind of killing extortion still goes on — even if this more closely approximates gangland than warfare.

Item: "Listen carefully. I represent the Ulster Freedom Fighters. We have just assassinated an IRA man on the way to Larne. We gave him two in the back and one in the head. He is dead. This is in retaliation."

Item: "Five Protestant funerals, including that of an 83-year-old blind woman, in Belfast's City Cemetery, had to be cancelled today after gravediggers were threatened that they would be shot if they stayed at work. Corporation workmen at the Falls Road Cemetery said they stopped work after their foreman was warned by phone this morning: If you dig those graves you will be dead."

One despairing British official says:

Creating a Climate

"The killings have become impersonal and motiveless. It is simply a question of statistical revenge, one Protestant, two Catholics, or vice versa. And our own casualties go up because our soldiers are not only suffering from snipers but from bombs and booby traps."

The car-bomb is a relatively new phenomenon. Automobiles stuffed with explosives are left at unguarded points. Sometimes television crews are tipped by phone that they should hasten to certain areas before the time-fuse clicks. It is getting to be like Saigon's Buddhist suicides-by-burning a decade ago when colleagues of priests about to immolate themselves notified the press in advance.

All kinds of private "armies" continue this sordid business although the vast majority of people on both religious sides have had enough. The Catholic IRA Provisionals initiate bloodshed although the more revolutionary IRA Officials, who want a Marxist state in all Ireland, react to what they consider provocation. Behind them are gangs like Saor Eire, or Free Ireland, which specialized in money-raising crimes in the Republic to finance the IRA. Saor Eire seems to be fading away.

Protestants are mainly organized into the Ulster Defence Association, a paramilitary group which runs a protection racket; The Ulster Freedom Fighters, ultra anti-Catholic activists; and the Ulster Volunteer Force, renowned for its killers, plus a handful of shadowy gangs. The UVF is the main arms broker.

Tiny Minorities

This violence is stirred up by tiny minorities on both sides, each benefiting from the new techniques of urban guerrila manuals. But Europe's oldest religious war, a hangover from the 17th century, continues. A high British officer says:

"The west cannot win a campaign like this within the rules of ordinary civilized common law . . . you can only create a climate in which it is possible for the politicians to make a settlement." That is the object of the new political exercise: Thursday's elections are a step toward semi-autonomy with an imposed executive partnership of Protestants and Catholics.

Will it work? One wise Ulster Protestant says: "I wish I could get out of here for 20 years — then come back." Another adds: "We have no drug problem for our youth. How can there be? Violence is the opiate of the people."

Carrying Out Orders

Douglas Fisher's article "A biased view of the RCMP" is in my view very unfair to the history of the RCMP. I can accept his bias on what he saw as a youth when the RCMP were ordered to break up the "great trek," but surely he places the blame in the wrong place as the RCMP were only carrying out the orders of R. B. Bennett who was freely elected by the Canadian voters.

That I think is the crux of the situation and in my view the Canadian voter was to blame for electing R. B. Bennett. However history has shown that the average voter, who is mostly ill-informed, selfish and apathetic, will elect one government after another although the real interest of the ordinary citizen is never really considered.

Britain freely elected Baldwin and his Conservatives time after time during the hungry thirties when in spite of a great deal of wealth in the country the majority barely existed. The same could also be said of Canada.

The RCMP, in spite of mistakes, has a history all Canadians should be proud of and I think we should not blame them when they are just carrying out the orders of their government. I am bitterly opposed to all violence as I experienced violence, at first hand, in the infantry in the First World War — M. P. B. Wrixon, 1680 Poplar Ave.

Seascape

I had quite a discussion with Mr. Humphrey Davy the other day regarding inaccuracies in his article of July 3 entitled "Friendly Greeting and Show of Guns." It was a very entertaining article, however I wish to assure Mr. Davy and your readers that no member of HMCS MACKENZIE'S boarding party pointed a weapon at anybody in MV UCHUCK III up in Nootka Sound on Canada Day!

The Captain of UCHUCK III, who telephoned me shortly after my conversation with Mr. Davy, and who was even closer to that amusing incident than was I, confirmed immediately that the two or three armed men he saw on MARYSVILLE'S deck a hundred or so feet away had their weapons slung over their shoulders pointing downwards.

I suspect that Mr. Davy mistook for a revolver the binoculars through which my Executive Officer LCDR Brian McKENZIE, (acting Captain of MARYSVILLE at the time), was viewing the girls on UCHUCK! — R. D. C. SWEENY, Commander, CO HMCS MACKENZIE.

(Editor's Note: Mr. Davy holds to the opinion, shared by other passengers aboard the Uchuck, that some weapons, whether inadvertently or by design, were pointed toward the deck of the smaller vessel as it moved by the Marysville).

60 YEARS AGO

From the Times of July 12, 1913:

Somewhere in the environs of Eburne, Point Grey or Lulu Island, a Chinese leper, endeavouring to evade segregation and a living death in the island leper colony of China, is supposed to be hiding from a Chinese detective and from the Point Grey and Richmond authorities. Notification to the health officials of Point Grey of the leper's existence, and the hasty departure of the leper, occurred almost simultaneously yesterday. Sometime before noon a well-dressed, good English speaking Chinese called on Dr. W. K. Hall, the Point Grey medical officer, and said that a countryman of his claiming to have chickenpox was really afflicted with leprosy.

That Other Little Island Confronts 'Stampede'

By JAMES EAYRS

WEST KEPPOCH, P.E.I. — Prince Edward Island — more precisely, a perch upon a picnic table on a patch of clearing overlooking the aquamarine waters of Northumberland Strait around which are visible the coastlines of no fewer than three Canadian provinces — seems a highly suitable location for pondering the wisdom of E. F. Schumacher's new book Small Is Beautiful.

Dr. Schumacher, for 20 years economic adviser to the National Coal Board in the United Kingdom, must by virtue of that credential be paid heed when he joins the ranks of the small but fashionable band of social critics — the Austrian-born resident of Puerto Rico, Leopold Kohr, the Canadian-born resident of the United States, J. K. Galbraith, the British economist E. J. Mishan — who argue that bigger does not mean better, that bigger more often means worse.

Schumacher says much the same as his fellow anti-growth philosophers, but he says it with a simple eloquence that makes it more compelling — a refreshing contrast, in the view of The Economist of London, "to the teutonic multisyllables that adorn economics books."

He is also less doctrinaire than other apostles of the Lilliputian way. "There is no single answer to the question of size in human affairs. For his different purposes man needs many different structures, both small ones and large ones ... Today, we suffer from an almost universal idolatry of giantism. It is therefore necessary to insist on the virtue of smallness — where this applies."

It applies, to some extent, to countries. Scumacher won't go all the way with Leopold Kohr, who would fractionate every polity into the tiniest feasible unit of self-government — Kohr was philosopher-king to the Anguillans during their abortive revolt against St. Kitts-Nevis imperialism in 1967, is doubtless taking a lively interest in the brewing revolt on Abaco against Nassau rule in the Bahamas (which this week attains its independence). But he is struck by the fact that "if we make a list of all the most prosperous countries in the world, we find that most of them are very small; whereas a list of all the biggest countries in the world shows most of them to be very poor indeed."

It applies, to a much greater extent, to cities. "The finest cities in history", notes Schumacher, "have been very small by twentieth century standards". Cities don't need to be big, either in area or in population, to sustain what cities exist to do — generate and improve upon civilization. "Philosophy, the arts and religion cost very, very little money." No massive tax base will be necessary. "I think it is fairly safe to say that the upper limit of what is desirable for the size of a city is probably something of the order of half a million inhabitants. In places like London, or Tokyo, or New York, the millions do not add to the city's real value but merely create enormous problems and add to human degradation."

It applies, above all, to units of production. The accelerating trend towards the concentration of wealth and the facilities for the creation of wealth in a single country — the United States, with 5 per cent of the world's population, absorbing 40 per cent of the world's raw materials, much of them non-renewable — pitches us all towards disaster. What could be more unstable than a relationship between rich and poor in which the poor provide the stuff of affluence while the rich "supply the information about the glitter of their life"?

Creating wealth for the favored few are fewer and bigger companies — the gargantuan multinationals, gobbling up the franchises of companies more halt, more lame, more irresolute than the rulers of Exxon or ITT. 50 such companies may run the world economy by the end of the present century; extrapolate the trend towards concentration over the next fifty years, and only two or three survive.

Is what is good for ITT good for the world? Few readers of recent revelations of its activities — subversion in Chile, wheeling-and-dealing with the Soviets — will believe it.

But it is not for their diplomatic skullduggery that these carriers of what Schumacher describes as "a technology moving ever more rapidly in the direction of gigantism, complexity and violence" are to be brought to heel. Unless the process is reversed all of us will suffer.

Produotive giantism "entails a degree of specialization that destroys work satisfaction and produces fragmentary men, too specialized to be wise." It means the exclusion of "an ever-increasing proportion of mankind ... from the productive process, except in the role of technological gap-fillers, whether on the factory floor or in some vast "open-style' office" — over-loaders of the global village, that "industrial reserve army" which Marx predicted a century ago. It means damage to the environment. It means exhaustion of resources.

The struggle against productive giantism will pit two groups of innovators one against the other — the "people of the forward stampede" on one side, "the "homecomers" on the other. Each group perceives that the collision between the irresistible force of an on-rushing technology and the immoveable object of finite resources will produce a crisis of catastrophic proportions if left to run amok. But each has radically different notions about what to do to stop it.

The people of the forward stampede rely upon the breakthrough, look to improved technology and big machines to undo the damage done by previous technology and previous machines. "A breakthrough a day keeps the crisis away."

The homecomers doubt that it will. Breakthroughs will if anything accelerate the break-up. "Breakthroughs almost invariably imply more violence to nature and a greater, more inescapable subjugation of man under the requirements of 'the system'". The homecomers hope to make things better by making things smaller — to return to "the human scale, to real human requirements, and to the organic harmonies of nature."

First impressions of Prince Edward Island — "Canada's Smallest Province", as the title of a recent history so delightfully boasts — are that it is a paradise for homecomers. The scale is small and therefore human. The organic harmonies of nature delight the eye and rest the soul. Precursors of today's anti-growth philosophers were those sturdy independents, A. E. C. Holland and Cornelius Howatt — the latter lending his name and example to a movement on the Island devoted not so much to propagating the anti-growth philosophy as to raising the level of consciousness on the Island to an awareness of an anti-growth philosophy — who stood alone in 1873 in opposing the terms of union between Prince Edward Island and the Dominion of Canada: "We have sold our noble little ship."

But first impressions can be misleading. Consider Spring Park in Charlottetown. "A lovely place in olden times", writes Lorne C. Callbeck, agricultural research scientist and historian, "a favorite resort in summer for both young and old; for through the grounds were many pretty walks, and in it rose a limpid spring whose waters meandered and rippled their way among the trees, on and on, till they flowed under Black Sam's Bridge, spread out into Governor's Pond, and then into the harbor. The spring was later walled hewn stone and became a ready source of pure water ... The pond is gone now; for men filled the depression with ashes, cans, bottles, and rubbish of all description ... The area of the park is now quite generally covered with houses, and the Royalty Mall Shopping Centre and its parking lot have taken the place of the pond."

There are the people of the forward stampede at work upon the Island too, and by no means all of them have come from "across" or "away."

THEY'RE HACKING AWAY AT PRIVATE WORLDS

Beware of the 'Engineers of Consent'

By MORLEY CALLAGHAN

(From a convocation address at the University of Windsor by one of Canada's best known authors.)

As a weary way-worn traveller I suppose I should risk one word of advice — get it over with quickly.

It's this. There's a magic these days. It's in being able to live your life so you remain in possession of your own soul and keep your self-respect.

It requires a personal magic because our society now is loaded with human machines that bite away at you till you finally surrender with a sweet and often profitable assenting sigh.

When, as a person, there is really nothing of you left, you may indeed be named citizen of the year. The man who never gives anyone any trouble, the man whose life is an open book — with all the pages blank.

Who is it who is continually coming against you?

A new breed. The engineers of consent. All they ask is the surrender, or the elimination, of your own private world.

I'm a story teller. My secret grove is this private world of the free uncensored imagination. It's the world I share with the reader. A world in which everything depends on language, the real meaning of words. It is a world of intimate whispers, private judgments, secret recognitions and acknowledgements that a man can have his own dignified world.

Secret Thoughts

Why is the great Russian writer Solzhenitsyn so utterly condemned in Russia? Because, whether he be in prison, or walking the streets, he asserts in his work and through his characters that a man still has his own secret thoughts and judgments. It is so even when he is compelled to march in step, or fall to his knees.

By his very nature as a man, having his private world no matter what they do to him, he remains a threat to those who would browbeat him and keep him in line. He is secretly unpredictable. A man! A man who remembers and therefore one day may explode.

All over the world the new engineers of consent are hacking away at man's secret imaginative world. They debase his language. They want to be secretly in his home, even in his thoughts, if they can find the right machine; hear him whispering on the telephone.

They use on him all the bugging devices, all the peeping tom stuff and seduce him into consenting that it is all for the good of the state, and they wait for the day when he will finally grow tired of looking over his shoulder, and say, "Okay. I know it's just information and information is sacred and why should an honest man object to being policed?"

Indeed, not long ago, an eminent citizen of this country, in a discussion about wire tapping, said, "I have nothing to hide. Why should I object if someone in authority wants to listen in on my telephone?"

What a confession. What a dreary life. How exciting it must be for his wife. No wild passion. No wild protest. In his world there are neither criminals nor saints. His private life must be just a vacant lot for sale.

A sure sign of the collapse of the dignity of the private world and the decline of a civilization is in the decay of language. Words lose their meaning, they are even used to pervert their real meaning; or as a screen for another meaning.

The engineers of consent, in business, in advertising and in politics, by twisting old words that are important in our private lives, are sneaking in on us. Think about the breakdown of language and the resulting breakdown of a moral order that is revealed in the Watergate scandal.

Here in Canada we are in another neck of the woods, but it is still the same woods. That word honor! You smile when you use that word now. Security? Subversive? What do these words mean now?

National security means the protection of someone who has a big job and finds someone else is breathing down his neck. Subversion? A subversive is simply some guy who wants your job.

These great events take my mind back to the days of the fall of France in the Second World War.

At that time, stern men of the right, outraged by the French demoralization, became strident moralists, not forgetting, of course, to serve their own interests. France, they insisted, had been defeated because of a climate of spiritual corruption. French youth had been corrupted by the men of the private worlds, the artists and the intellectuals, particularly the poets and novelists, who not only led scandalous lives themselves, but had seduced the young into a view of life that was amoral.

These stern men of the right, the engineers of consent of those days, talked about Andre Gide, his contempt for sound, consenting bourgeois morality, and his weakness for doing scandalous things that charmed the young. They talked about Jean Cocteau and his life of scandal. They asked what else could be expected from a generation raised on the works of Marcel Proust.

'The Nerve Ends'

My question at the time was, "Is there any evidence that the French general staff had ever entered the imaginative worlds of Cocteau, of Gide, of Proust?"

In this great French debate one simple fact was overlooked. The men of the imaginative world are merely the nerve ends of society. They pick up the smell of social corruption before it is caught by the orthodox religions or political watch towers. If the French general staff had had a weakness for reading imaginative literature they might have learned something about the country's spiritual condition on the eve of war.

So now in our time we shouldn't be surprised really that we live in a moral climate that produced the men of Watergate. Writers, men like Beckett, Genet, Camus, have been asserting for years that there is an element of absurdity in all our public relationships.

A Billy Graham, and remember that Billy Graham is a sanctified figure around Washington, would tell us that the writers I have named suffer from a kind of sickness and that the hope of this continent is in our spiritually healthy middle class. But the men of Watergate are the men of this class, and they are the men who, whether in the United States of Canada, distrust the artist, distrust the imagination, especially when it is critical.

I find that when I meet a man or a woman of unquestioned respectability, but completely given over to the things that are Caesar's, I ask myself, "Is he a born cop?" It's a great way of judging people.

The wonder of it is that as yet no editorial writer has blamed the acceptance of the general criminality on painters, writers, dancers and movie makers. It would be too comical, I suppose, since the plain truth is that the highly placed men of Watergate, the invaders of all private worlds, are not given over to reading imaginative literature or haunting art galleries. No one as yet has suggested that Portnoy's Complaint has made burglary acceptable.

I am fascinated, and as a novelist, very gratified that these strange figures devoid of all self-respect are not long-haired and bearded students; they don't wear jeans, they don't make passionate speeches to anyone; they don't get high on pot, they never have been beaten up.

No, they are the most ordinary of men. They have closely cropped hair, they wear conservative suits, no big lunch ties. Grey faceless men with nice wives and nice homes, and all devoid of distinction in any field. Not one of them ever said anything quotable.

Yet they are the frustrated children of Caesar. They hate losers. They must have winners. The grey men, free of the private imaginative world of self-respect, the grey men, who are all around us, the invaders, the engineers of consent, who turn out to be the true subversives who are beyond all moral scruple in their thirst for power.

The other night I said to a young man who has had some experience in the great world of the corporations, "How do men get this way? How can they justify themselves, go to church on Sundays and really believe they are first-class citizens?"

"You don't understand," he said. "If you are in a field and whether it's big business or big politically, or just the stuff of life you work with and make your money on, you have to have a department devoted to knowing what is going on. You are judged by your thoroughness, and there is this crazy worship these days of information. You feel morally and scientifically obliged literally to prove that in your field you can keep track of everything that moves."

Faceless Men

I could see then that the spying, the unscrupulous snooping, would all be justified in the name of scientific accuracy of information. Everything that moves! All beautifully impersonal. No rights or freedoms are involved. No self-respect either. The information has to be there in case the man at the top some day wants to check on someone. Information! That banal substitute for imaginative wisdom that is so often palmed off as education.

Have you noticed that the new tyrants, the faceless men who are all over the world, are just as suspicious and distrustful of university students as they are of honest imaginative writers? Why? Because the student, like the imaginative writer, is always at work furnishing the interior castle. It is the time of his life when his imagination is most alive.

Then surely you should want to remain students forever. You and I then should always be on the same side, always ready to defend the interior castle against the banal depersonalizing invader.

If we are eternally vigilant we have a chance of remaining in possession of our own souls, of living our lives in self-respect. If we do this then at the end we will have a good memory of things.

Our Own Style of Cover-Up

By ANTHONY WESTELL

OTTAWA — The current issue of Harper's, the influential U.S. magazine, suggests that one of the lessons of the Watergate affair is that the United States needs a more flexible system of government, akin to the Parliamentary system.

The suggestion seems to be that it would be easy for a U.S. parliament to vote no confidence in Prime Minister Richard Nixon, removing him from office with a minimum of fuss and crisis so that public confidence in government could be restored.

While many Canadians will find this flattering, it is in fact nonsense. Faced with anything approaching the Watergate scandal, we probably could not deal with it as openly and expeditiously as the Americans.

History suggests that it is almost as hard for a parliament to remove a prime minister as it is for Congress to impeach a president. The main reason is that PMs usually head the majority party and therefore control the Commons. It takes a revolt in the party to unseat the prime minister, and that is extremely rare. Chamberlain decided to resign anyway.

Canada has had its share of scandals, but seldom if ever has a prime minister been removed from office by vote of the Commons. When PMs scent that such a danger may be upon them, they can always call an election and raise some other issues.

Because prime ministers control the Commons, it is almost impossible for Parliament to undertake a thorough examination of the conduct of the PM, as the Senate is now investigating Nixon. The prime minister's followers, usually in a majority, can be whipped around to defend the great man against the questions of the opposition.

This is why scandals in Canadian and British governments are usually referred by parliaments to a judicial inquiry. But there is the disadvantage that all the facts and suspicions may not be brought into the open, and that judgments about essentially political decisions are taken out of the hands of politicians.

In Washington, the division of powers between the White House and the Congress guarantees that there are at least two centres of political authority. When one steps out of line, it can be checked and examined by the other; when one loses credibility, the other gains it. In the current drama, the decline of the president is matched by the rise of the Congress — and all in full public view.

There is no such division of power in the Parliamentary system. When a prime minister falls, he usually drags down Parliament and precipitates the county into an election which obscures rather than illuminates the real cause of the crisis.

Cherry Growers To Sue

The Allied Growers Ltd., in Kelowna will launch legal action against the B.C. Fruit Board for seizure of about 10 tons of cherries Tuesday, Allied president Fred Hume said Wednesday.

The latest development in the cherry war between the fruit board and 19 growers protesting the B.C. marketing system, the suit for damages by conversion is certain and theft charges are being considered, said Hume.

The growers, called the United Fruit Growers (UFG), led by Hume, brought more than seven tons of fresh cherries into Vancouver last Saturday for public sale.

Board chairman Nigel Taylor of Kelowna said the fruit was being packed and stored in an unlicensed packing-house, contrary to the B.C. Fruit Marketing Act.

Hume said the packing house was idle Wednesday after Taylor warned Allied crews that they could be charged if they returned to work.

Hume said crews were told not to come to work because "we don't want them to get into trouble."

He added there was a ready market for the cherries which could be sold at comparable prices to what the UFG charged in Vancouver, giving the packinghouse a profit and 25 cents a pound to growers.

Under the marketing system, Hume said, buyers "are being denied the opportunity to get enough fruit for home canning if the oppressive practices of the board are allowed to continue."

Whitehorse Council Quits

WHITEHORSE (CP) — The Yukon territorial government Wednesday declared the city of Whitehorse without elected civic officials following the resignations of five aldermen Monday and appointed a former Saskatchewan civil servant acting administrator until a municipal election can be held.

The territorial government said it declared the seats of Mayor Burt Wybrew and Alderman John Watt, the only elected officials who did not resign Monday, vacant under provisions of the Yukon territorial municipal ordinance.

Joe Oliver, retired Prince Albert, Sask, city administrator, will be appointed to Whitehorse as soon as a government order is issued.

The alderman resigned Monday for what they called "extreme harrassment and pressure" by the executive committee of the Yukon government. The committee consists of three appointed civil servants, including Yukon Commissioner James Smith and two territorial councillors.

Portuguese 'Atrocities' Stir U.K.

Times News Services

LONDON — A missionary's detailed and horrifying account of alleged Portuguese atrocities in Mozambique has apparently ruined the carefully prepared celebrations of the 600th anniversary of a treaty of friendship between Britain and Portugal.

The normal protests over next week's visit by Premier Marcelo Caetano — tidily-contained demonstrations are as much a part of the ceremonial of official visits here as the flags on the mall—have blown up into a major storm.

All of Wednesday's papers including The Sun, which normally prefers blondes, headlined stories dealing with the reported massacre of a Mozambian village by Portuguese security forces. The Guardian urged that Caetano's visit be cancelled, and the Times of London said that unless the Portuguese government agreed to an impartial investigation the visitor would be unwelcome.

In the House of Commons Prime Minister Edward Heath angrily rebutted a call by Opposition Leader Harold Wilson for cancellation of the visit. In the House of Lords, government spokesmen noted defensively that proofs of the massacre story were lacking, but at the same time it was but at the same time it was disclosed that the British consul-general in Laurenco Marques, Mozambique, had been asked for a report.

The explosion was triggered by Father Adrian Hastings, a lecturer on African affairs at the College of the Ascension in Birmingham. His account is largely a translation of a report given him three weeks ago in Madrid by the Spanish Missionary Society of Burgos.

The report asserts that Portuguese soldiers and security police shot, burned, beat and mutilated more than 400 men, women and children on December 16 at Wiriyamu, a village in Western Mozambique.

Another report by two Spanish priests imprisoned in Mozambique says Rhodesian troops crossed into the Portuguese African territory in 1971, killed eight villagers and burned their bodies to destroy the evidence.

The report, given to Madrid reporters by the Fathers of Burgos, says the killings took place Sept. 5, 1971, as Rhodesian troops were hunting guerrillas of the Mozambique Liberation Front.

Mills Ailing

WASHINGTON (AP) — In pain for several weeks with a spinal ailment, Wilbur Mills chairman of the House of Representatives ways and means committee, said Tuesday he plans to enter a hospital within a few days for examination. The Arkansas Democrat has gone on record as saying he will not seek re-election next year unless he finds relief for the ailment.

Social Worker Firing 'Closed'

The matter of five child-care workers who walked off the job and were later fired by the Pacific Centre for Human Development is "closed," according to centre director Dr. Charles Gregory.

Gregory said he hadn't heard from the Labor Relations Board on the application by the five workers to have the Social Services Employees Union of B.C. act as the bargaining agent for the group.

"And we don't expect to," he said.

The workers walked off the job last month to protest "intolerable conditions" at the centre's Colwood home for 10 emotionally disturbed boys.

Two days later, after camping outside the home, they filed their application with the LRB and that same day they were fired.

Gregory says the workers are only five out of 60 employed by the centre and therefore their application does not satisfy the 51 per cent support requirement of the LRB.

Spokesman for the five, Peter Kagis, says they are five out of nine working at the Colwood unit and their application should be accepted.

Gregory, who was away at the time of the incident, says the workers will not be rehired because they walked off the job.

He said the other staff at the centre did not agree with the complaints by the five and "even if they had a beef they wouldn't have done what they did."

Outfall Plans Sought

Engineering proposals will be obtained from two companies to start studies and plans for a new sewage outfall at Clover Point which will serve Victoria, Oak Bay and part of Saanich.

This was agreed to by the Capital Regional District board Wednesday which endorsed recommendations from its public works committee.

Associated Engineering Services Limited will be asked to submit a two-part proposal covering:

1. Oceanographic engineering studies and preliminary design studies necessary for design and document preparation for Clover Point seaward from the high water mark;

2. Complete design, document preparation and supervision of this including the discharge outfall.

Ker, Priestman, Keenan and Associates Limited will be asked to submit a two-part proposal covering:

1. Preliminary design studies for the Clover Point system shoreward from the high water mark and cost-sharing study so the total amounts may be specifically allocated between Victoria, Oak Bay and Saanich;

2. Complete design, document preparation and supervision of the shoreward works, including all necessary items such as pumping facilities and trunk systems.

The board gave chairman Jim Campbell, executive director Dennis Young and engineer Bill Gerry authority to approve the part one proposals so that work can proceed with a minimum of delay.

The provincial government's Pollution Control Branch granted a permit last month which will allow discharge of shredded domestic sewage from a new, long outfall extending from Clover Point.

Monitoring studies were also required to be undertaken in the sea and plans, specifications and design data must be submitted to the PCB for approval three months before tender date for construction.

Capital Region Approves Timetable for Land Act

The Capital Regional District approved a timetable Wednesday for establishing an agricultural land reserve plan as required under the Land Commission Act.

All regional districts in British Columbia have until Oct. 1 to produce the plans and regional board chairman Jim Campbell said it is "not unreasonable to expect any extension beyond the 90 days to be nominal."

Regional district planners have already put together a draft plan and this is being referred to the individual municipalities and electoral areas.

Campbell said the draft plan is based on the inclusion of all land having agricultural capability of Class 1 to 4, plus all land whose capability can be improved to Class 4 or better by irrigation.

Excluded are agricultural lands already subdivided into parcels of land less than two acres, or which have urban development on them.

But on his point, Saanich Ald. Edith Gunning said there are a number of developed areas, including one in Saanich with townhouses, where the draft shows agricultural land.

Campbell said the draft "has been the best effort of staff to produce reasonably-accurate results" and corrections of this sort could be made up to Aug. 17.

This is the final date for applications to be received for exclusion of lands from the plan prior to preparation of the bylaw.

The regional board would consider applications for exclusion Aug. 27 and the board would act on the bylaw Sept. 5. Advertisements would commence Sept. 12 and the public hearing would be held and concluded Oct. 1 with final action by the board. Oct. 1 is the 90th day under the act, dated from proclamation.

Campbell said the "most successful arguments" for exclusion prior to Aug. 17 will be those "based on a proven case of error in fact."

Legal advice indicated that it must be one public hearing, which could be adjourned and resumed to allow everyone to be heard.

SOVIET HARVEST STALLED

MOSCOW (Reuter) — Heavy rains have hampered harvesting in many winter grain areas of the southern Soviet Union and more rain with lower-than-average temperatures are forecast.

Harvesting is in progress in the northern Caucasus, southern Ukraine, central Russia, southern Kazakhstan as well as in the central Asian republics.

Winter grain collection should end in all these areas in about a week, agricultural officials in Moscow said today.

Harvesting of spring grain will start in about two weeks time, the officials said.

Capital Tax Deadline Looms

By AL FORREST
Times Business Editor

Some firms face their first deadline under the new corporation capital tax at the end of this month — but the provincial finance department will be a little flexible on the time element.

The Corporation Capital Tax Act came into effect Jan. 1, 1973, and it orders that tax returns must be filed within six months of a corporation's fiscal year end.

Those corporations with fiscal year ending Jan. 31 will be subject to tax for the month of January and deadline for filing returns is July 31.

"We are prepared to be a bit flexible with the first deadline," a finance department official said.

However, the necessary forms have been available for weeks and the regulations are published in full in today's edition of the B.C. Gazette.

Copies of the gazette can be ordered from the Queen's Printer in Victoria.

The finance department expects corporations to make an honest effort to meet the deadline but understands that a few might encounter difficulties, he said.

Later deadlines, however, will be strictly enforced.

The tax is similar to one in effect in Ontario since before the Second World War and is aimed at areas untouched by income taxes.

The B.C. tax is one-tenth of one per cent of paid up capital of a company. Capital is defined as including capital surpluses and retained earnings, loans and advances from shareholders and corporations, reserves against future income tax and all debt including bonds, mortgages and bank loans for capital purposes.

Several deductions are allowed for goodwill and investment allowances to arrive at taxable, paid-up capital.

All inventory of goods for sale is exempt from the taxation, although definitions change depending upon circumstances.

For example, a real estate firm owning a house that is up for sale will not pay capital tax on the house. However, if the house is subseqently rented and deemed not for sale, it would become subject to the capital tax as it would be removed from inventory.

Firms operating in more than one province would pay a B.C. tax based on the percentage of revenue received and salaries and wages paid in the province.

The department anticipates a fairly busy time in answering questions of definitions during the start-up period for the new taxes. However, Ontario-based firms will have had some experience with the general terms of the taxation.

In Ontario, the tax raised about $36 million in the last fiscal year. In British Columbia the tax is expected to raise $8 million in the 1973-74 fiscal year ending next March.

The B.C. tax applies to all corporations with a permanent establishment in the province except for corporations with paid up capital employed in Canada of less than $25,000, credit unions, cooperatives, corporations which only own and manage self-owned apartment suites, and corporations solely engaged in farming, provided they are registered or licenced to carry on business in B.C. and the owners of 95 per cent of the beneficial shareholdings live in the province and are related by blood, marriage or adoption.

In addition, all charitable organizations are exempt along with those corporations exempt from income tax under section 149 (1) of the federal income tax act.

Firms with fiscal year coinciding with the calendar year have until June 30, 1974, to file their first returns.

Returns are filed with the corporation capital tax branch of the department of finance, Victoria.

He'll Pay Back $12.5 Million

LONDON (Reuter) — Sir Denys Lowson, a former lord mayor of London and millionaire head of a vast financial empire, has agreed to pay back the £5 million (about $12.5 million) profit he made from a controversial business deal.

The head of the $625 million Lowson Group announced his decision Wednesday night, 24 hours after the British trade ministry appointed two government inspectors to investigate the deal.

The 67-year-old millionaire aroused criticism last year when he bought and then sold one of Britain's leading trust companies.

The controversy concerned shares in the United Trust Group which Sir Denys and his family bought for 63 pence (about $1.50) each. Later, the shares were sold for £8 67d (more than $200) each. Outside shareholders were not told of the sales.

Sir Denys said: "I propose to insure that, so far as lies in my power, all the benefit derived directly or indirectly by me or my family will be passed to the company which originally sold the shares."

'The Future of Human Existence Is Grave'

makes a nightmare of orderly traffic. It forces us to build costly, overhead expressways, just to keep things moving, with money that's badly needed for other projects. But no civic leader in Japan is able to control it. It is entirely up to the governmental ministry of transportation. The government cares only about protecting the automobile industry. We try to persuade our people to leave their cars at home, but it doesn't work. There must be regulations, prohibitions. The government says only that we must produce, produce, produce, even if, in the end, it destroys us."

I went from the governor's office to the all but comically crowded offices of his planners — went there as a visitor whose first impressions of the mammoth city were mixed.

What they've rebuilt from the ashes of the war is a supremely ugly city, a city with less than a fifth of the parkland needed as a minimal requirement. The smog is so dense that the ice-cream-sundae peak of Mount Fujiyama, only 60 miles away and 12,388 feet in height, once visible on every clear day, is now seen fewer than 20 days of the year. The traffic is so thick and lunatic that you may find yourself trapped with a suicidal cab-driver who decides to beat a line-up four blocks long.

Truly Great

Yet this is one of the truly great cosmopolitan cities of the world where the tourist, at least, will enjoy the finest art galleries, theatres, hotels, restaurants and shopping.

Stan Getz is playing at the Yubin Chokin Hall, Billy Vaughn and Miles Davis have their big bands here this week and next week "Jesus Christ, Superstar" and the Julliard String Quartet come to town.

Though the women of Japan have made considerable progress toward equality since I was here 18 years ago, Tokyo remains largely a man's world. Conservative estimates have it that there are 150,000 "hostesses" in the city's 20,000 drinking places. There are 60,000 registered geisha. In the Mikado Cabaret, largest in the world, a thousand pretty girls laugh at the jokes of the tired businessmen. They used to page them when a particular hostess was wanted by a client, but now the ladies respond to a tiny, transistorized buzzer in the bra.

In any restaurant, club or bar in the Ginza or the newer Akasaka-Roppongi districts, the visitors will see swarms of Japanese executives entertaining other executives, all on the well-known expense-account rip-off. The government tax office reports that deductible corporate entertainment expenses last year were nearly $4 billion dollars.

Housing Headache

None of this relentless gaiety is reflected in Governor Minobe's planning office where conscientious civil servants tell you of emergency plans and stop-gap operations, but admit, with a gloomy shrug, that they're waging only a rear-guard action, too little and too late, to keep the vast city functioning.

Housing is the biggest migraine problem. One recent study shows that Tokyo has the smallest homes and the highest rents, more than twice the national average, in the country. You find yourself remembering the governor's phrase, "capitalism run amok" when you learn that private speculators and developers have an iron grip on most of the available building land, that land prices in many areas have gone up 60 per cent in the last year alone.

A 360-square-foot lot costs about $25,000 and a small home, half the size f the typical Canadian bungalow, will cost another $30,000.

The fast-buck developers are busy putting up inelegant apartment blocks known euphemistically as "mansions" with rents that start from $180 a month — there are said to be three completed every day of the year — but even the smallest, meanest apartment suitable for a childless couple will rent for $150 a month.

Talk of Control

Fully a quarter of the city's population live in a single bleak room, so often with a "no children" ruling by the landlord that a leading psychologist describes "neuroses housing" as the single main cause of abortions, suicide and divorce.

The planners speak of the beginnings of a control program to reserve agricultural land beyond Tokyo's far-flung perimeter for residential areas and of government loans to private developers to finance housing for families of moderate means, but are quick to add that it is "still in the suggestion stage."

Government housing projects, meanwhile, are woefully inadequate. One show-piece project I visited, known as the Tama New Town, located about 30 miles from the centre of the city but still well within its borders, is designed to house 400,000 people. Since its beginning in 1971 it has provided accommodation for fewer than 20,000 — said to be about the same number as the monthly total of new arrivals in a city that already holds more than a tenth of the nation's populaion.

Other public housing projects have anywhere up to 2,000 times the number of applicants to the numbers accepted.

Living in Shadows

The boom in high-rise apartments has not only failed to help the average Tokyo wage-earner, but has brought new problems to those who live in their shadows. A group of advisers to Governor Minobe is now wrestling with a "right to sunshine" formula that he's promised to put into the statutes. Meanwhile, though some 10,000 of them were built last year, some high-rise plans have been vetoed and others have been scaled down in height to allow nearby homes at least two hours of sunlight a day — though, more often than not, the sun is usually just an orange ball in a smoggy sky.

Says Governor Minobe: "It's typical of our problems. We've run out of room in Tokyo to go out, so we must go up. Yet we must protect the homeowner's constitutional right to a little sun. Our compromise is to limit the tall buildings to the city core or in those suburban areas that don't object."

One direct result of the housing shortage is known here simply as "the commuter hell." It is one of the more sadistic tourist sights of the world to visit the Shinjuku station, the city's main terminal for subway and inter-city trains, in the late afternoon rush hour. Attendants known as "shovers" push in the protruding arms and legs so that each carriage is packed to a capacity three times denser than the designers had in mind.

Commuter Horror

Some commuters, in the interests of finding a livable home, spend up to three hours a day in travelling, gulping a bowl of hot noodles from a vendor's kiosk in the station as a substitute for breakfast. The railways, subways and buses of the city are said to take 21 million fares each day.

Such congestion helps to explain that most uncharacteristic Japanese happening this spring when commuters smashed windows and set fire to trains during a union slowdown. "It was not an act against the owners or the unions," I was told by one railway official, "but simply the release of years of frustration and tension." No one who has seen the daily carnage at Shinjuku could doubt him.

If the housing problem is invisable to the eye of the visitor, the pollution problem is not. He has no need for the electric indicators flashing out their dire readings of noise and air pollution. His eyes, ears, nose and throat tell him that he is being assaulted.

The residents of Tokyo, themselves, began to panic almost exactly two years ago when 40 senior high girls fainted dead away in their school grounds from the effects of photo-chemical fumes.

It comes from the steel mills, oil refineries, chemical plants and factories within the city, on the prevailing winds from Tokyo Bay's industrial jungle and from the exhaust pipes of some two-and-a-half million cars that bear Tokyo plates.

Killed by Sewage

The four main rivers through the city are dead water, killed by sewage, industrial wastes that total 120,000 tons a day and garbage that totals 14,000 tons a day. More than half the city's sewage goes directly into Tokyo Bay, already contaminated beyond recall by industrial waste.

One of the planners put it all in the bluntest possible terms: "We're at a point where the future of human existence, itself, is grave."

And I found myself remembering Governor Minobe's parting words to me.

"We're at a momentous cross-roads," he'd said. "The needs of Tokyo cannot be ignored much longer or Tokyo will simply suffocate."

EGAD—ETON ADMITS GIRL

ETON, England (UPI) — Gad, sir, it finally happened at Eton.

Eton, one of the most famous and exclusive private schools in England, has admitted a girl student. Eton was shocked.

The author of the editorial, said Miss Bourne, is a "male chauvinist pig."

"What an arrogant point of view," she said. "As far as I can see there is no difference between the standards of this and my last school.

The newspaper's editorial said Eton either should go completely co-educational or remain a completely male stronghold.

Girls, it said, could become depressed and self-critical if the school did not stop "dabbling in experiments" by admitting one or two of them.

3 Electrocuted

CARLETON, Mich (AP) — Three men were killed and a fourth was injured Tuesday when a high voltage power line fell at a nearby carnival, police said. The line fell when a rollercoaster-type ride cut a power line, police said. An employee setting up the ride was killed by the charge and a second employee, standing nearby, was injured, police said. Two others died when the line fell on a tent.

*AS TESTED IN THE EPA STUDY

They found that a Datsun 1200 goes further on a gallon of gas than any of the others.

So if you drive a Datsun 1200 you'll save money on gas, and you'll burn a lot less of the fuel that causes much of our air pollution.

If you're economy-minded, or if you're ecology-minded . . .

Forest Industry Optimistic Exports Will Top '72 Total

MID-YEAR REPORT

By AL FORREST
Times Business Editor

British Columbia's forestry industry is optimistic 1973 exports will exceed the record totals of 1972, despite a decided slackening in demand in the last half of this year.

Lumber exports are expected to top 10.1 billion board feet, a 7.5 per cent increase over the 9.4 billion of 1972.

Plywood exports are expected to be up 8.5 per cent at 2.1 billion board feet (compared to 1.9 billion) and squares of red cedar shingles and shakes are expected to total 2 million, about the same as last year.

At the end of 1972 forestry industry spokesmen were concerned there might be a lower volume of exports in 1973, due to the decline in housing starts in the United States.

However demand and prices continued at record pace into mid-April of this year, raising hopes for a new export record, despite indications of slackening demand at mid year.

Industry spokesmen are reluctant to forecast trends because of the extreme short term fluctuations in both price and demand and because of the cyclical nature of the industry.

However, their forecasts are based upon the twin hopes that demand and prices will stabilize and not continue their downward plunge.

They are hopeful, rather than certain, that the market will not follow the precipitous fall of 1969 but will taper off and stabilize at about their present levels.

Lumber exports to the United States, the main market, were up to 1.6 billion board feet, a 6.6 per cent increase over the first quarter of 1972.

Sales in Canada totalled 454.5 million board feet in the first quarter, a 7.8 per cent increase over the 421.7 million in the first quarter of 1972.

Exports to the United Kingdom, however, were only 78.2 million board feet, down 31 per cent from the 113.4 million in the first quarter of 1972.

Exports to other offshore markets, especially Japan, were 188.6 million board feet, down 16.8 per cent from the 226.6 million in the same period of 1972.

Over-all, exports in the first quarter, including shipments to other provinces in Canada, totalled 2.4 billion board feet, a 2.7 per cent increase over the 2.3 billion board feet a year earlier.

At mid-year, wholesale prices for all species of lumber were down over the peak in April.

The prices were down from 10 to 20 per cent from their highest levels.

For example, Douglas fir two-by-fours which hit a high of $205 per thousand board feet wholesale in mid-April, were selling at $165 per thousand at the end of June, a drop of 20 per cent.

Spruce was down between 10 per cent and 20 per cent. Plywood and shingles were only down a fraction in Canada.

However, plywood is down 30 per cent in price in the United States and a similar decline is anticipated in B.C. in the last half of 1973. This will not affect B.C.'s export picture as Canada does not ship plywood into the United States.

The pulp and paper market continues to improve with stable prices and strong demand.

Pulp production in B.C. for the first five months of 1973 was 2.3 million tons, up 17 per cent from the 2 million tons in the first five months of 1972.

Newsprint production was 59.9 million tons, up .3 per cent over the 59.6 million tons in the first five months last year.

Production of other related products, especially box wood, was 203 million tons, the same as in the first five months of 1972.

While export prices to Europe and Japan had not yet fallen like the rates in North America, this was due to the longer advance bidding on prices and lower levels could be expected in the last half of 1973.

Over-all, the industry expects production and price in the last half of 1973 to be lower than in the first half, but is optimistic that the 12-month performance in 1973 will surpass the record year 1972.

Even if the export market falls sharply in the last half of 1973 — and this is not anticipated — it would still be a good year for the forestry industry and in that case would be a weak performance only in comparison to 1972.

Estimates are based upon reasonable stability in the last half of the year, although forestry officials say their forecasts can be based on nothing more than the first half performance and their studies of past cyclical trends.

"Spotting trends in the forestry industry is a very difficult task," one official said. "If I knew with any certainty which way the price was going I could quickly become a very wealthy man."

Mosquito Bite Count Guides Spraying Team

JEUNE BROS. FOR HIKING BOOTS

the prairies

EDMONTON (CP) — The city has budgeted $143,063 this year to fight mosquitoes, has four men checking breeding and mosquito-infested areas and another 40 on call to help in the battle.

Keith Evans, environmental services co-ordinator for the parks department, said the city is spraying every night the wind permits.

Spraying is conducted according to bite counts made by the inspectors — they bare an arm in various parts of the city and count the bites.

Because of the severity of the mosquito infestation this year the Journal plans to publish the bite counts as a mosquito index.

Consumerism Urged

JASPER, Alta. (CP) — The Canadian Automobile Association should become more involved in consumer affairs, Herb Gray, federal minister of consumer and corporate affairs, said Wednesday.

Gray also told the annual meeting of the CAA that his department and the Ministry of Transport share the concern of the automobile association about highway and automobile safety.

Wider Jurisdiction

WETASKIWIN, Alta. (CP) — The Wetaskiwin local of the National Farmers' Union sent a telegram to the federal government Wednesday urging extension of Canadian Wheat Board jurisdiction to all of the country and all of the grains.

NFU president Roy Atkinson earlier expressed concern that the government might remove feed grains from the board's jurisdiction. A few speciality oil seeds and most of eastern Canada are not now under the board.

No Extra Taxes

SASKATOON (CP) — Owners of General Motors Corvette sports cars imported illegally from the United States will be able to keep them without paying additional tax, an RCMP spokesman said Wednesday.

The cars were bought cheaply in California where they couldn't meet the state's emission control requirements and sold in Saskatoon, police said.

STRIKE LINKED TO DEATH

EDMONTON (CP) — The death of a city man and a long waiting list for elective surgery were cited Wednesday in a plea for government intervention in the month-old Royal Alexandra Hospital strike.

Ald. Ed Leger, a member of the hospital board, told its executive committee a state of emergency exists because of the strike by 1,030 service workers.

The government should be asked to order them back to work under compulsory arbitration.

Ald. Leger said a city man, who had been treated for a heart condition at the Royal Alexandra, was refused immediate care at the General Hospital after suffering a heart attack because no facilities were available.

The man was admitted to the General the next morning but died later.

Dr. Tal Talibi, a cardiologist at the Royal Alexandra intensive care unit, confirmed the incident occurred and said he felt the man would be alive today had he been admitted to intensive care at the Royal Alexandra.

Ald. Leger declined to release further details, saying they were given him in confidence, and general executive director G. L. Pickering said he would need more information to check records.

Treat your friends gently.

Hiram Walker's Special Old. Gentle Rye Whisky.

We once thought the forest was forever. Now we're sure it is.

Ah, the good old days. There was a time when B.C.'s forests were seen as a vast, endless supply of timber. You could log for years and never seem to make a dent in that great green blanket. So, our grandfathers cut and hauled and moved on to the next stand, with little or no thought for the future. Everyone worked toward bringing a provincial economy to its feet, while few realized the dangers of bringing the forest to its knees.

Those "good old days" are long since gone. Today, the indiscriminate practices of yesterday are no longer tolerated. The forest is still seen as a vast resource — but one that must be managed and renewed. Today, the forest industry of B.C. looks ahead to tomorrow — in more ways than one.

Forest Management: waste not, want not.

The ever-developing techniques of forest management involve every aspect of the forest environment. We've learned a lot in the last few years — and we're still learning. Experience has taught us how our actions, and the actions of others, can affect the ecological balance of the forest. We're learning how to think ahead — to predict effects and side effects. Because our prime concern is the proper management of B.C.'s forests we've learned how to work at renewing this precious resource to ensure its continued growth.

We've also discovered how to make the most of the forest's bounty. No longer are small logs left to decay at logging sites. Every economically usable piece of wood is recovered to be processed in the manufacture of lumber, pulp, plywood, shingles and dozens of other forest products. Just as we've learned to make the most of forest management techniques, we've also learned to utilize everything the forest provides — including information about itself.

N.S.R.: the need and the challenge.

Through the combined efforts of the forest service and the forest industry, 415 million new trees have been planted throughout B.C., as of 1972. Yet, about 7% of the total forest land in B.C. is classed as not satisfactorily restocked (N.S.R.). These under-stocked patches of land represent a legacy from the past — the leftovers from ancient forest fires and outmoded logging practices. For various reasons, Nature's reforestation efforts in these areas have failed to produce acceptable results. And even though much of this land pre-dates logging or even the settling of this province, we are determined that it must eventually give birth to a new forest.

That's one of the reasons why we — the forest industry and the B.C. Forest Service — are accelerating our reforestation efforts. In fact, by 1980, we expect to be able to plant 150 million seedlings on 400,000 acres a year — every year. Through a sensible, systematic reforestation program, our N.S.R. acreage will be reduced to a realistic balance point that can be maintained indefinitely.

Because of reforestation, there are more trees growing in British Columbia today than there were 200 years ago. The forest industry of B.C. intends to keep it that way — a perpetual forest to be enjoyed by you and your children — a constantly regenerating forest that continues to provide the strong foundation of our provincial economy.

If you're looking for something permanent, look at the forest. Because we've made it our business to make sure it will always be there. For all of us.

'It's Up to George' Jonsons' Battle Cry

By ERNIE FEDORUK
Times Staff

The medallist didn't make it past the first round of match play in the Pacific Northwest Golf Association men's championship, but you had to figure on one of the Jonson clan making it.

For the Jonsons, George did it.

John Wood didn't because, as the 58-year-old Seattle veteran reckoned, "I started to play my opponent instead of the course."

Wood, the medallist, wound up losing 4 and 3 to Portland's Dan Elliott on a Wednesday that saw almost-ideal weather conditions return to the beautifully-manicured Uplands course.

Wood's loss was the biggest upset. There were other minor elebrow-raising results, the least of which was Jonson's 3 and 2 decision over the long-hitting Doug Lauer of Everett.

With defending champion Jim McLean moving into professional ranks, the experts refused to rush in and define the clear-out favorites this year.

Lauer's name was mentioned as one pre-tournament "watching possibility" along with Tacoma's Don Hauge, Bob Zimmerman of Marysville, Wash., and Seattle threats Steve Johnsen and Tom Tindall.

ROSS WINS

Roger Ross, the golfing dentist from Colwood, surprised Hauge; Gorge Vale southpaw Bob Beauchemin held on to stop Zimmerman, another one of the long knockers in the field; Bremerton's John Edmonds toppled Tindall, the son of a Seattle-area pro, and PNGA president Skip Nagler did something for the executives by eliminating Johnsen.

George, meanwhile, was doing his bit to enhance the reputation of the Jonson clan. They're starting to branch out to other clubs, but at one time it was impossible to hitSeattle to other clubs,but at one time it was impossible to hit Seattle's Broadmoor without bumping into one of them.

This week, for the PNGA affair, they are well represented. George's mother, Dorothy, is competing with the women at Victoria Club. At Uplands, along with George, are father Ernest, a former PNGA executive; brother Dick and Cousin Ed.

There are more Jonson players in Seattle but, because of other committments, they couldn't make it here.

And because he started this day in the championship bracket, the Jonson battle-cry has become: "Let George do it."

He has the game and confidence ... and the background.

Still, it won't be an easy chore. Heading into today's demanding two-round program, there was still some "tough talent" in the way.

That included four district threats — Beauchemin, Ross, Mike Gray of Uplands and Willingdon Cupper Dave Mick of Gorge Vale.

Mick had an impressive 5 and 4 win over Vic Scybert of Kenmore, Wash. He was even par with three birdies and three bogeys.

Five other city hopefuls went down to defeat in the opening round. They were Lawrie Kerr and Ken Floyd of Colwood, Hal Jacobsen of Glen Meadows and Al Senior and Bob Hunt of Uplands.

Survivors of today's gruelling march advance to Friday's semifinals.

For Dale, It's a Simple Case of 'Trying Harder'

By BILL WALKER
Times Staff

If Marilyn Palmer is No. 1 in ladies' golf in the province, can Dale Shaw be far behind?

That is a question that may be answered this week in the Pacific Northwest Golf Association championships at Victoria and Uplands Golf Clubs.

Both Miss Palmer of Vancouver and Miss Shaw of Glen Meadows advanced to the quarter-finals of ladies' play Wednesday with easy victories over Carole Holland of Seattle, 5 and 4, and Mary Smith of Kent, Wash., 5 and 3, respectively.

In other matches, tournament medallist Mary Budke of Dayton, Ore., had little trouble scoring a 7-and-5 triumph over Betty Jean Hulteing of Idaho; former champion Judy Hoetmer of Seattle, was two down to Diane Phillips of Uplands before rallying for a 4-and-2 victory; Electra Koeniger of Aberdeen, Wash., defeaeed Charlotte Plank of Hillsboro, Ore., 5 and 4; Connie Guthrie of Spokane took Colleen McCullough of Vancouver, 5 and 3; junior Robin Walton of Clarkston, Wash., was forced to the 18th before winning over Leah Reece of Everett, two up; and Ann Swanson of Seattle took the measure of Liz Culver of Bellevue, Wash., 6 and 5 in a battle of retribution. Because before coming here, Miss Culver had handed Miss Swanson, 24, a 7 and 5 lacing in the Washington championship.

As for Miss Shaw, she feels perhaps this is the year she may come into her own. "I am playing better than I ever have," she said simply.

Actually, it has been a relatively sudden rise to prominence for Miss Shaw, 26, who this year has been honored by being selected to the Canadian team to play in Australia in October. For Miss Shaw never had a golf club in her hand until she was 20. And it was while she was working for an oil company in Calgary that she entered a company tournament "just for fun."

Since then, it has become almost a crusade for Miss Shaw. However, she didn't neglect her schooling and has a Bachelor of Arts degree in classical studies from the University of Victoria.

To professional Ernie Tate she gives initial credit for her devotion to the game; to Laurie Carroll at Douglas Golflands, she gives thanks for being a "fine consultant"; and to a U.S. pro, Johnny Revolta, she is indeed grateful, especially for her new outlook.

"He made me feel that my golf swing is mine alone now. I don't look at others and wonder what I'm doing wrong any more."

"I feel this is important to me and since I have been working on this approach, I feel much more capable."

The current city champ, for the fourth time, Miss Shaw has also been on the B.C. interprovincial team for three years, hopes to make it four at Nanaimo next week, and is eagerly looking forward to the Canadian championships at Charlottetown, P.E.I., as well.

"I took a 92-91 in 1970 and didn't qualify," she recalled; "I was 15th in 1971, and fifth last year, do I'm getting closer."

There are also other tournaments on a busy schedule ahead; the Trans-National in Vermont; the U.S. Amateur in New Jersey, and the U.S. LPGA in Portland. Then will come the trip to Australia in October. "I'm just thrilled to have been asked," she said, "because I tried so hard to get on the World Cup team last year, and just missed."

Miss Shaw likes the PNGA tournament because she feels there is more competition than in the B.C. event. "And I've been close," she said wistfully. "I got to the final once but lost to Joanne Washam in the final. Now she's a pro."

Miss Shaw has been keeping that good company this week — Budke, Palmer, Hoetmer, Swanson, and naturally, she would like another chance at the final. And if it is to be against her nemesis and close personal friend, Miss Palmer — "she beat me in the B.C. at Quilchena, and then went on to win," she recalled, "and she's always taking points from me in the trials." And if they do meet, it will have to be in the finals because they are in opposite halves of the draw.

With that, Miss Shaw was off to the putting green. If her plan is to be "just working at golf this summer," like Avis, she was proving she had to try harder.

Weiskopf Continues Attack on Troon Par

TROON, Scotland (AP) — Tom Weiskopf took five more strokes off par with a 67 and took the early second-round lead today in the British Open golf championship with a 36-hole total of 135.

Weiskopf, the first-round leader with a 68, held a three-stroke lead over Johnny Miller, the United States Open champion who shot a 68 today for a midway total of 138 on the par-72, 7,064-yard Old Course at the Troon Golf Club.

Jack Nicklaus and Bert Yancey, tied for second with 69s after the first round, each were four-under-par after 24 holes.

Weiskopf played the final nine holes in drizzling rain.

Weiskopf, who has been enjoying a great year on the U.S. pro tour, wasted little time in attacking par in the second round as he carded two birdies on the first four holes.

He then picked up two more birdies in the next five holes and went nine under by rolling in a 10-foot putt on the 34th hole.

Miller, who won the U.S. Open with a fantastic 63 on the final round, birdied No. 7 on the front nine and then added three more birdies on the back nine for his 68 which made him the leader until Weiskopf came charging home.

Lanny Wadkins, who opened with a 71, finished with a 73 for 144, one stroke ahead of Gary Player of South Africa, who added a fine 69 to his first-stround 76.

Weiskopf, Nicklaus, Yancey and Nicklaus, all from the U.S., were about the only players Wednesday to find a real answer to the gusty winds which varied in strength but never let anyone forget its presence.

"It's a funny course for me," said Weiskopf. "I can't really figure out where to go."

Seven out of the eight teams in the host league will be joined by two out-of-town teams as the Victoria Senior Women's Softball League stages its annual invitational tournament Saturday and Sunday at Hyacinth Park.

In opening games of the double-loss elimination contest on Saturday, Stockers North Americans tackle Moose Lodge Loyals and CFB Esquimalt Combos meet Cosmos at 9 a.m. while MacDonald's Furniture takes on CAV Electronics and Campgell River faces Vicettes at 11. Port Coquitlam gets a bye.

Action resumes Sunday at 10 a.m. and the final is scheduled for 4 p.m.

In league games Wednesday at the same park, Stockers tumbled Loyals 17-3 and Cosmos topped B.C. Telephone, the team not entered in the tourney, 17-4.

Laurie Atkinson hit two home runs and pitcher Terry Hill struck out five batters to lead the Stockers' victory.

Lorraine Ridaut and Patti Gallagher stole five and four bases, respectively, to help Cosmos record the win.

Vicettes defeated CAV Electronics 5-1 and Combos downed MacDonald's Furniture 8-2 on Tuesday.

Cutler's Kicks Fail to Stop Riders

Ottawa Rough Riders remained unbeaten in Canadian Football League pre-season exhibitions Wednesday night when they downed Edmonton Eskimos 25-16 before 14,728 fans in Ottawa.

The Riders tied Winnipeg Blue Bombers in their first exhibition game last week and Eskimos beat Montreal Alouettes in their only other start.

Rookie quarterback Ted McNulty, making his first CFL appearance, led the Riders to a 75-yard scoring march to account for the winning points.

Edmonton got only one touchdown but Dave Cutler was on form with his boot, kicking a convert and field goals of 42, 13 and 35 yards.

Elsewhere in the world of sport:

In Warsaw, the International Lawn Tennis Federation (ILTF), facing a possible war with the "rebel" Association of Tennis Professionals, has rejected the demands of the ATP for ruling power on the world tournament circuit.

The two groups have been battling for supremacy since 70 ATP members boycotted the recent Wimbledon tournament in support of Yugoslavia's Nikki Pilic, who was barred from Wimbledon by the ILTF for refusing to represent his country in the Davis Cup competition.

The ATP has insisted on 50-50 representation on a governing council that would run the world professional circuit, along with directorship of the four major tournaments — Wimbledon, Forest Hills and the Frennch and Australian opens — but the ILTF maintains a 4-3 majority on the board.

Also on the tennis scene, Wimbledon women's champion Billie Jean King has accepted a challenge to meet veteran American Bobby Riggs in a $100,000 winner-take-all match.

The money, the most ever offered for any match in the history of tennis, has been put up but the date and site of the game hasn't been settled.

In Munich, Dwight Stones of California Wednesday set a world record in the high jump with a leap of seven feet, 6½ inches in a track and field meet against West Germany and Switzerland. The record was seven feet, 6¼ inches, held by American Pat Matzdorf.

At the annual rifle shoot at Bisley, England, four members of the Canadian Forces team Wednesday shot their way into the prize list.

Top Canadian in the service rifle championship was Cpl. G. K. Reid of Saint John, N.B., who finished ninth with 398 points.

Cpl. Roy Boudreau of Weymouth, N.S., was 19th with 390 points followed by W-O Jacques Dugas of Quebec City who was 31st with 377 and Cpl. Mark Muzzerall of Woodstock, N.B., who was 39th with 375.

In team events, the Canadians finished sixth and seventh for the Brinsmead Shield and sixth for the Mappin Challenge Cup.

In Tel Aviv, officials at the Maccabiah Games debated today whether to censure an American team doctor who punched the leader of the Israeli Sports Federation Wednesday night.

Witnesses at the Jewish Olympics said the trouble involving U.S. team doctor Max Novich and Samuel Lalkin, one of the most noted sportsmen in Israel, erupted after American heavyweight boxer Peter Brodsky was knocked out by Haim Zilberschmidt of Israel.

Novich, a former fithter, protested the decision to the referee and in the ensuing argument Lalkin, who was trying to mediate the dispute, was punched.

Alexanders Stage a Show

By MAX LOW
Times Staff

It would seem they came more to entertain than to conquer.

And entertain they did, indeed, with some of the most imaginative lacrosse possible. But sometimes, imagination just isn't enough and it's a long way to come to put on a show and end up playing a supporting role.

Sure, Brantford Warriors were all coach Morley Kells said they were — talented, fast-breaking, good stick handlers.

But at Memorial Arena Wednesday night they found out for the second time this week the kind of rugged, body contact stuff they play in the Western Lacrosse Association. And they couldn't hack it.

Victoria Shamrocks paid little attention to all the fancy work and stormed to a 17-12 victory over the highly-rated Easterners, much to the delight of the 2,576 fans.

The visit of the runaway leaders of the Ontario Lacrosse Association drew the arena's second biggest crowd of the season — there were 13 more fans when the Rocks beat Coquitlam Adanacs in the season opener — and everyone joyously joined in what became "Alexander Night."

Brantford certainly put on quite a show and treated the crowd to many innovations and ploys not often seen in the stolid WLA — clever interceptions, long raking passes down the floor, repeated pulling of goalkeepers for an extra attacker, even attacking goalkeepers, and a trick of waiting in the crease outside the bench for rapid changes.

It all increased the excitement and certainly went down well...

But it was a young Victoria player who stole the show.

Kevin Alexander, who had by far the fastest release of any player in the game, fired in five goals — including three in a row in the first period — and set up two others.

It was an incredible performance by Alexander, who is only 17 and who by choice plays in the Junior "B" rather than the Pacific Junior "A" League or the WLA.

But then, the Shamrocks and fans have seen Alexander in action before. This was the third time he had scored three goals or more in a game for the Rocks this season. He has now been called on four times and has scored 13 goals.

Brantford hadn't seen Alexander before, however, and Kells was impressed.

"He's a fine young offensive player," the Brantford coach allowed. "He would fit in well with the kind of lacrosse we play in the East."

Brothers Ken, who coaches Kevin and his Saanich E. J. Hunter Junior "B" teammates, and Frank Alexander also scored a goal each and, in fact, at one stage the scoresheet showed three goals in a row scored by each of the brothers.

Even WLA scoring leader Ivan Thompson and brother Brian had to fade into the supporting cast as the youngest Alexander grabbed the spotlight. Ivan scored two goals and had three assists while Brian scored twice and set up two other goals.

Brantford, led by Paul Suggate, the second highest scorer in the Ontario league who had three goals and four assists, trailed 6-4 after the first period but couldn't stay with the Shamrocks later when the quicker pace brought even heavier checking.

The visitors had absolutely no answer to the tough body checking of players like Dave Thomson, who also scored two goals, Mike Beaulac, Gord Osinchuk and Jack Kastelein.

Afterwards, Kells said he had "expected this."

Warriors continue their four-game series in the West with a game in New Westminster against the Salmonbellies tonight and round it out Saturday against the Adanacs in Coquitlam.

The visitors were trounced 25-8 by the WLA-leading Burrards in Vancouver Monday night but Kells isn't discouraged.

His team reached the national Mann Cup final last season only to lose the best-of-seven series in four straight games to the Salmonbellies.

It won't happen again, says Kells.

"This year, we'll take the Mann Cup," he promises.

Berry Hurls No-Hitter For Bells

Phil Berry's no-hitter, the first of the the season in the Stuffy McGinnis Men's Softball League, gave Bell's Men's Wear a 10-0 shutout Wednesday over CFB Esquimalt at Heywood Avenue Park.

In a game at Central Park, Glen Bullen hurled a three-hitter to give Seaboard Construction a 6-1 victory over Mike's Sport Shop.

Berry, who struck out 12 batters and issued no bases on balls, had a perfect game spoiled by one base-runner, John Smith reached first base in the second inning on an infield error.

THE TRACK SCENE

By Max Low

It was kind of ironic, really.

There was Murray Keating and he'd just thrown his heart out. And all that seemed to concern him was that he had lived up to the expectations of his hometown crowd.

There was no doubt about that.

Keating let fly with a fantastic final fling of 210 feet, 11 inches to set a Canadian national record and come from second place to snatch the gold medal in the hammer throw last Sunday at the Pacific International Games.

He smiled with relief as he relaxed in the infield at Centennial Stadium afterwards and said that, after all the publicity he had received, he would have "really felt bad" if he had let the Victoria people down.

Quite the opposite.

Victoria let him down.

There were only 1,400 on hand to watch Keating's feat and Saturday the paid attendance was a mere 900. The stands hold 3,000. It should have been filled and overflowing around the grounds for a meet of this calibre.

★ ★ ★

Perhaps if the 500 or so peering through the fence had gone through the turnstiles each day, then co-sponsors Invictus and Saanich Peninsula Jaycees wouldn't have suffered a financial disaster.

Irked officials even went to the extent of taking up a collection Sunday and many of those getting a free look at some of the world's best athletes were quite indignant.

About half of those approached refused to pay anything and many others dropped in only nickles or dimes.

A mere $50 was collected. That's about 10 cents each and, for a view from your own lawn chair, it's not bad!

★ ★ ★

Victoria was lucky to get such a meet. Indeed, it could have gone to Vancouver or to any of a number of bigger centres. But it came here mainly because of meet director Ron Bowker and his assistants and because of the reputation they have of running a "smooth meet."

They did just that, too. Oh yes, as always there were one or two minor moans, but on the whole visiting officials and athletes were impressed with the organization and the facilities.

They weren't impressed with the crowd.

★ ★ ★

Athletes from "Down Under", where they pack 'em in for even the smallest meets, were amazed.

And Sonja Van Zal and Alta Wessels, two South African track champions working on a science project in Saskatoon, couldn't believe it.

Miss Van Zal, national 1,500 and 3,000-metre champ who comes from Johannesburg, said such a meet anywhere in South Africa would attract at least 20,000 and probably more.

And Miss Wessels, a sprinter, said that even in her little hometown of Stellenbosch near Cape Town the last meet drew 16,000 and "there were arguments outside the gates among those who couldn't get in."

"And inside, they go mad!" says Miss Wessels. "They cheer and after a good effort they all stand up and clap and clap for about 15 minutes. Here they are so quiet, so reserved."

★ ★ ★

Bowker said after the meet he just couldn't understand it.

"We had such strong teams competing, the weather was great, the meet was well publicised and yet we got such poor crowds," he said.

Bowker added that the only criticism he had heard was that the $3 admission charge was "high."

"But I don't buy that, as it's little more than the price of a case of beer or a ticket to see a film and all kids under 12 were free, so it wouldn't have cost a family much," he said.

Without even having to contribute to travel expenses, the organizers figure they lost about $3,000.

"I really don't know . . . but, as far as Victoria is concerned, this could mean the end of this kind of track meet," says Bowker.

He sincerely hopes it doesn't.

★ ★ ★

Disgusted, but not discouraged. At least, not totally.

He, and several others, would like to make the Pacific International Games an annual meet with teams from Australia, New Zealand and Japan possibly coming here as part of a swing through North America.

And Australian team manager Graeme Briggs echoed the attitude of the visiting athletes and officials when he said: "We'd come. Certainly we would. We need all the international competition we can get."

Yankees Back In Top Berth

By The Associated Press

Fritz Peterson and Sparky Lyle combined to pitch a four-hitter, but the best throw New York Yankees made Wednesday was by catcher Thurman Munson.

With the Yanks clinging to a 3-1 lead, Chicago White Sox had runners on first and second with none out in the ninth. Lyle came on in relief of Peterson, and pinch-hitter Tony Muser stepped to the plate with orders to bunt.

Lyle fired a hard slider and Muser missed. After hesitating, Munson fired to shortstop Hal Lanier, picking pinch-runner Joe Keough off second.

Lyle then struck out John Jetar, who came in to bat for Muser, and threw out Carlos May attempting to bunt to record his 23rd save of the season, tops in the majors.

The victory, combined with Boston Red Sox' 3-0 loss to Minnesota Twins enabled the Yankees to move back into first place in the tight American League East pennant race.

In other games, Oakland A's beat Cleveland Indians 9-3, Detroit Tigers whipped Texas Rangers 14-2, Baltimore Orioles defeated California Angels 7-1 and Milwaukee Brewers beat Kansas City Royals 8-1.

In the National League, Greg Luzinski slammed two home runs to give Philadelphia Phillies a 6-5 comeback win over Atlanta Braves, Montreal Expos edged Cincinnati Reds 4-3, San Francisco Giants downed Chicago Cubs 7-3, Houston Astros defeated New York Mets 7-1, Pittsburgh Pirates crushed San Diego Padres 10-1 and Los Angeles Dodgers nipped St. Louis Cardinals 3-1.

"We didn't have a play on, but Maxie (Lanier) made a helluva play," said Munson, who played college ball at Kent State on the same team as Steve Stone, 4-5, the losing pitcher for the White Sox.

Ron Blomberg homered in the second inning and Lanier doubled and Horace Clarke singled him home in the fourth for the Yankees' runs.

The Red Sox, meanwhile, who started the game in first place by three percentage points, were stymied by the six-hit pitching of Minnesota's Bert Blyleven, 12-8.

Miller Tackles Nichol in Semis

Third-seeded Greg Miller takes on fifth-seeded John Nichol at the Racquet Club tonight in what promises to be the best men's singles match so far in the week-long Victoria City Open tennis championships.

The victor goes into Saturday's final against the winner of the other semi-final between second-seeded Ted Davies and eighth-ranked Ivor Goodmanson. That match will be played Friday night.

Tony Simnett, ranked third with Davies in the men's doubles and third also with young Wendy Barlow in the mixed event, made it through to the semi-finals of both events Wednesday night.

Simnett and Davies recovered from 5-2 down in the second set to take a tie-breaker and the match 6-2, 7-6 from Nichol and Bob Hutton and in the mixed, he and Miss Barlow survived a torrid three-setter for a 3-6, 6-3, 6-3, win over Howie Tooby and Ruth Trelawny.

WAR AMPS WIN BABE RUTH TITLE

The new champions turned two singles, three bases on balls and an infield error into a four-run lead in the first inning.

Brad Clarke drove in two runs with a single and Doug Irving drove in another run with the other hit.

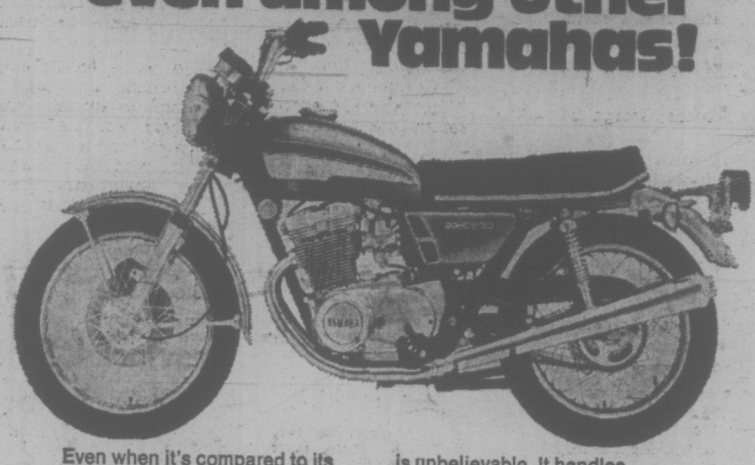
even among other Yamahas!



Even when it's compared to its own team-mates, the DOHC, 8-valve per cylinder, four-stroke TX 500 still brings comments like: "I've never seen a bike this smooth!" "The acceleration is . . . absolutely fantastic!" "The balance is unbelievable. It handles . . . well, perfectly! There's no other word for it!"
And, if the TX 500 is that outstanding among Yamahas, imagine what it will do to the competition!

Marg Mainwaring on National Team

Three of the 14 players selected to the Canadian women's basketball team following a recent seven-day training camp in Courtenay are from Vancouver Island and five are from other parts of British Columbia.

Marg Mainwaring of Victoria, Angie Radanovich Dobie of Nanaimo and Wendy Grant of Campbell River will be with the team when it plays a 16-game summer tour through Germany, Hungary, Poland, Romania and Bulgaria.

Other players from B.C. are Beverly Barnes of Roberts Creek, Beverly Bland of Richmond, Debbie Phelan of New Westminster, Joanne Sargent of Canoe and Sheila Strike of West Vancouver.

With the exception of Mrs. Dobie, Miss Mainwaring and Pat Tatham of Kitchener, the balance of the team will compete in the World Student Games in Moscow, Aug. 16-24.

Norm Vickery of the University of British Columbia will take over coaching duties for the student games from national coach Darlene Currie, who will accompany the three ineligible players home to Canada.

PM Outlines Security Checks

OTTAWA (CP) — Suspected homosexuality, emotional instability, sexual abnormality and financial difficulty are among factors the government considers before clearing any federal employee to handle classified documents.

This information was tabled in the Commons Wednesday by Prime Minister Trudeau in response to questions on security asked April 3 by Erik Nielsen (PC—Yukon).

How great a bearing such factors have is not made clear, but the information says they are "taken into account" to determine whether current or prospective employees are "vulnerable to persuasion, coercion or blackmail."

The ultimate decision on an employee is usually made by deputy department heads and based on rules adopted by former prime minister Lester Pearson in 1963.

Mr. Trudeau said a policy statement approved in 1963 said the government has an obligation to make "every reasonable assurance" that employees entrusted with classified documents are loyal, trustworthy and not susceptible to pressure.

RCMP DECIDES

Outside the government, the RCMP makes all decisions on whether an individual or group should be classified "a security risk," Mr. Trudeau said.

This could be done on the basis of planned or actual espionage or sabotage, efforts to gather intelligence information about Canada, attempts to create civil disorder, efforts to bring about governmental change "within Canada or elsewhere" by force, violence or criminal action, or activities threatening the country with an actual or potential hostile attack.

No appeal procedure is set down for any federal employee who is stripped of his right to handle classified documents.

But there is a detailed review process under which he is given a chance to "resolve the doubt" with his immediate superiors.

If he fails, his case goes first to the deputy department head, then a three-member panel of the so-called Interdepartmental Committee on Security and Intelligence, and finally the minister.

NO BLACKBALLING

Mr. Trudeau denied, in response to a number of Mr. Nielsen's questions, that there is any policy or system of blackballing public servants or keeping files on them.

Many of the questions sought information on the operations and staff of the Police and Security Planning and Analysis Group (PSPAG).

The unit, originally called the Security Planning and Research Group, was established in 1970 after the terrorist crisis in Quebec to advise the government on security matters.

Mr. Trudeau, citing the public interest or national security, declined to answer a number of the questions or parts of questions.

One falling into this category asked whether the PSPAG, the armed forces or the RCMP has investigated, studied, observed or inquired into the activities of organizations such as labor unions.

Another asked whether the PSPAG has ever issued a precis, analysis or report on the labor situation in Quebec or on any individual unions.

However, Mr. Trudeau answered with a simple "no" when asked whether the PSPAG keeps files on opposition political parties or the auditor-general, the independent reviewer of government spending.

$76,408 Auto For PM

OTTAWA (CP) — The car used by Prime Minister Trudeau cost $76,408, the Commons was told Wednesday. The price included "security and technical equipment."

In a written reply to questions from Sinclair Stevens (PC — York-Simcoe), Supply Minister Jean-Pierre Goyer said the Cadillac was purchased from General Motors of Canada and modifications were made by an Ohio firm. Tenders were not invited.

The automobile, used by the Queen and other visiting heads of state, has bulletproof glass and is armor plated. It also has two telephones.

WILL LIZ AND DICK FORGIVE AND FORGET?

NEW YORK (UPI) — Richard Burton, described as "very much on the wagon," and Elizabeth Taylor will reunite in Rome next week after a week-long public separation, it was reported today.

The New York Post said the couple will meet in Rome July 20, where Miss Taylor will make a movie, and will probably reconcile their marriage.

The story said Burton was already on his way to Italy and he was hopeful of putting their nine-year marriage back together.

Backyard Boat Goes to Sea

PLYMOUTH, England — A 26-year-old woman in Plymouth is preparing for a double Atlantic crossing in a 24-foot yacht she designed and built herself in the backyard of her home.

Charmaine Johnson, from Hartwell in Essex, plans to set out Saturday and sail alone to Newport, R.I., and then turn around and sail back to Plymouth.

LOS ANGELES — Four passengers have filed a $2-million class-action suit over a dysentery-plagued Caribbean cruise.

Mr. and Mrs. Max Dworitz of North Hollywood, Calif., and Mr. and Mrs. Bernie Bader of Los Angeles filed the suit on behalf of all passengers on the cruise. It was filed in Los Angeles Superior Court against the Miami-based Norwegian Caribbean Lines.

It alleges that the cruise lines knew or should have known that a dysentery virus was on board the liner Skyward and that the firm did not warn passengers of the danger.

EDMONTON — Charges will not be pressed in a case involving alleged discrimination against three black members of the Edmonton Eskimos football club, says Ed Molstead, a defensive end for the team and a lawyer.

Defensive halfback Larry Highbaugh said he and veterans Larry Watkins and Tyrone Walls had been refused rental accommodation in an Edmonton apartment building after being told earlier by telehpone there were vacancies. Highbaugh said the apartment manager told him "we don't accept your kind."

Apartment manager Walter Rosenthal said he denied the men accommodation for several reasons but not because they are black. He said the players were "dressed in a filthy manner and that's why I wasn't interested."

Judge Joe Eaton said that prosecutors will supply at government expense a courtroom nurse and a cot so Lansky, 71, can rest. He said court sessions will be limited to about four hours a day.

No date was set for the trial on charges in income tax evasion.

ROME — Giacarlo Bornigia called off his topless beauty contest because so many hundreds of girls showed up to enter he could not view them all before the contest.

LOS ANGELES — A patrol car raced through the central section of the city on an emergency mission and two officers dashed into city hall. A police helicopter hovered over the building's spire, ready to save Mayor Thomas Bradley.

A receptionist explained that police supervisors were testing the "hot line" that flashes the trouble signal to headquarters, and apprently forgot to tell the officer on the receiving end it was only a test.

Meat Preservative Clamps Set

Times Ottawa Bureau

OTTAWA — The federal government plans to limit and in some cases eliminate the use of two controversial preservatives in cured meat products.

Affected are nitrites and nitrates, two related groups of preservatives that are suspected by some scientists of leading to the production in humans of nitrosafines, a potent cancer-causing compound.

Starting this fall, Ottawa proposes to limit the amount the two preservatives that can be added to cured meat products such as side bacon, sausages and canned meats.

At present, there is no limit on how much of the two compounds can be added to meats. There is a restriction on how much can remain in meats after curing — 200 parts per million of nitrites.

GUNFIRE DISRUPTS ROCK CONCERT

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Gunfire interrupted an outdoor rock music concert, apparently striking three teen-agers and stampeding a crowd of about 500 persons in the Watts district, police said.

Police said the concert had been in progress for about an hour Wednesday night when four young men suddenly fired about 20 rounds with handguns, apparently at random.

They said two men arrested by housing authority guards were booked for investigation of assault with a deadly weapon.

Call Girl-Linked Lord 'Definite Security Risk'

LONDON (AP) — A British commission reported today that two former ministers involved in a sex scandal with prostitutes betrayed no state secrets but one of them, Lord Lambton, had become a definite security risk.

In a report to Prime Minister Edward Heath the five-man commission said Lambton — a cousin of Foreign Secretary Sir Alex Douglas-Home — had become "wide open to blackmail" because of taking drugs in a call girl's boudoir.

But a second, and more serious, risk was that the drug may have led to unconscious disclosures of information that would have been valuable to foreign spies.

Lambton, 50, married with six children, was air force minister in the defence department.

The commission said the second member of the government who admitted using call girls, Lord Jellicoe, had been doing so occasionally and discreetly.

"His conduct was neither criminal nor abnormal" and involved only minimal risk of blackmail. He had in no way become a security risk, the commission concluded.

Jellicoe, 55, had been a member of Heath's cabinet and was government leader in the House of Lords. Twice-married, he has seven children.

The security commission under Lord Diplock was asked by Heath five weeks ago to check into the scandal that had blown up around Lambton and Jellicoe in order to establish if secrets may have been leaked directly or indirectly to potential enemies.

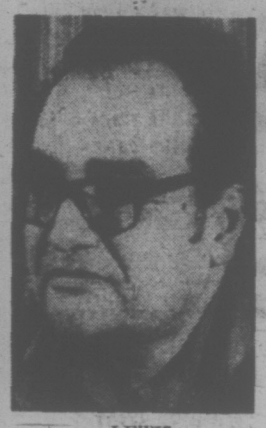
LAWRENCE LEWIS RITES SATURDAY



LEWIS
. . . former chief

Funeral services will be held in Cape Mudge village Saturday for Lawrence Lewis, former chief of the Cape Mudge Indian Band, who died in Victoria Wednesday.

Lewis served eight years as chief of the band: from 1960 to 1964 and 1968 to 1972. He was active in Native Brotherhood work as well as in local organization activities.

He spearheaded a movement last year to incorporate Cape Mudge as Canada's first Indian municipality. The bid failed by only a narrow margin of village votes.

Retirement Ruling

OTTAWA (CP) — The Supreme Court of Canada has ruled that compulsory, unilateral retirment is not a form of dismissal subject to arbitration under a collective working agreement.

The court allowed an appeal by Bell Canada Ltd. which had given L. V. Garvin, an employee of almost 36 years, retirement under the company pension. Garvin was 61 when he was retired in April, 1970.

Garvin, submitted a grievance saying he had been dismissed without sufficient or reasonable cause.

Arbitrator Paul Weiler later determined that the retirment was a form of dismissal and it was arbitrable under the union's working contract with Bell.

The Supreme Court ruled that Weiler erred in his finding and that his decision was made without jurisdiction under the working agreement.

N.W.T. Cable TV Cut

YELLOWKNIFE, N.W.T. (CP) — In four days, cable television service to the Northwest Territories' only high-rise apartment will be cut off.

"We finally said to heck with it," said Brian North, general manager of MacKenzie Media, the supplying company.

The cutoff will mean residents of the 100-unit apartment will be left with programming from CBC Vancouver via the Anik telecommunications satellite rather than that station plus CFRN Edmonton and a local station.

Last February, MacLab Enterprises of Edmonton built cable outlets into each suite and hooked them up to a rooftop antenna.

But as cable service was installed it was discovered that not only the 30 subscribers were being served, but also every apartment in the block.

Oldtimer Recalls Fishing Strife Of An Earlier Era

By PAT DUFOUR
Times Staff

The date was 1910. The easterners had been brought in by the Canadian Fishing Company of Vancouver after the fishermen had formed a union and struck over poor working conditions and meagre pay.

Sprightly in spite of his years, "Dolph" Prince of 20 Menzies was a dory fisherman aboard the Celestial Empire when he and his mates struck.

"We were being paid a cent a pound when we unionized and struck," he recalls. "We were asking for another quarter of a cent a pound but it wasn't really the money that concerned us."

★

"As well as fishing we were doing all kinds of work — unloading the ship, putting fish in boxes, loading cranes while hundreds of unemployed stood around watching us."

In an effort to force the fishermen back to work, Prince says the company brought 50 Nova Scotia fishermen to fish from the Celestial Empire and their other ships.

To dodge trouble the easterners were taken by boxcar to Seattle. The boxcar was opened dockside and the men rushed aboard the boats.

The 50 strike-breakers weren't enough so the company brought out another 250 to Seattle.

★

"This time we'd got wind of what they were doing," Prince reports. "We all went down to the dock and hammered on the car.

"Boys, you're scabbing on us," we told them.

"Every man went up and joined the union. That ended the strike right there."

Tied up at Fishermen's Wharf, the Celestial Empire's rusting hull bears the scars of her checkered career which has ranged from a deep sea trawler working out of England in 1906, a halibut boat, tug and charter vessel.

"On our second trip we drowned a man," he recalls, "One of her 10 dories capsized in a storm.

"The guy in the bow of the dory — he was a huge Swede — held on to the strap that we always had in the bottom of the dory. But his mate in the stern was caught by a hook. It got him and pulled him down with the gear."

Another dory managed to rescue the Swede.

"I've still got that picture in my mind now," Prince says. "He was jumping up and down, and we had to pretty well knock him out before we could get him aboard."

The next day of fishing, Prince's mate, still shaken from the disaster, refused to work.

★

"I never saw a more scared man in my life," Prince relates.

In spite of this stormy baptism, Prince never considered playing it safe and "swallowing the anchor."

He went on to earn his master's ticket for 150-ton freighter and tow boats, defying the treacherous Pacific waters for almost five decades before coming ashore for the last time.

Death And Taxes Unsure

Arthur Petersen's patience is being taxed.

He's been waiting four months for notification from the federal income tax department that he is alive.

But as far as the department is concerned, he's resting in peace empty-handed.

Petersen received on April 19 a letter from the department addressed to "The Estate of the Late Arthur F. Petersen."

It noted that to avoid further delay in the processing of the "above-named taxpayer's income tax return," a number of declarations were required from those administering the estate at 1635 Cook.

"I just about fainted, I felt my pulse, but there was no doubt, I was still alive," Petersen said.

That decided, more financial considerations took precedence, and questions arose about where in fact his tax returns had gone.

Four months have passed since Petersen's untimely "death" and he still hasn't found out.

But the income tax office here, after expressing incredulity over the "late" Mr. Petersen's phone call, has guaranteed that a tracer has been sent out and the return should be forthcoming.

Vessel Damaged During Detention

By ROLAND MORGAN
Times Staff

The rusty-U.S. Navy ship Marysville, suspected of involvement in British Columbia's largest-ever hashish and marijuana haul, was formally handed back to San Francisco pornographic movie-maker Alex DeRenzy today—with an extra dent.

Part of the superstructure of the 1944-vintage, 480-ton escort vessel was smashed while she was being "detained" by authorities at Esquimalt.

The damage, and other disruptions in the vessel caused by a three-day RCMP search for drugs, was believed to be at the foot of the delay in DeRenzy getting aboard his ship bought at a 1971 U.S. Navy surplus sale.

DeRenzy was in lengthy conference with police at Victoria Subdivision's headquarters all morning.

Thousands of dollars worth of sophisticated film-making equipment which had been seized by police, along with some films, were also being negotiated over.

The question of fueling the ship was also believed to be an issue.

The twin-engined diesel vessel requires at least 7,000 gallons of fuel, which could cost as much as $2,000.

Crew at the navy fueling depot said they did not believe a civilian vessel could be supplied with government fuel.

It is not known whether the vessel is fully seaworthy.

She was transferred from the Esquimalt base to Colwood fueling jetty under tow and there have been reports that one engine is out of action, along with other mechanical problems.

There is also the question of how DeRenzy, a U.S. citizen only released from custody on $7,500 bail two days ago, will provision his aging craft.

A menagerie of birds — 13 of them — is also at issue. The valuable parrots and cockatoos are being looked after by Victoria SPCA, who say the birds must be quarantined for a month and cannot be taken to the U.S.

The Marysville was seized 12 days ago in Quatsino Sound along with fishing vessel the Gondola in a police and military swoop which made drug-chasing history because it involved a navy vessel.

Ask The Times

Q. We're often told that women hold the purse strings and control most of the world's money. Could you tell me some of the weathiest women of the world?—A.M.P.

A. The world's wealthiest woman was probably Princess Wilhemina Helena Pauline Maria of Orange-Nassau, former Queen of the Netherlands, who died in 1962. Her fortune was estimated at more than $200 million. The largest published estate ever left by a woman was $95 million. It belonged to the notorious miser, Henrietta (Hetty) Howland Green, who lived off cold porridge because she was too mean to heat it. Her son had to have a leg amputated because of the delays in finding a free medical clinic. Her will was found in a box with four pieces of soap. She had a balance of $31,400,000 in one bank alone.

Commercial Tax Hike Supported by Pollen

Victoria Mayor Peter Pollen supports the B.C. government's move to shift more financial responsibility for municipal services from residential properties to commercial properties.

The shift will come with the implementation of an amendment to the Assessment Equalization Act passed in the spring session of the legislature which will take effect following reassessments in 1974. Assessments on commercial properties would rise to 50 per cent of market values as a result of the move.

Businessmen have described the move as a severe blow but Pollen feels the shift is just.

He said businesses "are better able to adjust to increased assessments" because they can pass tax increases directly on to their customers while home-owners and apartment dwellers must bear the full weight of higher taxes.

Because the assessment increases will be felt throughout the province, competing business communities will have to bear the tax increase equally, Pollen said.

He noted also that businesses can deduct their property taxes from their federal taxes and, "with the federal government spending money with abandon in the Maritimes and Quebec," it is "refreshing to see" some public revenues staying at home.

Earlier this week members of the city's Central Business District Advisory Committee expressed concern that the tax increase will adversely affect development of downtown Victoria.

Shopping Zone Bylaw Delivered to Council

A bylaw going to Victoria city council today will create a special zone for neighborhood shopping areas.

Taking nearly a year to prepare, the bylaw is aimed at preventing pockets of dense development in residential areas.

Areas particularly affected are the commercial enclaves at the Oak Bay Junction, Quadra and Hillside, Douglas and Hillside and the "auto strip" reaching down Douglas to the city limits.

A spokesman for the city planning department said the bylaw would make "most of the existing buildings non-conforming", that is, if the buildings were destroyed or removed they could not be rebuilt with their present floor-space ratios or set-backs.

At present these properties are in the commercial zone, identified as C-1, which the planning department spokesman described as "the most liberal" zone in the city. It permits building up to property lines and a floor-space ratio of 3 to 1. Buildings in C-1 can rise to 140 feet.

Under the new "neighborhood shopping districts" zone, the floor-space ratio is limited to 1.4 to 1 and heights are limited to 75 feet.

The bylaw also picks out specific lots and puts them into special categories, such as those for motel and gas station, where such uses are now in effect.

Police Get Troubleshooter

A Lower Mainland police chief has been called in to solve problems plaguing the Central Saanich municipal police force, Mayor Archie Galbraith said Wednesday.

Galbraith said Smith will study "what we require now in the way of personnel and equipment and also the whole long-term development of the force."

Smith's recommendations will be discussed by council, he added.

Central Saanich council voted June 25 to have a professional study of the force done to try to sort out some of the problems that have been plaguing it this year, following the resignation of former chief John Gelling May 28.

Three days later the B.C. Labor Relations Board ruled that police constable James Earl, fired six months earlier, must be reinstated with full back pay.

The municipality's police commission was also ordered to stop "using coercion or intimidation of any kind" in connection with its policemen's union membership.

That decision in turn was appealed and a B.C. Supreme Court ruled the board had no jurisdiction over police forces.

On Tuesday a notice of appeal was filed by the Labor Relations Board.

Galbraith described Smith as "an ideal man" to examine the problems of the six-man unionized force.

"Some of us from the police commission, went to visit him in Delta earlier and we were very impressed with his force," said Galbraith.

Smith joined a six-man Delta force 17 years ago and the squad has since grown to nearly 100.

Stardust Damage $1M

The freighter Irish Stardust was suffering more than $1 million damage when she limped into Victoria harbor Jan. 25.

The hull was ripped open and there was a four-foot gash in the 500-ton-capacity oil tank.

The gash would have been impossible to repair on a temporary basis, testimony given in Victoria provincial court disclosed today.

Andrew Smith, the man who co-ordinated repairs to the Stardust, said it was impossible to patch the gash because of its irregular shape.

The trial reconvened today after a more than two month adjournment.

Judge William Ostler will hear testimony today and Friday and the trial is expected to finish Monday.

On Monday also Ostler is expected to pronounce sentence on Captain James Caird, skipper of the Stardust, found guilty in May of failing to report an oil spill to a pollution prevention officer in Nanaimo.

In Smith's testimony for the defence he said workers at Yarrows Shipyards in Esquimalt pumped more than 100 tons of oil out of the Stardust tank while it was in drydock.

Inmate Admits Bank Robbery

Jon Donald McDermott, 30, the man who said he staged seven bank holdups so he could go to prison and write a book leading to prison reform, was sentenced to 12 years in prison for six of those holdups when he appeared in court April 16, 1970.

But the seventh armed robbery charge was worded incorrectly, Judge William Ostler ruled in 1970. The charge said McDermott had robbed a Calgary bank, but Ostler ruled the charge must say the man robbed a specific person in the bank.

McDermott appeared in court Wednesday to plead guilty to the re-worded charge.

McDermott's statement's in court three years ago — that he wanted to write a book about prison — led to police questions about a possible conspiracy.

McDermott cleared up the matter by saying he was the only man involved in the seven bank holdups committed between Jan. 5 and March 31, 1970.

The Calgary bank was robbed of more than $5,000 March 9, 1970, when McDermott, carrying a handgun, demanded that a woman teller empty all the money in the till into an attache case.

McDermott told the judge Wednesday he had served 40 months of his sentence and that his prison record was excellent."

He said he had been out on work passes for 180 days and that he had been teaching school. McDermott, eligible for parole in April, 1974, wants to be allowed to go to university in January, 1974.

Ostler said he was concerned that if a 12 year concurrent sentence for the Calgary holdup was imposed now, it might hurt McDermott's chances for parole.

The judge remanded him until Aug. 1 so a pre-sentence report could be prepared.

Food-of-Future Rules Drawn

OTTAWA (CP) — After several months delay in the inner sanctum of the federal bureaucracy, the government has released proposed regulations to establish nutritional and labelling guidelines for the foods of the future, meat products made out of vegetable proteins like soybeans.

As already reported, the new regulations would treat non-meat and all-meat products exactly the same when it comes to the minimum protein content.

Thus, the new regulations would require that all-meat uncooked sausages contain a minimum of 10 per cent protein, with a protein rating of 25.

The same minimum protein content and protein rating applies to the products "resembling" fresh sausage but made completely or partially of vegetable proteins like wheat or soybeans.

The regulations would also require that the vegetable protein material contain about the same amount of certain essential vitamins and minerals as the meat it is replacing. And they set out the minimum vitamin and mineral content requirements.

Also as expected, the federal department of consumer and corporate affairs has devised regulations that would require any meat substitute products be labelled as such.

For completely non-meat "beef" patties, the label would have to read "Synthetic beef patties." If there is any picture of the patties on the package, the label would have to note next to the picture "contains no meat."

For meat products containing both meat and substitute protein, the label will have to describe the product by using the main constituents in descending order of proportion of protein source.

For example, a soyaburger containing ground beef and textured soya would have to be described as "meat and soya burger" or "meat an soya patties."

It might be noted that the labelling regulations would allow manufacturers to use the general term "meat" or "poultry" instead of the specific meats, but the non-meat protein would have to be specified: wheat, soya, egg, milk, etc.

The labels of the meat-substitute products would also have to carry the complete list of ingredients, including the names of added vitamins and minerals.

But manufacturers would not be allowed to list the amounts, or advertise the amounts, of the added vitamins or minerals.

Cosmetic Prices Hit

OTTAWA (CP)—As far as Jack Marshall (PC-Humber-St. George's-St. Barbe) is concerned, cosmetic consumers could save a bundle if they realized that the main difference between that exotic moisturizer and the five-and-dime variety often is only the price.

The former businessman asked Health Minister Marc Lalonde in the commons Tuesday to table the formulas for various health and beauty aids. Lalonde replied that although he does not use hairspray and cosmetics much he will "certainly look into this matter."

Consumer affairs minister Herb Gray promised similar action after Marshall asked him to investigate steady price increases in personal—and health-care products.

Outside the Commons, Marshall said he bought two cans of hairspray, one for 79 cents and another for $3, and sent them to the health department's Food and Drug Directorate for analysis.

The department replied that the two products are similar in general composition, containing between 30 and 40 components in slightly different proportions.

Marshall said cosumers should write the government to complain about the spread in prices of otherwise similar products.

Health—and personal-care costs have risen five per cent since June, 1972, Statistics Canada reported Tuesday.

Homemade Rum Balls A Sophisticated Treat

By MARY MOORE

Within two weeks' time I received four requests for rum balls. One contained a sample. I discovered that the German bakery in Hamilton charges 30c apiece for them; the same in a Dutch bakery in Ottawa.

With two samples to copy from I went to work on this expensive confection and made a reasonable facsimile — one of which Maureen is flirting with tipsyness right now.

Some of our readers will not approve of my flippancy but I am here to serve all. These will be ever so popular with your guests.

RUM BALLS (36)

2 7-oz. pkgs. thin chocolate wafers about 4½ c. crumbs not packed
1 c. ground pecans (OR walnuts) (1 c. not packed)
1 c. icing sugar
½ c. corn syrup
¼ c. cocoa
½ c. rum
1 to 1½ two-oz. bottles chocolate shot (trimits)

Reduce wafers to finest crumbs in blender or crush between sheets of wax paper to a powder with rolling pin.

I ground my pecans in the blender. You could use grinder or rolling pin if you wish.

In a very large bowl mix all ingredients thoroughly. Let stand for 10 minutes. With your fingers shape into 36 balls. (This is a messy job and some of our fastidious cooks will prefer to wear rubber gloves.) Have ready the chocolate shot on a large plate and roll each ball in shot to completely coat. Place on sheet of wax paper to set and dry.

To serve put each rum ball in a fluted paper cup — preferably using different colors.

Save this recipe for special occasions because these are actually unbaked cookies and may be made well in advance for a sophisticated party.

Outdoor Carpet Growing

One of the saddest misconceptions about gardening is that, while shrubs and trees are constantly demanding mulch and clamoring to have their terminal buds scratched, grass is simply laid down like wall-to-wall broadloom and forgotten.

It would help, of course, if once a lawn was laid out flat, it would remain flat instead of sinking in some places, heaving in others, and generally carrying on like a harpooned whale. Concealed hollows invariably contain potential hazards; more than one mower has been summarily abandoned with the dog's beef bone or leash jammed irrevocably between its blades. To make matters worse, someone in the family always insists on installing lily ponds at the bottoms of inclines, ponds just deep enough to engulf a fast-running mower up to the handles.

One of the first problems of lawn care is whether to leave the clippings on the lawn or remove them. Half your neighbors will maintain that the clippings provide the lawn with nutrients; the other half will insist that accumulated clippings deprive the lawn of necessary sunshine. Whatever your inclinations, do not argue with anyone wielding pruning shears.

If you do choose to remove the clippings, you will need a grass catcher, which is a piece of striped awning material hooked onto the mower. When it is not falling off, the catcher collapses periodically and must be kicked along with your free foot. This flattens the grass nicely so that the mower rolls harmlessly over, accomplishng nothing but raisng a blister on your thumb.

Actually the disposition of clipping is rarely a problem, as, more often than not, the green grass doesn't grow all around. Instead of forming a verdant carpet under the elm tree, it concentrates exclusively on poking itself up through cracks in the front walk, and your entire lawn maintenance program will consist of digging it out with a fish fork.

Hot Temper Shared

DEAR ABBY: Yesterday I received a nasty letter from my mother. She tore me apart becaue I forgot to send my father a card or some kind of remembrance on his birthday. (It skipped my mind until the next day, so I called up to apologize.) My father seemed to understand, but my mother was furious. Now comes this letter telling me I'm a thoughtless, ungrateful, selfish kid, and she'd never forgive me.

Abby, I felt just terrible. I have been supporting myself for nearly a year. I live 200 miles from home and have a very good paying job for a kid my age (I'm 19). My folks were always so proud of me — until now.

When I got mom's letter I dashed off one to her saying if that's the way she felt about me I would get out of her life. Now I'm sorry I sent it.

Do you think she'll forgive me? What should I do now? — Feeling Low

DEAR FEELING: Of course she'll forgive you. Write her again and tell her that you wrote that letter before you had a chance to cool off. She'll understand. You probably inherited your hot temper from her.

DEAR ABBY: Recently my wife and I went to the office of a physician by appointment. It was our first visit there. It was a nice morning, and on entering the waiting room I said: "Good morning, everybody!"

There were about a dozen people of all ages sitting there, and not a single person responded to my greeting! I thought perhaps I had come upon a group of deaf and dumb people, but they all answered when their names were called by the receptionist.

My question: Has it gotten to the point in this country where nobody speaks to anybody except by appointment? — Senior Citizen.

DEAR CITIZEN: I'm surprised that out of a dozen people, not one returned your friendly greeting. But why make it an American trait? Such an unexpected burst of cheerfulness on entering a doctor's waiting room would probably have met with the same lack of response in England, France, or Italy.

DEAR ABBY: I've been putting this off for so many years I am ashamed of myself, but now I must do something about it.

When I was very young I had an illegitimate daughter. When she was 2, I married a fine man, and we had three children of our own. All four children think my husband is their father.

My husband never legally adopted my first child. She just used his last name, and it has gone on like that ever since.

This first daughter is now 44 years old, and one day in order to get old age benefits she will have a birth certificate. I seem to recall that when she was an infant I destroyed it for fear she (or someone else) would find it.

I don't want her to know the circumstances of her birth, but I think I am cornered. Can you help me? — Troubled Mind.

DEAR TROUBLED: The laws vary in different states. Talk to a lawyer. He may be able to help you get another birth certificate without disclosing the facts. It's worth a try.

The Bahamas are a chain of more than 700 isalnds, starting some 50 miles off the Florida coast. Twenty-nine of the islands are inhabited.

The Bahamas were discovered by Columbus in 1492 and colonized during the 18th and 19th centuries. In a 15th century ship's log the area was described as bajamar, Spanish for 'shallow sea.' This is how the Bahamas got their name.

Bahamas — Fact Finder, also attractively illustrated, lists the average temperature and rainfall during every month of the year. It tells you what clothing to bring, which native dishes to try and it talks about currency, traffic regulations and so on. The folder also lists Bahamian holidays and special events like the Goombay Summer. This lasts from June till September and features weekly parades and street dancing in Nassau and Freeport. There is also a paragraph about each of the out islands.

Symphony Shoppe Relocates in Oak Bay Location

By AUDREY JOHNSON
Times Staff

Wrapped up in the $4,000 cheque recently handed to the Victoria Symphony Society by the women's committee, was 25 years of earnest dedication that has accrued many times that amount on behalf of the orchestra.

Keeping pace with the new era that has seen the Symphony Society move to a downtown business office, the women have also moved their most profitable venture to a new more accessable location.

The Dunlop-Dungeon Boutique which occupied the basement at 1960 Lansdowne Road since its founding five years ago, has been transferred to 2073 Cadboro Bay Road.

A part of the little business area adjacent to Oak Bay Junior Secondary School, it is now to be known simply as Symphony Shoppe. Its hours have been extended also from two to four days a week — Wednesday through Saturday.

Any attic treasure or white elephant is grist for the botique and in return it probably has something you will fancy — from a kitchen gadget to an odd piece of rare china or a spare television set.

Mrs. Evelyn McGee, president for the third year in a row, says that donations will gladly be picked up.

Over its five-year existence the shop alone has brought in something over $12,000.

At the moment, says Mrs. McGee, the committee is busy with plans for Symphony Week.

This is to be officially declared at city hall as the week of Sept. 24 through Sept. 30, culminating in the first pair of 1973-74 symphony concerts.

Special decorations downtown and events are being arranged for the week and midway — Sept. 26 — an elaborate "fabulous fashions for fall" show will be staged at Empress Hotel.

The intriguing title is the invention of Mrs. McGee who has a talent for alliterative phrase-making.

Besides wine and cheese parties, the annual ball and other fund-raising events, other responsibilities are shouldered by the women.

These include selling programs at both the Royal Theatre and the McPherson where the symphony's international recital series is staged, providing overload services at the symphony office, floral presentations for guest artists and arranging meet-the-artist receptions at the McPherson.

This year the women's committee has been written into the new Symphony Society constitution, its president becomes automatically a member of the executive and a second representative sits on the board.

Mrs. McGee particularly welcomes these changes because "we must be prepared to move with the symphony in its progress toward professionalism," she says.

She was followed by Frances Mara, Patsy Jennings, Margaret Roxborough and Kay Barraclough. The last named is now honorary-president.

Among others was Mrs. Gertrude Stocker who, like Mrs. Mayhew is a life member.

Among others who have served were Dorothy Laundy, Marian Edmison, Rhoda Thompson, Enid Webster, Daisie Thirlwall and Doreen Burrows have served in this capacity.

The present executive under Mrs. McGee, includes Joan Neville-Smith, secretary, Donna Davenport, treasurer and Mrs. Thirlwall and Jackie Gibbs, vice presidents.

Bad Boy Idiom Takes a Beating

By HANK BURCHARD

WASHINGTON (WP) — They don't make bad boys like they used to. When I was a bad boy, which wasn't all that long ago, my bad-boy friends and I were skulkers. When we went out in the night to have fun being bad, we were at pains to be as quiet and invisible as possible. We thought, with good and sufficient reason, that every citizen's eye regarded us with suspicion, and that behind every window lurked an upright man ready to raise his hand against us.

We regarded this as unfortunate but reasonable, and when we were caught, we would collapse in sobbing contrition—partly because we felt evil and scared and partly because it was good tactics.

Well, I caught a couple of modern bad boys the other night and it was not the same. One of them was 13 and the other was 15. They came through our neighborhood in Arlington, Va., about 2 a.m. on a week night, walking down the middle of the street looking furtive and making slightly less noise than a parade. I watched them turn their noses up at my junker, try the handles on my wife's locked car, and then move on to the next three cars down the street.

By the time I could get my Daisy B-B pistol and slip out the back door, they had finished rifling one of the cars and were in the next. Moving with all the stealth of an elephant on roller skates, I walked up to them as they disposed of the last car in line.

They were sailing stolen record albums into the bushes and commenting on the musical taste of their victims when I leaped out at them.

"Hold it right there if you don't want to get shot!" I roared in my best boot-camp bellow. They held it. I hustled them into the house and called the police.

The boys sat in my living room looking smaller than they had when I jumped them, and seeming so apprehensive that by the time the police arrived I was sorry I had called them.

That feeling, evoked by memories of nights when I had been similarly situated, evaporated within minutes after the police came in. The boys brightened at the sight of the officers. It wasn't being caught that had so distressed them, it was being in the clutches of a crazy citizen of unknown propensities.

When I was a budding felon, the arrival of the police signaled failure; it meant real trouble; it meant they'd find out my real name; that there would be a session with Judge Reid; that—most of all—there would be a session with my father, a West Texas plainsman who was powerfully direct in such situations. But to these boys the arrival of the police seemed to mean succor, respite, a return to normalcy. They began to make comments on upright, uptight Harry Homeowner. They complained to the officers that they were the victims of an assault with a deadly weapon.

That made me reel in disorientation even before the boys freely admitted—almost boasted of—breaking into the cars, although they disputed my count. To top it off, all the policemen, and they arrived in satisfying numbers, were younger than I. Policemen are supposed to be older than a person.

I was relieved when the kindly gray-haired sergeant arrived. I was even more relieved when he adopted a stern manner with the boys and ordered them to stand up, and put out their cigarettes. (I put out mine also.)

I was positively weak-kneed when he searched the living room and found a .22 calibre air pistol the older boy had hidden under my easy chair.

The sergeant, favoring me with that look professionals reserve for deserving amateurs, informed me the weapon was lethal. The boys said, at first, they had found the gun in somebody's yard up the street.

Although I am a lifelong reader of Dick Tracy's Crimstopper's Notebook failing to frisk my downycheeked desperados was only the first of my mistakes that night; I also went out and tried the handles of my wife's car. Never mind what the fingerprint man said when I confessed to that.

The hubbub woke my wife, who sat in the next room and listened sadly as the boys talked. Still in the presence of the police, they told each other they were dumb to stop when I surprised them, dumb to get caught, damned unlucky. They were aggravated when made to stop smoking, aggravated when I offered coffee to the police but not to them. They discussed the present as well as past and future offences.

"You're just digging yourself in deeper, boys," an officer said. But the youngsters gabbed on.

What could the boys have been thinking of? Didn't they know all these things were likely to be repeated to the judge, that such bravado goes directly to the point — their attitudes — with which a juvenile judge is primarily concerned? In my day, we always concerned ourselves with how thick we could lay on tears of repentance so as to influence the police to say redeeming things about us to the judge.

In the following days I learned that the boys are my neighbors. One lives up the street and the other a few blocks over. The neighborhood, their neighborhood, our neighborhood, is like the one I grew up in. Their fathers and those of my bad-boy friends did.

The younger boy even looks a lot like I did at his age, only he's not fat. He's sassy, observant and articulate; the sort of fellow who might grow up to be a newspaper reporter.

Among the police officers with whom I spoke were the one who was the rookie crossing guard when I was a rookie in elementary school, and several who had had occasion to arrest me when I was what they used to call a lad.

Yes, they said, bad boys are different these days. No, they said, they don't know why.

Little Things Count In Battle of Bulge

KINGSTON, Ont. (CP) — The minor details of eating habits are the things to watch when trying to lose weight, says Swedish physiologist Dr. Perolof Astrand.

For example, drinking whole milk instead of skim milk can add four pounds of fat each year. Taking sugar in coffee amounts to a seven-pound weight increase for a two-cup-a-day coffee drinker.

Astrand, chairman of the department of physiology at the Swedish College of Physical Education in Stockholm, was here for a conference. He said that weight loss is all a matter of small increments.

Astrand was critical of faddish diets. They achieve rapid weight loss through reduction of starch and water content of the body.

These carbohydrate-free, protein diets were dangerous because they might lead to hypoglycemia — or low blood sugar. The nervous system and brain rely for "food" on starches which are broken down to sugars. When there is insufficient starch, the body begins to break down its proteins which make up muscles. This results in less efficiency, depression and hunger.

Weight must be lost slowly, he said. It takes years to put it on so one cannot expect to lose it in a month.

Being 15 to 20 pounds overweight is not as dangerous a condition as many people believe, unless a person has a weak heart or high blood pressure.

Astrand advised a balanced diet of about 2,500 calories a day which should include necessary vitamins and minerals. The diet should be combined with a regular exercise program. Walking just a mile a day will cause a weight loss of 12 pounds in a year.

Suntan Ritual Done for Status

NEW YORK (NYT) — It goes on all year now, this tanning of the skin, at least for all those who can get to a ski resort or to the Caribbean. But summer, naturally, is the real reason; this is when anyone can get in on it simply by stretching out in one's backyard or on one's roof or at a nearby beach.

And the obsessive way in which virtually everyone works at the process, despite all those warnings about how the sun inexorably ages the skin and can cause skin cancer, tends to bring to mind those other creatures who seem determined to rush to their own doom: lemmings, with their fatal stampede into the sea; salmon, with their battering, exhausting and often lethal journey to headwater streams in order to spawn.

But the comparison is really not quite fair to the lemmings and salmon. They can't help themselves. Caucasians, on the other hand, have been subjecting themselves to the sun in their present fashion for no more than 50 years (some estimates say less than 30).

And anyone who has observed the ordinary ritual on a beach or around a swimming pool — the frequent smearings of some preparation supposed to deepen the tan, the turning of the body as if it were on a spit so that all of it will be darkened — can hardly believe that this is an inevitable process.

Whatever suffering, effort and mess are entailed are welcomed as fervently and about as ecstatically as the early saints embraced martyrdom. Indeed, a dermatologist, Dr. S. W. Beckner, Jr., made the point some years ago that while ancient people offered sacfifices other then themselves to the sun, Americans are busy offering themselves. (He could have added Canadians, Australians and some Europeans.)

What brought this about? For centuries a fair skin had been prized. Would a knight have jousted for a suntanned maiden? (She wasn't called a lady fair for nothing.)

The great mistresses and courtesans, the ones like du Barry and Pompadour, like Liane de Pougy and Cleo de Merode had peaches-and-cream complexions and Queen Marie Antoinette was described as an appealing blend of lilies and roses.

Everyone who had a naturally fair skin prized it (there are a lot of adults around who can recall when a sunbonnet, a picture hat or a parasol was a part of almost every woman's equipment.)

Why the change in thinking? And what about the irony of its coming when white people tended to regard those who had been born with dark skins as inferior, and then these same whites would go out and try to gain dark skins for themselves?

But first, why had a fair skin been prized? According to Beckner, the dermatologist who pointed out that Americans are now sacrificing themselves to the sun, "older cultures regarded tanning and weathering of the skin by sunlight as stigmata of the lower classes."

Then came the industrial revolution. It put the lower classes indoors and their interminable hours with never a vacation gave them a pale and sickly look. Ever so gradually, down through the years, a fair skin began to seem less desirable.

But this was only one factor. Middle-class women began taking jobs in the First World War and it wouldn't do for them to look as if they were about to swoon. Also, as the years brought a shortening in the work hours, everyone could be outdoors more.

Then the thinking almost everywhere seems to have become: the darker the suntan the more leisure involved, the more leisure involved the more wealth in back of it.

Dr. Perry Robins, associate professor of clinical dermatology at New York University Medical Centre, said flatly the other day in his office, "A suntan is a status symbol."

Then there is the belief, sometimes subconscius, that to be out in the sun is healthful because, since sunlight is beneficial and necessary to plants, it must be beneficial and necessary to men. "This belief is absurd," said Robins.

But since the dermatologists know that social pressure to have a browned skin is not going to be resisted, they ask for moderation. "Use discretion", said Robins, who then went on to say it us unfortunate that so many people think they look and feel healthier when they have a tan.

Robins said that persons with skin cancer used to be in their 60s and 70s and that they had to spend many of those years working outdoors. "But now we're getting patients in their 20s and 30s." He estimates there are at least one million new cases a year; this is for all ages.

In urging moderation all the dermatologists said that sunbonnets and hats and parasols are better than nothing but that they really aren't very effective.

"A suntan lotion is much better," said Robins.

All the dermatologists approve of the creams and lotions that block the ultra violet rays and all the big cosmetic houses are now putting out such products and say the demand for them is growing.

None of the dermatologists or cosmetic makers see a return to the thinking that made a fair skin seem an asset. And perhaps that is just as well. In order to have a pale, delicate-looking complexion, French women used to apply leeches to reduce their blood. No wonder they swooned easily.

Couple Fetes Diamond Date

Mr. and Mrs. W. Fred Emery of 3366 Aloha Drive, Esquimalt Lagoon, will be celebrating their 60th wedding anniversary at the home of their daughter and son-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. R. Fitzsimmons, 3917 Cadboro Bay Road on Saturday, July 14 with an open house from 2 to 6 p.m.

Emery was born in Victoria in 1889 and has lived here all his life. He worked in the job-printing department of the Colonist for 43 years. Since his retirement, as a hobby he went into rabbit-breeding and has many trophies for his prize-winning stock.

Mrs. Emery was born in England, moved to Toronto while in her teens and to Victoria at the age of 19, where she has lived since.

The two were married 60 years ago in Belmont United Church.

Hitchhiker Lauds Men

TRURO, N.S. (CP) — Male drivers made it possible for Susan Hess, 26, of Vancouver to hitchhike across Canada. "If it wasn't for the male drivers, who are generally courteous and friendly, I would never have made it across Canada," she said. Of the several hundred drivers who picked her up, only two were women.

Visitor Wondered Where She Could Buy Fleas

By DAVE THOMAS

LONDON (CP) — The information staff of the London Tourist Board patiently deals with about 250,000 travellers who troop in every year to ask questions such as: "How do I get to the Eiffel Tower?"

It's the eight-countries-in-seven days class of tourist who is most often confused and this disorientation explains one of the most common questions: "Do you speak English?"

But even the unharried visitor comes up with some that cause the staff to chuckle.

"How long does the Tube take to get to Edinburgh?" was asked by an American who didn't realize the Scottish capital is 350 miles from here and well beyond the reach of London's subway system.

Then there was the woman who wanted to know, "Where is the market where you can buy fleas?" The girl behind the counter told her that such a bizarre bazaar did not exist but there was Petticoat Lane, a Sunday sale of mixed goods often called the flea market.

RAPID TRANSIT

Perhaps the most amusing incident recalled by the staff occurred last year when a man telephoned to ask how long was the flight from London to Manchester, a city more than 200 miles away. The receptionist reached for her airline schedule and told the caller, "Just a minute."

"Oh, that's quite quick," he said and then hung up.

The Canadian High Commission on Trafalgar Square receives about two letters a week from Canadians wanting to reserve rooms there. They apparently think Canada House is a special hotel for Canadians instead of the offices of the diplomatic delegation.

Others have complained that the high commission's doors are locked during the weekend, like any government office, and one couple came in asking for directions to the non-existent public lunch counter.

BEFORE THE JUDGE

A man who held a four-year-old boy outside a two-storey window by his ankles was fined $500 on a charge of common assault on Wednesday.

Wilfred Alfred Lindsay, 31, was originally charged with assault causing bodily harm but the charge was reduced.

The boy, held outside the window as a form of discipline, was the son of a woman Lindsay was living with. The offence occurred March 5.

Judge Edmond St. Jorre said Lindsay gave the impression of being "a harsh man, cold, selfish and self-centred."

The $500 fine was the maximum penalty St. Jorre could impose. A six-month probation term was also given.

A fan who shot a neighbor's dog because it urinated in his garden was fined $50 in provincial court Wednesday.

The dog is owned by Mrs. Phyllis MacCoy, 2874 Hagel.

Court was told that two dogs — one of them tied up — were fighting in the MacCoy front yard on June 20 when Buck fired the shot.

He told police he was "tired of them urinating on my flower beds."

David Pellerin, no fixed address, involved in a Victoria accident May 7, was fined a total of $635.

Pellerin, 18, crossed over the centre line while driving down Bridge Street near Ellice, the court was told, and ran into another car.

The driver of the other car was taken to hospital with a broken jaw and Pellerin fled across a vacant lot on foot.

He later told police he didn't stay at the accident scene because he had no insurance, no driver's licence and no safety sticker.

Pellerin was charged with failing to remain at the scene of an accident, careless driving, having no insurance, no driver's licence and no safety sticker.

A woman with three small children was fined $300 for shoplifting and told she would have gone to jail if it had not been for the children.

"If you didn't have those three children, you would go straight to jail," Ostler said.

"This is your second offence of this kind and I hope you mean what you say — that you will never do this sort of thing again."

★ ★ ★

Oswald Keith Underwood, 19, of 293 Atkins, was fined a total of $150 when he pleaded guilty to trying to cash a bad cheque.

Underwood was arrested Tuesday after presenting the $75 cheque at The Bay. A call to a bank revealed the man had no account.

Teacher Police Boss

EDMONTON (CP) — Tofan Dublanko, an Edmonton teacher, was chosen as chairman of the Edmonton Police Commission Wednesday.

He replaces Al Edwards who resigned about 10 days ago after criticizing the force administration for moving neither quickly nor thoroughly enough in a recommended reorganization.

Vernon Bomb Site '95% Safe'

VERNON (CP) — A spokesman for the Canadian Forces which finished its search of a Second World War training ground here Wednesday for live bombs said he believed the area now was 95 per cent safe.

Lieut. John Dawson said the 150 personnel from as far away as Winnipeg who took part in the search will leave for home today.

More than 30,000 work hours were spent during the two-month sweep which covered 700 acres, including seven acres underwater.

A total of 64 explosive devices including mortar bombs, grenades and PIAT bombs were found and detonated. A ton of scrap metal was also turned up, including old car parts and beer cans.

VERNON (CP) — Bert Hume, president of Allied Fruit Growers' said Wednesday growers whose cherries were seized Tuesday will lose 10 cents a pound as a result.

British Columbia fruit board inspectors seized about 10 tons of cherries, charging they were about to be illegally exported to Alberta. The board claimed they were being packed and stored in an unlicensed packing house.

Hume said the cherries would have given growers 25 cents a pound, but now will give them only 15 cents a pound.

He said growers are considering various charges to lay against the fruit board, but no charges have been laid.

VANCOUVER (CP) — An avowed Maoist was jailed Wednesday for 30 days when cited in provincial court for contempt.

William Shpikula, 25, first appeared in court Tuesday charged with common assault of two Pinkerton guards May 13.

He refused to stand when ordered by the court officer, prosecutor and twice by Judge Perry Millar.

"I have nothing to say to this bourgeois court. I am not prepared to state my guilt or innocence in a capitalistic court," he said.

Judge Millar ordered Shpikula taken to the cells before he could finish then brought him back 10 minutes later and found him guilty of contempt.

COQUITLAM (CP) — Louise Lora Corrins, of Coquitlam, has been charged with theft of approximately $16,800 by fraudulently converting funds to her own use which were the property of Cartier House Ltd., a rest home, of which she is a director.

VANCOUVER (CP) — Bank robbers netted $2,000 Wednesday in two separate hold-ups.

A bandit armed with a small gun took $1,500 from a branch of the Canadian Imperial Bank of Commerce in the Kitsilano area. A young male suspect was arrested soon after the robbery.

Downtown, a bandit robbed the Toronto Dominion Bank of $500 after threatening clerks with a long-barrelled revolver. The thief fled carrying the money in a paper bag.

VANCOUVER (CP) — A young mother who pleaded guilty to infanticide in the July 24, 1972, campfire death of her 23-day-old baby was placed on three years probation by a British Columbia supreme court judge Wednesday and given a conditional discharge.

Catherine Mary Hoffman will, if she lives up to the terms of the probation order granted by Mr. Justice J. S. Aikins, have no criminal record because of the conditional discharge granted to her.

The 27-year-old mother was found to have been suffering at the time of the death from a psychiatric illness following the birth of her child. She was confined after her baby's death to Riverview Hospital. Last month she was ruled fit to stand trial and came to court in Vancouver where she pleaded guilty to the infanticide charge.

OTTAWA DIDN'T HEAR WHAT CITY FIRM ASKED

After four years of futile attempts, Audiotronics Enterprises Ltd. of Victoria has finally learned from Ottawa the steps needed to bid on government contracts.

During the four years, Audiotronics sent letters to Ottawa asking about bidding procedures for supplying hearing aids to the department of veterans affairs.

In each case the department replied the firm was on a list of possible suppliers and would be informed when contracts were let. However the contracts were let without informing the Victoria company.

After a series of fruitless letters and telephone calls to Ottawa, company president Malcolm McSorley contacted David Anderson, former member of Parliament for Esquimalt - Saanich, who contacted Jean-Pierre Goyer, federal minister of supply services.

Goyer said the Victoria firm's equipment would have to be approved by the National Research Council before a bid could be made.

"If these samples meet the performance standards, they will be qualified and the firm will be asked to tender on all future requirements of the federal government," Goyer said in a letter to Anderson.

Pollen Defends CIL Deal

Victoria Mayor Peter Pollen Wednesday defended the proposed CIL Properties' Laurel Point complex as "an excellent development."

He said a letter sent by Ald. Percy Frampton to Premier Barrett asking the province to override the land use contract and acquire the property is "nothing short of ridiculous."

"I don't think Ald. Frampton knows what he's about," Pollen told a press conference.

Although he supports the government's land policy, Pollen does not think the government should "go out buying bits and pieces of land here and there just because it suits some little interest group."

On Frampton's move, Pollen said he could not recall a case of an alderman petitioning the province to undo a decision made by a municipal council.

He added: "Certainly it is refreshing to see the man (Frampton) change his position . . . He's benefitted by the education we have given him," noting that Frampton has a record of supporting highrise development.

Road Mishap Kills Port Alberni Man

PORT ALBERNI — Colin Winston Cunningham, 20, of Port Alberni, was killed Wednesday when his car ran off the road at a turn on the Port Alberni - Parksville highway, about three miles east of here.

RCMP said Gerry Neufield, a passenger in the car, suffered minor injuries.

MORE SMALL BUSINESS AID

OTTAWA (CP)—The government will introduce legislation this fall to increase assistance to small business through an expanded Industrial Development Bank made independent of the Bank of Canada.

Trade Minister Alastair Gillespie, who made the announcement in the Commons Wednesday, said legislation will be designed to solve a myriad of problems faced by small businessmen.

It will set up a new Crown corporation to be known as the Industrial Bank and Development Agency.

His announcement was welcomed cautiously by the Conservatives and New Democrats but dismissed by Social Credit as merely another unnecessary step to expand the federal bureaucracy.

Gillespie said the new agency, like the present IDB, will provide financing only when it is unavailable from private lenders such as chartered banks "on reasonable terms and conditions."

As well as the straight financial help, the new agency will provide technical, management and information services.

Gillespie said the new agency will build upon the "existing strengths and organizational network of the IDB" which will be removed from under the wing of the Bank of Canada.

The IDB, since its formation in 1944, has authorized more than $1.8 billion in loans to business. It now has more than 16,000 customers.

Labor Code Target

OTTAWA (CP) — Members of the government advisory council on the status of women ended their first meeting Wednesday confident they will get better conditions for women.

Dr. Katie Cooke, 54, chairman of the 28-member council, told a press conference the group intends to concentrate on amendments to the Canada Labor Code expected to be re-introduced soon in the Commons.

A bill brought before the Commons last year would have prohibited discrimination on grounds of age, sex, and marital status, but died when the House dissolved for the Oct. 30 election.

The council will also keep an eye on draft-stage amendments to the Public Service Superannuation Act concerning women. Members want to ensure that women get a fair shake in insurance and pension plans, Dr. Cooke said.

Other immediate priorities included the establishment of a human rights committee, inclusion of housewives in the Canada Pension Plan and changes in the divorce act.

NOT ENOUGH YET

Members also expressed concern that not enough women are being appointed to senior positions on government boards, commissions and Crown corporations. They suggested that the next Governor-General be a woman.

Most of the two-day meeting was directed toward forming these aims, but Dr. Cooke said the council, formed May 31, hopes to get down to actual proposals at the next meeting in September.

Such proposals would deal with better child care and family planning services.

Most members seemed satisfied with the first session.

Even Joan Wallace of Vancouver, who had threatened to resign if she thought the council was a waste of time, said she was "pleasantly surprised."

PARKS ADOPT BILINGUALISM

OTTAWA (CP) — National parks are slowly taking on a bilingual look under a federal program that precedes even the official bilingualism policy.

A spokesman for the northern development department, which administers national parks, said Wednesday "it's part of an on-going program that's ... been expanded somewhat recently as a result of complaints to the official languages commissioner, Keith Spicer.

Spicer explained that as leases are renewed in the parks, the concessionaires are asked to provide some services on a bilingual basis.

Finances Threaten Red Cross

TORONTO (CP) — The Canadian Red Cross had another operating loss last year and the organization says in its annual report it must find new sources of income or reduce its services.

The Red Cross report said that 1972 general expenditures exceeded revenue of $7,898,000 by $216,000. The 1971 deficit was $72,000.

J. G. M. Clark, honorary treasurer, writes that unless some method is found to increase income the Red Cross will be forced to "actually reduce our total efforts or face the erosion of our hard-earned resources."

The organization now is developing a more sensitive test to discover whether a blood donor has been in contact with hepatitis. It says the testing will cost an additional $1 million annually.

Decision Delay Averts Split

OTTAWA (CP) — The Canadian Labor Congress (CLC) put off a decision Wednesday that could have caused a major split in the labor movement, but in doing so apparently pleased none of the parties to the dispute.

About 20 members of the CLC executive council met to decide whether the country's second-largest union—the Canadian Union of Public Employees (CUPE)—should have complete jurisdiction over provincial employees or whether associations of provincial workers should have rights to direct affiliation with the congress.

They concluded that a decision should be put off until the September meeting of the CLC executive council, to be held in Charlottetown.

The result was that labor leaders were accused by leaders of the provincial groups who want to affiliate directly with the congress of "dereliction of responsibility."

CUPE supporters voted against the delay, hoping CLC leaders could not muster the two-thirds of votes needed to override their challenge to direct affiliation for provincial groups.

UNITY THREATENED

The dispute threatened unity of the CLC as CUPE leaders had said they would hold back their per-capita fees if they lost the vote. After three months of not paying fees, the 165,000-member union would have been automatically suspended from the congress.

Provincial employee groups from Alberta, Newfoundland and Prince Edward Island have asked the congress to become CLC affiliates. However, CUPE has challenged their rights, claiming they have been given exclusive jurisdiction over workers employed by the provincial governments.

Stanley Little, CUPE president, said after the meeting that his union would probably step up efforts to attract provincial workers to prove evidence of interest in the organization.

Bill Broad of the Civil Service Association of Alberta and Max Dyke of the Newfoundland Association of Public Employees said that in failing to make a decision, the congress had relegated provincial employees to a lower status than that of other workers.

9 IN MEMORIAM

LAIRD — In loving memory of our Dear Friend, Nan Laird. (Aunt Nancy.)
God looked around his garden,
And found an empty space;
He looked down upon the earth;
And saw your precious face;
He put his arms around you
And lifted you to rest;
God's garden must be beautiful
He only picks the best.
—Always remembered and sadly missed, Helen and George Harris, Granny and Family.

MOXAM — In loving memory of Edna Josephine Moxam, who passed away July 12th, 1972.
God saw the road was getting rough
And the hills were hard to climb,
So He closed your weary eyelids
And whispered: "Peace be thine."
—Lovingly remembered by Frank, June, Bob and Bobbi.

Thursday Movies and Specials

Movies

Up Front (xxx), on 13 at 8. Bill Mauldin's zany cartoon characters, Willie and Joe, are excellently brought to life by David Wayne and Tom Ewell in this amusing 1951 film about G.I.'s fighting in Italy during the Second World War.

The Guru (xxx), on 7 at 9. A strange but generally rewarding and magnificently photographed 1969 film made in India about the conflict of Eastern and Western cultures. Michael York plays a young British pop singer who arrives in India to study the sitar with an Indian guru and Rita Tushingham is delightful as a flower child seeking spiritual peace. The best performance however is turned in by Uptal Dutt who plays the guru.

Sombrero (xx), on 12 at 9. A 1953 story of three bachelors in a small Mexican village and their adventures in love starring Ricardo Mondalban, Pier Angeli and Yvonne DeCarlo.

Damn Yankees (xx), on 7 and 12 at 11:30. Gwen Verdon, Tab Hunter and Ray Walston star in this 1958 movie version of the hit Broadway musical that mixes baseball with a Faustian twist. The casting of Hunter in the lead was a mistake as he is out of his element dancing and singing with a pro like Gwen Verdon, and it detracts from the film.

The Last Outpost (xx), on 2 at 11:50. A 1935 action film set in the Sudan about a member of the Secret Service who sets out to rescue a British officer held hostage starring Cary Grant and Claude Rains.

Alvarez Kelly (xxx), on 6 at 8 at midnight. An excellent cast (William Holden, Richard Widmark and Janice Rule) highlights this 1966 western set against a background of the Civil War.

Wyoming Mail (xx), on 13 at midnight. This 1950 western tells the story of the men whose job it was to keep the railways safe from mail looters and stars Alexis Smith and Stephen McNally.

Specials

The Great Batsto Furnace, on 9 at 6:30. A restored colonial town, Batsto, N.J., houses the huge ironworks furnace during the Revolution and the War of 1812. Folklorist Oscar Brand hosts this walking and singing tour.

Playhouse New York, on 9 at 8. A rare treat — D. W. Griffith's Abraham Lincoln. The silent screen's master director made his talkie debut with this 1930 account of Lincoln's life starring Walter Houston, Una Merkel, Kay Hammond and Jason Robards Sr. (90 mins.)

EARLY FRIDAY MOVIES

The Mating Game (xxx), on 4 at 9:30. Tony Randall steals the show in this 1958 comedy about an Internal Revenue investigator who comes to check on an eccentric businessman who hasn't paid his taxes and ends up falling in love with the man's pretty daughter. An excellent supporting cast includes Debbie Reynolds and Paul Douglas.

The Sea Shall Not Have Them (xxx), on 13 at 10:30. An excellent British 1954 drama about the rescue attempt of an air crew forced down in the North Sea during the Second World War starring Michael Redgrave and Dirk Bogarde.

The Web (xxx), on 13 at noon. A well-made, exciting 1947 melodrama about a bodyguard who kills his boss's arch enemy only to find himself involved in a double-cross. An excellent script enhances the performances of Edmond O'Brien, Ella Raines, William Bendix and Vincent Price.

Love Has Many Faces (xx), on 6 and 8 at 12:45. Routine soap opera best describes this 1965 drama about the mysterious death of an Acapulco beach boy that threatens a wealthy woman's marriage. Cast includes Lana Turner and Cliff Robertson.

Major Barbara (xxxx), on 5 at 3:30. A superb British-made 1940 movie adaptation of George Bernard Shaw's biting comedy about a rich girl who joins the Salvation Army with a flawless cast that includes Wendy Hiller, Rex Harrison, Robert Morley and Robert Newton.

The Phantom of the Opera (xxx), on 7 at 3:30. Herbert Lom plays the deranged musician who haunts a Paris opera house in this 1962 British re-make of the venerable Gothic thriller.

HOW TO WRITE A GOOD
CLASSIFIED ACTION AD

1—IT'S BEST to start your ad with the name of the article or service you have to offer. If you have an apartment, room, etc, for rent, or property for sale; start your ad with the location.

2—BE CLEAR. Readers respond more quickly and favorably when given complete, definite information. Always include the price in your advertisement. Don't allow the reader to speculate.

3—MAKE IT EASY for the reader-prospect to reach you. Always give your telephone number or your name and address. If you do not have regular hours, state a preferred time for the prospect to get in touch with you.

4—PLAY SAFE. You get the greatest reader attention by using consecutive insertions. A six-day order is best and costs less, and you can, of course, stop your ad as soon as you get the results you want. You pay only for the days your ad appeared. Lower yearly rates are available to those who wish to keep their services or products before the public

5—PLACE YOURSELF in the reader's position and ask yourself what you want to know about your offer. The answer you give will make a good Want Ad.

6—GIVE YOUR PROSPECT every inducement you can with good copy. Classified action ad readers have the money and are already interested in buying the merchandise or service you have to offer; the details and information you give are the most important.

7—WANT ADS THAT FAIL TO bring the desired results do so usually, not through a lack of readership, but because they are poorly worded or contain inadequate information.

8—TO PLACE YOUR AD, call 386-2121, your direct line number to fast Want Ad action. A courteous, efficient ad-visor will be glad to help you word and place your order. And remember, Classified Action Ads afford you the most complete coverage. Telephones are open 8:00 a.m. to 8:00 p.m. for you daily, Monday through Saturday call.

VOICEPRINT ONLY EVIDENCE

SAN RAFAEL, Calif. (Reuter) — A 28-year-old telephone company employee went on trial Wednesday accused of threatening to blow up a company installation. The only evidence against him is his voice.

Law-enforcement officials are attempting for the first time to persuade a California court to accept as evidence a voiceprint.

Last year, when a bomb threat was made against Pacific Telephone Co. on a number normally only used by phone installers, the call was routinely recorded.

The telephone company demanded voice samples from employees. Steven Chapter, a company installer, refused to provide one, saying it was an invasion of his privacy and civil rights.

The phone company, however, recorded his voice without his knowledge. It was a perfect match, says Lieut. Ernest Nash of the Michigan state police.

Dr. Oscar Tosi, professor of audiology at Michigan State University, maintains that the voiceprint technique is as reliable as fingerprints.

Witch Doctors Vie in Sports

NAIROBI, Kenya (AP) — If soccer teams in Kenya are going bad, they don't fire the manager. They switch witch doctors.

North American athletes are known to try many things while in a slump. They might change their food habits, their clothing or even their wives.

But African athletes are one-up on the North American variety. They not only believe in magic, they practise it.

In fact, witchcraft has become a major problem for African soccer. The Football Association of Kenya, in a move which should have as much success as the outlawing of the spitball in baseball, issued another ultimatum forbidding players' spells and charms.

Batters say there's still illegal substances on their baseballs while, in Kenya, spells and chants remain in the air.

GOO DFOR BUSINESS

Shariff Omar Abukar, a Nairobi witch doctor, claims he's been consulted by 90 per cent of the city's teams. Players tell him they see two balls instead of one or snakes rather than the ball.

Abukar relieves his clients' anxieties by casting spells on rival witch doctors employed by other teams or even opposing players. Some players say that witch doctors have been known to sprinkle chicken blood or human ashes on members of rival clubs.

Witchcraft has become big business, too. One Kenyan team is reported to have spent $3,080, one-third its annual budget, to procure favorable witchcraft.

And when two opposing witch doctors match strategies, anything can happen. A first-division game between two Tanzanian teams in Dar es Salaam was delayed 45 minutes because each club feared the other had hexed the ball. The referee finally settled the matter by carrying the ball onto the field with both team captains holding on to it.

Nairobi's Black Mamba team, trailing 5-0 at the half to the Western Stars of Mombasa, refused to leave the locker room, claiming the ball was cursed. The referee put a new ball inplay and Naiherebi held Mombasa even the rest of the way.

Off the field, witchcraft has also reared its head. A visiting team never reveals its arrival date for fear the home team would put a curse on its hotel rooms. And lineups are top secret until game time, so no player could be targeted for a hex.

EFFORTS CONTINUE

Some league officials dispute the impact of superstition, citing better education for its reduction. However, periodic efforts to ban witchcraft have failed.

And a recent incident during an Abaluhya-Hakati game in Nairobi's City Stadium speaks for itself. An Abaluhya player felt that there was more than just a goalkeeper keeping him from scoring. He scooped up an object and ran off the field with the Hakuti players in pursuit.

The game was called as fighting broke out. The disputed object was just a goalkeeper's cap, claimed Hakati, but officials found sewn inside the cap a needle, a coin and bits of animal skin, horn, herbs, leaves and roots.

Each team was fined $28 while two players also received fines.

"It's not easy to detect what extraordinary things players take onto the field," said the Nairobi Football Association's secretary, Bartholomew Ogotu. "But we are going to be tough with teams found guilty of witchcraft practices."

"It's known all over the world for soccer players, rally drivers and boxers to carry mascots. My club knows of no charms, nor do we believe in any," Omala said. "If Ogotu believes in charms, it's up to him."

Maybe it's all in their heads. But, then, isn't that what hexes and curses are all about?

Port Alberni Mill Remains Closed

PORT ALBERNI — MacMillan Bloedel's pulp and newsprint mill remained closed for the seventh day with no talks scheduled today between two striking unions and the company.

On strike since Tuesday afternoon are 58 members of the International Brotherhood of Electrical Workers, Local 2354, and 60 members of the Office and Technical Employees Union, Local 15.

The mill was closed last Friday by an unauthorized walkout of 1,100 members of the United Paperworkers International Union in protest of a proposed new contract, which was accepted Tuesday by an over-all vote of 57 per cent of UPIU members at 11 B.C. mills. The Port Alberni workers, however, voted against the contract.

Bill Swanson, business agent for the office workers, said his union wants a wage increase of 12 per cent across the board in a one-year contract and a minimum monthly increase of $75.

He said the company has offered raises averaging 7.8 per cent in the first year and 8.5 per cent in the second year.

The electricians are seeking a bonus for those with tradesmen's tickets, pay based on length of service and clarification of the relationship between working foremen and lead hands.

FAMILY INCOME $10,113 IN '71

OTTAWA (CP) — The average family income rose 16 per cent between 1969 and 1971, Statistics Canada reported Wednesday.

However, rising prices in that period ate up about seven per cent of the increase.

The average income in 1971, was $10,113 compared with $8,732 in 1969.

The statistics bureau's figures show that average income of persons not in families increased by about eight per cent to $3,877 in 1971, from $3,584 in 1969, with a low of $2,296 in Newfoundland to a high of $4,280 in Ontario.

The highest average family income in the same year was $11,154 in Ontario, compared with a low of $6,669 in Prince Edward Island.

The survey indicated that 14 per cent of families had an income in the $12,000 to $14,999 range. This was the largest single income group.

Another 13.8 per cent had incomes in the $10,000 to $11,999 range. A further 13.2 per cent had incomes of between $15,000 and $16,999.

Only 2.7 per cent of families had an income in excess of $25,000, while 2.4 per cent had an income of less than $1,000.

Hanging Baskets Lovely But What's in There?

Victoria's hanging baskets on the lamp standards of downtown streets are said to be world famous but how many of us residents can name the eight or nine kinds of plants making the display?

Each year 25 small plants of tested kinds are put into each basket — the assortment to cover flowering from June to October.

Since the results are expected to be equally fine every year regardless of rain, shine, wind, drought, on the shady side of the street and in reflected heat from white buildings, the assortment remains basically the same each year.

This week the principal mass of color is from the annual named Schizanthus of Butterfly-flower. These may have pink, mauve, purple, reddish or biscuit-colored flowers, so thickly poised on the 10-inch plants that not a space is visible.

The massing is attained by pinching the seedlings three times to make them branch before setting buds. Anyone can do the same, and get the same results from the one seedling but how many of us do?

In the centre of each basket can be seen numerous 10-inch wiry green stems tipped with buds reminiscent of single dianthus. This is the one plant of Viscaria put into each basket. Well grown (this does not require pinching) it may have a couple of dozen stems, each with its quota of single pink or blue flowers. Their fairy halo takes over just when Schizanthus gets blown away on a summer gale.

Dwarf-growing, small flowered Tagetes varieties are opening their first dime-sized blooms, to continue until frost writes finis near the first of October.

Though few gardeners combine the orange and yellow of Tagetes with rose colored Petunias, this is done successfully in the city's hanging baskets. Perhaps the angle of sight and light makes a difference and the fact that few of us look at the same basket for more than a minute or two.

The trailing plants in the baskets are often a puzzle to visitors and residents. Most know the blue Lobelia Sapphire whose dark blue little flowers with the white eye go on blooming until Christmas if a hard frost is not experienced. Another plant has grey green leaves sometimes variegated, which are rather hairy, not commonly flowering but the stems trail downwards for a yard or more — Nepeta hederacea or Glecoma, sometimes called Ground-ivy.

Ivy-leaved geranium is the third trailing plant. These make a lot of bloom and fill out the baskets as the present show of Schizanthus is finished and while Viscaria is blooming.

The success of the hanging baskets over the nearly 40 years of use depends on an early start at the Beacon Hill Park Nursery; the pan fixed below each basket to act as a reservoir of water; nightly watering after being hung; and a consistent use of plant material tested through the years.

If we all gave the same attention to our tubs and planters, we too could have satisfying effects.

Laporte Met To Hear Fraud

QUEBEC (CP) — Pierre Laporte never knew whom he was going to see shortly before the 1970 provincial elections when he met individuals identified now as underworld elements, the man who arranged the meeting said Wednesday.

Jean-Jacques Cote, a Liberal organizer during the elections, distributed a statement in Montreal to the press "to establish the facts."

He said the main reason for the meeting was to convince Laporte, then responsible for Liberal organization in 12 south-shore ridings opposite Montreal, that another pary planned to carry out an electoral fraud.

Robert Burns, Parti Quebecois house leader who has carried on the major part of an opposition attack on Premier Robert Bourassa's Liberal government, questioned Cote's statement.

He asked in a statement why Premier Bourassa had not given this version in the Quebec national assembly before Laporte was connected with the meeting.

Laporte was killed by terrorists in October, 1970, after five months as Bourassa's labor and immigration minister.

Cote said he got wind of a plan to use a trailer to transport persons from riding to riding in the south shore on election day in an attempt to have false votes cast.

He told Laporte of the plan, but Laporte was skeptical.

Cote said he called Laporte a few days later to invite him to an apartment rented by Rene Gagnon for the duration of the campaign.

Cote was organizer for Gagnon, who was defeated as Liberal candidate in St. Jacques riding in Montreal.

Cote said Laporte "was unaware at the time, the same as Rene Gagnon, of who would be present . . ."

Cote said he invited two cabaret owners to the meeting and they confirmed the electoral fraud plan.

The men, Nichola Di Lorio and Frank D' Asti, have since told reporters they were at the meeting. Both have been linked to organized crime by testimony at a Quebec Police Commission inquiry.

Cote said police checked on the activity of the trailer on election day and "neutralized" it.

Meanwhile, without mentioning names, Justice Minister Jerome Choquette said Wendesday the underworld is trying to suppress Quebec's inquiry into organized crime by trying to implicate politicians.

Choquette's statement made no reference to Laporte, who met with reputed underworld figures two weeks before the 1970 provincial elections.

But the justice minister said Di Iorio, one of the men who met Laporte at the time, is one of several persons "who have already been summoned to appear at the inquiry on organized crime and who must come to testify."

Fur Phased Out

WASHINGTON (AP) — The United States Army has decided to use synthetic fur for parka hoods, eliminating the need to slaughter timber wolves to fill a contract, a Virginia congressman said Tuesday. Army tests show that modacrylic synthetic fur is an adequate alternative for natural fur, said Republican William Whitehurst (Rep. Va.).

The Bridge Expert

By FRED KARPIN

During the past 15 years, many complex artificial systems of bidding have come into being, such as the Blue Team Club, the Schenken Club, the Precision Club, etc. But in addition, dozens and dozens of artificial bids, which are not a part of any system, have also emerged, to be used on "special occasions."

An example of one of these latter types of bid can be observed in today's deal, which came up in the Life Masters Men's Paris Championships of 1972. In this deal, our North declarer arrived at a grand-slam contract by being "curious": he did nothing but ask questions! Sitting North and South, respectively, were Henry Cukoff and Joe Silver, both of Montreal.

The reader should appreciate that the given bidding is presented only for a "look-see," to illustrate the technological development of bidding. It is not reccommended for use by the average player.

NORTH
♠ A K 10 4 2
♡ A K 9 7 5
◇ K 9 3

WEST
♠ 5
♡ 10 8 6 4
◇ A Q 6 2
♣ J 10 7 2

EAST
♠ 7 3
♡ 2
◇ J 10 8 7 5 4

SOUTH
♡ Q J 3
♣ K Q 9 5 3

The bidding:

East	South	West	North
Pass	1 ♠	Pass	4 ◇
Pass	5 ♣	Pass	5 ♡
Pass	5 ♠	Pass	6 ♡
Pass	6 NT	Pass	7 ♠
Pass	Pass	Pass

Opening lead: Jack of ♣

North's response of four diamonds was an "asking bid": "Partner, describe your diamond holding." The answer of five clubs announced that South had both first and second round control (the ace-king; the singleton ace; or a void). North's five heart bid then inquired about hearts. Five spades said: "Partner, I have either first nor second round control." North's next bid of six hearts asked about third round control of hearts. Six notrump said that South had third round control (either the queen, or a doubleton). So North bid the grand slam.

West's opening club lead was ruffed in dummy, after which South trumped a diamond. Entering dummy via the trump ace, South next ruffed another diamond. Re-entering the North hand with the trump king, declarer then trumped the board's remaining diamond. The rest of the tricks now belonged to declarer.

Cold Spell Kills Four

ZERMATT, Switzerland (AP) — Two Americans froze to death and a Scotsman and his son were killed on the Matterhorn Tuesday when a freak cold spell hit the 14,960-foot mountain.

The bodies of Stanley Graven, a 47-year-old Scot, and his 17-year-old son were found on the Zmutt glacier at an altitude of about 10,300 feet. They had fallen about 600 feet.

WORDS WON'T HELP $: FRENCH

Times News Services

LONDON — The U.S. dollar today floundered downward again on world money markets when there was no sign that government banks were intervening to prop it up.

"The Americans are trying to talk the dollar up rather than pull it up," said a bank official in Paris.

The dollar dropped to 4.0825 francs on the Paris market from its overnight price of 4.17 francs. It slipped to 36.325 Belgian francs in Brussels, to 2.8425 Swiss francs in Zurich — all lower than Wednesday night's closing prices.

Only in Frankfurt, where rumors persisted that government banks were propping it up, did the dollar show some early gains.

"If no support comes soon for the dollar, I expect it to fall back quite a bit," said a London foreign exchange dealer.

In Washington, world monetary experts met again today for talks on reforming the international money system, hopeful of a compromise on how countries should reduce unacceptable balance-of-payments surpluses or deficits.

The experts, members of the Committee of 20—a technical organization charged by the International Monetary Fund with designing a viable blueprint for reform—saw several senior U.S. financial advisers Wednesday urging the need for a compromise formula.

In Europe, the price of gold rose as the dollar dropped. In other commodities, copper skyrocketed $145.60 per metric ton, breaking a 1968 record price to reach $2,114 per ton. Tin made a comparable leap Wednesday.

Pipeline Facts Hidden: Senator

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Nixon administration was accused today of making false statements about the proposed Alaska oil pipeline and withholding information that would promote development of an alternative route through Canada.

Senator Birch Bayh (Dem. Ind.) said in the Senate it is "common knowledge" that the administration has given its allegiance to the oil companies that want to build the pipeline across Alaska.

Bayh cited the state department's recent letters to members of Congress that said "the Canadian government has no strong current interest in the construction of a Mackenzie Valley pipeline."

"Our state department intelligence gathering must be rather poor since Canadian Prime Minister Trudeau said on the floor of the Parliament on May 14, 'Our policy is still to indicate that the Mackenzie route is one which we would be prepared to consider if there is an application made in the proper form, and that we would be very happy to follow-up on that,' " Bayh said.

He said the statement is only one of many expressing positive interest by the Canadian government. "Yet our state department, just three weeks ago, provided totally contradictory information to the Senate."

'KEPT ANSWER QUIET'

The senator also said the state department sought to withhold information "from the Canadian government to questions state had asked relative to the possibility of a Mackenzie Valley oil pipeline."

Bayh said the answers to those questions showed Canada "was indeed willing to cooperate with us and expedite an oil pipeline through Canada."

He said the state department "did not inform Congress of the existence of those questions and answers.

Bayh's comments followed those of Sen. Walter Mondale (Dem.-Minn.), who accused the oil companies of creating an energy crisis and asked the Senate to dealy action on the Alaskan pipeline while studying an alternative route through Canada.

"It is my belief that a pipeline-delivery system through the Mackenzie Valley of Canada would be the most logical means of transporting North Slope Oil to American markets," Mondale said Wednesday.

"There is no hard evidence that construction of a trans-Canadian pipeline would delay delivery of Alaskan oil by three or five years," he said.

Humanity Hangs In Balance

(Fifth of a Six-Part Series)

TOKYO — The first surprising thing you learn about the man who runs the largest and most troubled city on earth, a city of some 12 million people with every problem known to urban man, is that he has yet to develop an ulcer.

I was sure that it would go naturally with the job and it was the first question I put to him in this rarely-granted interview.

"Nobody's ever asked me that before," he laughed. "The fact is that I've been blessed with a strong stomach that seems to have been designed for the job. I eat anything going and I'm always hungry. But my real secret is this: I leave my troubles in the office.

"If you have gained the impression that this is not only the largest city on earth, but the one with the most difficulties for the present and future, you are absolutely right. Our problems are truly staggering as you'll find when you talk to bur planners. I've discovered that the only way to survive is to escape by leaving them behind in my office when the day is done. Then I go home and forget them until the next day comes."

A tall, slim, balding man, impeccable in British-styled tweeds in contrast to the blue-suit uniform of every other Japanese executive I've met, this onetime economics professor has occupied Tokyo's hot seat, ulcer free, for six years.

His humanity-congealed domain includes 26 cities, 23 suburban wards, six towns, nine villages and a cluster of islands, a total land area of some 800 square miles. The last census put the population at 11,580,000, but the movement into the city is so constant that now it's anybody's guess.

He's no friend of the business-oriented, rightest coalition that's ruled Japan for 25 years. While he disclaims any political affiliation, himself, his support comes mainly from the uncomfortable, but effective, alliance of socialists and communists.

"The over-all problem here in Tokyo is an ecological chaos," the Governor told me, "but the crisis is the indifference of a government that cares only for economic growth. They think only of the Gross National Product. They're saying now — oh, so proudly — that the GNP per livable square mile is 15 times that of the United States. If it goes up 10 per cent a year — and it always does—that's enough to satisfy them. The future of their capital city does not concern them. You will see here the very worst evidence of what happens when capitalism runs amok."

When I asked if industrial pollution was his severest problem, the governor walked across to the windows of his beautiful, all-grey reception room and gazed upon his enormous city. You could have sliced and packaged the smog that lay in the concrete canyons of Tokyo that morning.

"The environmental pollution here is a combination of many things all lumped together," he said, turning from the horrendous view. "Industrial pollution is simply one of them, but the lack of decent or reasonably-priced housing, the traffic congestion, the rising prices, the problems of the aged, the very quality and pace of life are all forms of pollution that the government will not recognize.

"In Tokyo, for example," he went on, "the automobile is our worst enemy. It is the main cause of our smog. It

HERE COMES SNIFFERBUG

By BRIAN BUTTERS

Times Staff

It hates air pollution so much that it is planning to rumble around the province for the next six months, nosing up bad smells wherever they exist.

"Snifferbug" is a new $75,000 mobile air quality laboratory put into service today by the Pollution Control Branch of the B.C. Water Resources Service.

"Snifferbug" doesn't miss much in the way of air pollution, either. It is programmed to detect and measure almost any contaminant which could come from industrial processes, including: sulphur dioxide, hydrogen sulphide, carbon monoxide, oxidants, hydro-carbons, particulate matter and oxides of nitrogen.

The Pollution Control Branch says it intends to use "snifferbug" to monitor effects of industrial air pollution on air quality in surrounding neighborhoods. In this regard, the nosey vehicle will be co-operating with about 100 fixed air monitoring stations scattered throughout the province.

First stop on the trail of bad smells is to be a six-month junket to Prince George, Kamloops, Trail and Victoria with stays of one or two months in each place.

FRENCH FLIGHTS GUARDED

Times News Services

PAPEETE, Tahiti — Armed guards were placed on all French commercial planes flying to or from Papeete today as a precaution against hijacking as the first nuclear explosion in France's 1973 test series became imminent.

All airline passengers and their baggage were closely searched at the airport since officials feared nuclear-test opponents might attempt to divert a plane into the test zone.

300,000 Fish Lost to U.S.

Times News Services

British Columbia so far has lost about 300,000 sockeye salmon to the Americans as a result of the fishing industry strike, regional Fisheries Director Rod Hourston said Wednesday.

Hourston computed the value at about $750,000 and warned B.C. will lose more if the strike continues.

Under a Canada-U.S. agreement administered by the International Pacific Salmon Fisheries Commission, the two countries split the Fraser River salmon catch 50-50. But the split is void during a strike.

"The loss up to now could be at least 300,000," Hourston said. "Those 300,000 are sockeye we lost and the Americans got and aren't part of the (agreement) division."

The price of the fish under the latest management offer is about 50 cents a pound and an average fish weighs about five pounds, yielding approximately $2.50 for each sockeye, he said.

Meanwhile, about 60 trollers, commanded by Indian fishermen from the Barkley and Clayoquot Sound regions on the west coast of Vancouver Island, sailed this morning, after forming a new fishing association.

They joined the Pacific Trollers Association in returning to the fishing grounds in defiance of a strike called by the UFAWU. They plan to sell their catches to Washington State ports.

TRUDEAU A LIAR —SNUBBED MP

OTTAWA (CP) — Jack Horner (PC-Crowfoot) accused Prime Minister Trudeau of telling "a downright lie" in the Commons Wednesday and managed, temporarily at least, to get away with it.

The cause of it all was a dinner the government held for the Queen at the Palliser Hotel in Calgary June 5 during her 11-day visit to Canada.

Douglas Roche (PC-Edmonton Strathcona) raised the subject by complaining that the government failed to invite a number of Alberta MPs in order to make room for defeated Liberal candidates.

The complaint was echoed later by Ken Hurlburt (PC-Lethbridge) and Horner got into the act when Trudeau rose to reply.

The prime minister said "a sincere attempt" was made to invite a cross-section of people representing all political parties.

"That's a downright lie!" Horner shouted.

I don't think the prime minister should be allowed to make statements that are totally false," he said later in an interview.

Roche, who spoke at the start of the House sitting, said he was told by the prime minister's office before the Calgary dinner that only "the four Calgary" MPs were being invited.

Defeated Liberal candidates from as far away as Winnipeg were invited, he said.

Roche said those attending included Hu Harries, a Liberal MP he defeated in the 1968 election. He called this a deplorable partisan abuse of MPs' rights.

SHOCK KILLS BOYS

Two Chemainus youths were electrocuted Wednesday when they apparently touched a B.C. Hydro power line carrying 138,000 volts.

RCMP said Barry James Cocks and Paul William Livingston, both 17, climbed a steel pylon tower on a B.C. Hydro right-of-way about 200 yards west of the Georgia turbine station at Bare Point.

At the top of the tower they apparently touched a 138,000-volt line which supplies auxiliary power to all of Vancouver Island, causing a split-second power shortage over the entire island.

The operator at the generating station noticed a "bump on the line" at 10:18 p.m. but had no idea what caused it.

Shortly after the bump RCMP were notified of the deaths by other youths who had gathered in the area. Police are in the process of taking statements today from people who witnessed the accident.

"The area is a favorite hang-out for kids," a police spokesman said. Wednesday's incident was the first of its kind on Vancouver Island.

A B.C. Hydro spokesman said there have been occasional instances of people trying to climb these things; they're difficult to climb.

Duncan coroner T. H. Lines has not yet decided whether to hold an inquiry or an inquest.

Gov't Leasing Land

Nicolson said three areas being considered for such development include about 1,700 acres of the University of B.C. endowment lands, 200 acres of provincial land on Burnaby Mountain and some of the 650 acres of the Blair Rifle Range in the district of North Vancouver which is owned jointly by federal and provincial governments.

The minister said he believes the prohibitive price of land is the main reason for the current high cost of housing in Greater Vancouver and said he plans to make use of government programs and legislation to influence the market and force prices down.

The government intends to lease land below market values with adequate restraints to prevent speculation, he said.

A Probe Into the Mind of Mitchell

By JULES WITCOVER

The Washington Post

WASHINGTON — It was about 4:50 p.m. Wednesday and the former attorney-general of the United States, John Mitchell, was just completing nearly 10 hours of testimony before the senate Watergate committee.

It had started out as an effort to extract from him all he knew about the Watergate break-in and relatel "White House horrors," as Mitchell himself had dubbed the assorted other illegalities.

But, finally, it had become an inquiry into another question.

What manner of man is it who can serve as the chief law-enforcement officer of the nation and remain silent when he knows crimes are being proposed, and in fact have been carried out, under White House auspices?

On Tuesday, Sen. Herman Talmadge (D—Ga.) had begun the line of questioning in asking why Mitchell had never told the president that he knew during the 1972 campaign that, for example, a White House burglary team had broken into the office of Dr. Daniliel Ellsberg's psychiatrist.

Earlier Wednesday, Sens. Daniel Inouye (D—Hawaii), Sam Ervin (D—N.C.) and Howard Baker (R—Tenn.) had pressed him on the point.

But all three succeeded only in eliciting the same response from Mitchell — that he kept his mouth shut so as not to jeopardize President Nixon's re-election.

Now, in late afternoon, the final questioner of the day was Mitchell's fellow Republican, Sen. Lowell Weicker of Connecticut. Weicker had methodically gone over the circumstances under which Mitchell said he was told of "the White House horrors" and then started bearing down on the same old question: Why hadn't he done something to see that justice was done?

He had been, after all, not just any American citizen, Weicker reminded Mitchell, who had become increasingly gloomy as he sat in the witness chair. Mitchell had been attorney general, said Weicker, and Mitchell still was a lawyer and as such "an officer of the court" pledged to uphold the law.

Weicker: Did you bring the Ellsberg break-in to anyone's attention?

Weicker: As an officer of the court, as a former attorney general, you were content to remain silent . . . even though you knew that your silence might possibly convict an American citizen (Ellsberg) by means of illegal conduct . . .

Oldtimer Recalls Fishing Strife Of An Earlier Era

By PAT DUFOUR
Times Staff

The date was 1910. The easterners had been brought in by the Canadian Fishing Company of Vancouver after the fishermen had formed a union and struck over poor working conditions and meagre pay.

Sprightly in spite of his years, "Dolph" Prince of 20 Menzies was a dory fisherman aboard the Celestial Empire when he and his mates struck.

"We were being paid a cent a pound when we unionized and struck," he recalls. "We were asking for another quarter of a cent a pound but it wasn't really the money that concerned us."

★

"As well as fishing we were doing all kinds of work — unloading the ship, putting fish in boxes, loading cranes while hundreds of unemployed stood around watching us."

In an effort to force the fishermen back to work, Prince says the company brought 50 Nova Scotia fishermen to fish from the Celestial Empire and their other ships.

To dodge trouble the easterners were taken by boxcar to Seattle. The boxcar was opened dockside and the men rushed aboard the boats.

★

"This time we'd got wind of what they were doing," Prince reports. "We all went down to the dock and hammered on the car.

"Boys, you're scabbing on us," we told them.

"Every man went up and joined the union. That ended the strike right there."

Tied up at Fishermen's Wharf, the Celestial Empire's rusting hull bears the scars of her checkered career which has ranged from a deep sea trawler working out of England in 1906, a halibut boat, tug and charter vessel.

"On our second trip we drowned a man," he recalls. "One of her 10 dories capsized in a storm.

"The guy in the bow of the dory — he was a huge Swede — held on to the strap that we always had in the bottom of the dory. But his mate in the stern was caught by a hook. It got him and pulled him down with he gear."

Another dory managed to rescue the Swede.

"I've still got that picture in my mind now," Prince says. "He was jumping up and down, and we had to pretty well knock him out before we could get him aboard."

The next day of fishing, Prince's mate, still shaken from the disaster, refused to work.

★

"I never saw a more scared man in my life," Prince relates.

He went on to earn his master's ticket for 150-ton freighter and tow boats, defying the treacherous Pacific waters for almost five decades before coming ashore for the last time.

Death And Taxes Unsure

Arthur Petersen's patience is being taxed.

He's been waiting four months for notification from the federal income tax department that he is alive.

But as far as the department is concerned, he's resting in peace empty-handed.

Petersen received on April 19 a letter from the department addressed to "The Estate of the Late Arthur F. Petersen."

It noted that to avoid further delay in the processing of the "above-named taxpayer's income tax return," a number of declarations were required from those administering the estate at 1635 Cook.

"I just about fainted, I felt my pulse, but there was no doubt, I was still alive," Petersen said.

That decided more financial considerations took precedence, and questions arose about where in fact his tax returns had gone.

Four months have past since Petersen's untimely "death" and he still hasn't found out.

But the income tax office here, after expressing incredulity over the "late" Mr. Petersen's phone call, has guaranted that a tracer has been sent out and the return should be forthcoming.

Vessel Damaged During Detention

By ROLAND MORGAN
Times Staff

The rusty-U.S. Navy ship Marysville, suspected of involvement in British Columbia's largest-ever hashish and marijuana haul, was formally handed back to San Francisco pornographic movie-maker Alex deRenzy today—with an extra dent.

Part of the superstructure of the 1944-vintage 480-ton escort vessel was smashed while she was being "detained" by authorities at Esquimalt.

The damage, and other disruptions in the vessel caused by a three-day RCMP search for drugs, was believed to be at the foot of the delay in deRenzy getting aboard his ship bought at a 1971 U.S. Navy surplus sale.

DeRenzy was in lengthy conference with police at Victoria Subdivision's headquarters all morning.

Thousands of dollars worth of sophisticated film-making equipment which had been seized by police, along with some films, were also being negotiated over.

The question of fueling the ship was also believed to be an issue.

The twin-engined diesel vessel requires at least 7,000 gallons of fuel, which could cost as much as $2,000.

Crew at the navy fueling depot said they did not believe a civilian vessel could be supplied with government fuel.

It is not known whether the vessel is fully seaworthy.

She was transferred from the Esquimalt base to Colwood fueling jetty under tow and there have been reports that one engine is out of action, along with other mechanical problems.

There is also the question of how deRenzy, a U.S. citizen only released from custody on $7,500 bail two days ago, will provision his aging craft.

A menagerie of birds — 13 of them — is also at issue. The valuable parrots and cockatoos are being looked after by Victoria SPCA, who say the birds must be quarantined for a month and cannot be taken to the U.S.

The Marysville was seized 12 days ago in Quatsino Sound along with fishing vessel the Gondola in a police and military swoop which made drug-chasing history because it involved a navy vessel.

Ask The Times

Q. We're often told that women hold the purse strings and control most of the world's money. Could you tell me some of the weathiest women of the world?—A.M.P.

A. The world's wealthiest woman was probably Princess Wilhemina Helena Pauline Maria of Orange-Nassau, former Queen of the Netherlands, who died in 1962. Her fortune was estimated at more than $200 million. The largest published estate ever left by a woman was $95 million. It belonged to the notorious miser, Henrietta (Hetty) Howland Green, who lived off cold porridge because she was too mean to heat it. Her son had to have a leg amputated because of the delays in finding a free medical clinic. Her will was found in a box with four pieces of soap. She had a balance of $31,400,000 in one bank alone.

Commercial Tax Hike Supported by Pollen

Victoria Mayor Peter Pollen supports the B.C. government's move to shift more financial responsibility for municipal services from residential properties to commercial properties.

The shift will come with the implementation of an amendment to the Assessment Equalization Act passed in the spring session of the legislature which will take effect following reassessments in 1974. Assessments on commercial properties would rise to 50 per cent of market values as a result of the move.

Businessmen have described the move as a severe blow but Pollen feels the shift is just.

He said businesses "are better able to adjust to increased assessments" because they can pass tax increases directly on to their customers while home-owners and apartment dwellers must bear the full weight of higher taxes.

Because the assessment increases will be felt throughout the province, competing business communities will have to bear the tax increase equally, Pollen said.

He noted also that businesses can deduct their property taxes from their federal taxes and, "with the federal government spending money with abandon in the Maritimes and Quebec," it is "refreshing to see" some public revenues staying at home.

Earlier this week members of the city's Central Business District Advisory Committee expressed concern that the tax increase will adversely affect development of downtown Victoria.

Shopping Zone Bylaw Delivered to Council

A bylaw going to Victoria city council today will create a special zone for neighborhood shopping areas.

Taking nearly a year to prepare, the bylaw is aimed at preventing pockets of dense development in residential areas.

Areas particularly affected are the commercial enclaves at the Oak Bay Junction, Quadra and Hillside, Douglas and Hillside and the "auto strip" reaching down Douglas to the city limits.

A spokesman for the city planning department said the bylaw would make "most of the existing buildings non-conforming", that is, if the buildings were destroyed or removed they could not be rebuilt with their present floor-space ratios or set-backs.

At present these properties are in the commercial zone, identified as C-1, which the planning department spokesman described as "the most liberal" zone in the city. It permits building up to property lines and a floor-space ratio of 3 to 1. Buildings in C-1 can rise to 140 feet.

Under the new "neighborhood shopping districts" zone, the floor-space ratio is limited to 1.4 to 1 and heights are limited to 75 feet.

They bylaw also picks out specific lots and puts them into special categories, such as those for motel and gas station, where such uses are now in effect.

Police Get Troubleshooter

A Lower Mainland police chief has been called in to solve problems plaguing the Central Saanich municipal police force, Mayor Archie Galbraith said Wednesday.

Delta police chief Mervin Smith arrived today to start a 10-day review of the force.

Galbraith said Smith will study "what we require now in the way of personnel and equipment and also at the whole long-term development of the force."

Smith's recommendations will be discussed by council, he added.

Central Saanich council voted June 25 to have a professional study of the force done to try to sort out some of the problems that have been plaguing it this year, following the resignation of former chief John Gelling May 28.

Three days later the B.C. Labor Relations Board ruled that police constable James Earl, fired six months earlier, must be reinstated with full back pay.

The municipality's police commission was also ordered to stop "using coercion or intimidation of any kind" in connection with its policemen's union membership.

That decision in turn was appealed and a B.C. Supreme Court ruled the board had no jurisdiction over police forces.

On Tuesday a notice of appeal was filed by the Labor Relations Board.

Galbraith described Smith as "an ideal man" to examine the problems of the six-man unionized force.

"Some of us from the police commission, went to visit him in Delta earlier and we were very impressed with his force," said Galbraith.

Smith joined a six-man Delta force 17 years ago and the squad has since grown to nearly 100.

Stardust Damage $1M

The freighter Irish Stardust was suffering more than $1 million damage when she limped into Victoria harbor Jan. 25.

The hull was ripped open and there was a four-foot gash in the 500-ton-capacity oil tank.

The gash would have been impossible to repair on a temporary basis, testimony given in Victoria provincial court disclosed today.

Andrew Smith, the man who co-ordinated repairs to the Stardust, said it was impossible to patch the gash because of its irregular shape.

The trial reconvened today after a more than two month adjournment.

Judge William Ostler will hear testimony today and Friday and the trial is expected to finish Monday.

On Monday also Ostler is expected to pronounce sentence on Captain James Caird, skipper of the Stardust, found guilty in May of failing to report an oil spill to a pollution prevention officer in Nanaimo.

In Smith's testimony for the defence he said workers at Yarrows Shipyards in Esquimalt pumped more than 100 tons of oil out of the Stardust tank while it was in drydock.

Inmate Admits Bank Robbery

Jon Donald McDermott, 30, the man who said he staged seven bank holdups so he could go to prison and write a book leading to prison reform, was sentenced to 12 years in prison for six of those holdups when he appeared in court April 16, 1970.

But the seventh armed robbery charge was worded incorrectly, Judge William Ostler ruled in 1970. The charge said McDermott had robbed a Calgary bank, but Ostler ruled the charge must say the man robbed a specific person in the bank.

McDermott appeared in court Wednesday to plead guilty to the re-worded charge.

McDermott's statement's in court three years ago — that he wanted to write a book about prison — led to police questions about a possible conspiracy.

McDermott cleared up the matter by saying he was the only man involved in the seven bank holdups committed between Jan. 5 and March 31, 1970.

The Calgary bank was robbed of more than $5,000 March 9, 1970, when McDermott, carrying a handgun, demanded that a woman teller empty all the money in the till into an attache case.

McDermott told the judge Wednesday he had served 40 months of his sentence and that his prison record was excellent."

He said he had been out on work passes for 180 days and that he had been teaching school. McDermott, eligible for parole in April, 1974, wants to be allowed to go to university in January, 1974.

Ostler said he was concerned that if a 12 year concurrent sentence for the Calgary holdup was imposed now, it might hurt McDermott's chances for parole.

The judge remanded him until Aug. 1 so a pre-sentence report could be prepared.

VOICEPRINT ONLY EVIDENCE

SAN RAFAEL, Calif. (Reuter) — A 23-year-old telephone company employee went on trial Wednesday accused of threatening to blow up a company installation. The only evidence against him is his voice.

Law-enforcement officials are attempting for the first time to persuade a California court to accept as evidence a voiceprint.

Last year, when a bomb threat was made against Pacific Telephone Co. on a number normally only used by phone installers, the call was routinely recorded.

The telephone company demanded voice samples from employees. Steven Chapter, a company installer, refused to provide one, saying it was an invasion of his privacy and civil rights.

The phone company, however, recorded his voice without his knowledge. It was a perfect match, says Lieut. Ernest Nash of the Michigan state police.

Dr. Oscar Tosi, professor of audiology at Michigan State University, maintains that the voiceprint technique is as reliable as fingerprints.

Witch Doctors Vie in Sports

NAIROBI, Kenya (AP) — If soccer teams in Kenya are going bad, they don't fire the manager. They switch witch doctors.

North American athletes are known to try many things while in a slump. They might change their food habits, their clothing or even their wives.

But African athletes are one-up on the North American variety. They not only believe in magic, they practise it.

In fact, witchcraft has become a major problem for African soccer. The Football Association of Kenya, in a move which should have as much success as the outlawing of the spitball in baseball, issued another ultimatum forbidding players' spells and charms.

Batters say there's still illegal substances on their baseballs while, in Kenya, spells and chants remain in the air.

GOO DFOR BUSINESS

Shariff Omar Abukar, a Nairobi witch doctor, claims he's been consulted by 90 per cent of the city's teams. Players tell him they see two balls instead of one or snakes rather than the ball.

Abukar relieves his clients' anxieties by casting spells on rival witch doctors employed by other teams or even opposing players. Some players say that witch doctors have been known to sprinkle chicken blood or human ashes on members of rival clubs.

Witchcraft has become big business, too. One Kenyan team is reported to have spent $3,080, one-third its annual budget, to procure favorable witchcraft.

And when two opposing witch doctors match strategies, anything can happen. A first-division game between two Tanzanian teams in Dar es Salaam was delayed 45 minutes because each club feared the other had hexed the ball. The referee finally settled the matter by carrying the ball onto the field with both team captains holding on to it.

Nairobi's Black Mamba team, trailing 5-0 at the half to the Western Stars of Mombasa , refused to leave the locker room, claiming the ball was cursed. The referee put a new ball inplay and Naiherebi held Mombasa even the rest of the way.

Off the field, witchcraft has also reared its head. A visiting team never reveals its arrival date for fear the home team would put a curse on its hotel rooms. And lineups are top secret until game time, so no player could be targeted for a hex.

EFFORTS CONTINUE

Some league officials dispute the impact of superstition, citing better education for its reduction. However, periodic efforts to ban witchcraft have failed .

And a recent incident during an Abaluhya-Hakati game in Nairobi's City Stadium speaks for itself. An Abaluhya player felt that there was more than just a goalkeeper keeping him from scoring. He scooped up an object and ran off the field with the Hakuti players in pursuit.

The game was called as fighting broke out. The disputed object was just a goalkeeper's cap, claimed Hakati, but officials found sewn inside the cap a needle, a coin and bits of animal skin, horn, herbs, leaves and roots.

Each team was fined $28 while two players also received fines.

"It's not easy to detect what extraordinary things players take onto the field," said the Nairobi Football Association's secretary, Bartholomew Ogotu. "But we are going to be tough with teams found guilty of witchcraft practices.' '

"It's known all over the world for soccer players, rally drivers and boxers to carry mascots. My club knows of no charms, nor do we believe in any," Omala said. "If Ogotu believes in charms, it's up to him."

Maybe it's all in their heads. But, then, isn't that what hexes and curses are all about?

Port Alberni Mill Remains Closed

PORT ALBERNI — MacMillan Bloedel's pulp and newsprint mill remained closed for the seventh day with no talks scheduled today between two striking unions and the company.

On strike since Tuesday afternoon are 58 members of the International Brotherhood of Electrical Workers, Local 2354, and 60 members of the Office and Technical Employees Union, Local 15.

The mill was closed last Friday by an unauthorized walkout of 1,100 members of the United Paperworkers International Union in protest of a proposed new contract, which was accepted Tuesday by an over-all vote of 57 per cent of UPIU members at 11 B.C. mills. The Port Alberni workers, however, voted against the contract.

Bill Swanson, business agent for the office workers, said his union wants a wage increase of 12 per cent across the board in a one-year contract and a minimum monthly increase of $75.

He said the company has offered raises averaging 7.8 per cent in the first year and 8.5 per cent in the second year.

The electricians are seeking a bonus for those with tradesmen's tickets, pay based on length of service and clarification of the relationship between working foremen and lead hands.

FAMILY INCOME $10,113 IN '71

OTTAWA (CP) — The average family income rose 16 per cent between 1969 and 1971, Statistics Canada reported Wednesday.

However, rising prices in that period ate up about seven per cent of the increase.

The average income in 1971, was $10,113 compared with $8,732 in 1969.

The statistics bureau's figures show that average income of persons not in families increased by about eight per cent to $3,877 in 1971, from $3,584 in 1969, with a low of $2,296 in Newfoundland to a high of $4,280 in Ontario.

The highest average family income in the same year was $11,154 in Ontario, compared with a low of $6,669 in Prince Edward Island.

The survey indicated that 14 per cent of families had an income in the $12,000 to $14,999 range. This was the largest single income group.

Another 13.8 per cent had incomes in the $10,000 to $11,999 range. A further 13.2 per cent had incomes of between $15,000 and $16,999.

Only 2.7 per cent of families had an income in excess of $25,000, while 2.4 per cent had an income of less than $1,000.

WORDS WON'T HELP $: FRENCH

Times News Services

LONDON — The U.S. dollar today floundered downward again on world money markets when there was no sign that government banks were intervening to prop it up.

"The Americans are trying to talk the dollar up rather than pull it up," said a bank official in Paris.

The dollar dropped to 4.0825 francs on the Paris market from its overnight price of 4.17 francs. It slipped to 36.325 Belgian francs in Brussels, to 2.8425 Swiss francs in Zurich — all lower than Wednesday night's closing prices.

Only in Frankfurt, where rumors persisted that government banks were propping it up, did the dollar show some early gains.

"If no support comes soon for the dollar, I expect it to fall back quite a bit," said a London foreign exchange dealer.

In Washington, world monetary experts met again today for talks on reforming the international money system, hopeful of a compromise on how countries should reduce unacceptable balance-of-payments surpluses or deficts.

The experts, members of the Committee of 20—a technical organization charged by the International Monetary Fund with designing a viable blueprint for reform—saw several senior U.S. financial advisers Wednesday urging the need for a compromise formula.

In Europe, the price of gold rose as the dollar dropped. In other commodities, copper skyrocketed $145.60 per metric ton, breaking a 1968 record price to reach $2,114 per ton. Tin made a comparable leap Wednesday.

B.C. Fishermen Reject Offer

Union fishermen along the British Columbia coast have voted to reject the latest offer on salmon prices and the strike continues, it was announced this afternoon.

A joint statement by the United Fishermen and Allied Workers Union and the Native Brotherhood of B.C. said the price offer, described by the Fisheries Association of B.C. as "final," was rejected by 58.3 per cent.

The two groups met the fisheries association, bargaining agent for the companies, at midday and told the association "there would have to be further progress on prices, the salmon welfare fund and coverage under the Workmen's Compensation Act."

A statement by the UFAWU and Native Brotherhood said the joint negotiating committee "indicated it was prepared to revise earlier demands quite considerably but would not recommend any settlement unless there were improvements beyond the last offer."

The statement said meetings are continuing.

Also slated to meet today are the UFAWU shoreworkers negotiating committee, on behalf of 3,000 plant workers, and the fisheries association.

A meeting between the 500-member tendermen's section of the UFAWU and the association was being arranged.

British Columbia so far has lost about 300,000 sockeye salmon to the Americans as a result of the fishing industry strike, regional Fisheries Director Rod Hourston said Wednesday.

Hourston computed the value at about $750,000 and warned B.C. will lose more if the strike continues.

Under a Canada-U.S. agreement administered by the International Pacific Salmon Fisheries Commission, the two countries split the Fraser River salmon catch 50-50. But the split is void during a strike.

"The loss up to now could be at least 300,000," Hourston said. "Those 300,000 are sockeye we lost and the Americans got and aren't part of the (agreement) division."

The price of the fish under the latest management offer is about 50 cents a pound and an average fish weighs about five pounds, yielding approximately $2.50 for each sockeye, he said.

Meanwhile, about 60 trollers, commanded by Indian fishermen from the Barkley and Clayoquot Sound regions on the west coast of Vancouver Island, sailed this morning, after forming a new fishing association.

They joined the Pacific Trollers Association in returning to the fishing grounds in defiance of a strike called by the UFAWU. They plan to sell their catches to Washington State ports.

SHOCK KILLS BOYS

Two Chemainus youths were electrocuted Wednesday when they apparently touched a B.C. Hydro power line carrying 138,000 volts.

RCMP said Barry James Cocks and Paul William Livingston, both 17, climbed a steel pylon tower on a B.C. Hydro right-of-way about 200 yards west of the Georgia turbine station at Bare Point.

At the top of the tower they apparently touched a 138,000-volt line which supplies auxiliary power to all of Vancouver Island, causing a split-second power shortage over the entire island.

The operator at the generating station noticed a "bump on the line" at 10:18 p.m. but had no idea what caused it.

Shortly after the bump RCMP were notified of the deaths by other youths who had gathered in the area. Police are in the process of taking statements today from people who witnessed the accident.

"The area is a favorite hang-out for kids," a police spokesman said. Wednesday's incident was the first of its kind on Vancouver Island.

A B.C. Hydro spokesman said there have been occasional instances of people trying to climb these things; "they're difficult to climb."

Duncan coroner T. H. Lines has not yet decided whether to hold an inquiry or an inquest.

Humanity Hangs In Balance

By JACK SCOTT, Times Staff

(Fifth of a six-part series)

TOKYO — The first surprising thing you learn about the man who runs the largest and most troubled city on earth, a city of some 12 million people with every problem known to urban man, is that he has yet to develop an ulcer.

I was sure that it would go naturally with the job and it was the first question I put to him in this rarely-granted interview.

"Nobody's ever asked me that before," he laughed. "The fact is that I've been blessed with a strong stomach that seems to have been designed for the job. I eat anything going and I'm always hungry. But my real secret is this: I leave my troubles in the office.

"If you have gained the impression that this is not only the largest city on earth, but the one with the most difficulties for the present and future, you are absolutely right. Our problems are truly staggering as you'll find when you talk to our planners. I've discovered that the only way to survive is to escape by leaving them behind in my office when the day is done. Then I go home and forget them until the next day comes."

A tall, slim, balding man, impeccable in British-styled tweeds in contrast to the blue-suit uniform of every other Japanese executive I've met, this onetime economics professor has occupied Tokyo's hot seat, ulcer free, for six years.

His humanity-congealed domain includes 26 cities, 23 suburban wards, six towns, nine villages and a cluster of islands, a total land area of some 800 square miles. The last census put the population at 11,580,000, but the movement into the city is so constant that now it's anybody's guess.

Like mayors or regional heads everywhere, Governor Minobe puts the blame for the city's agonies on a meagre budget caused by the underfinancing of the central government.

He's no friend of the business-oriented, rightest coalition that's ruled Japan for 25 years. While he disclaims any political affiliation, himself, his support comes mainly from the uncomfortable, but effective, alliance of socialists and communists.

"The over-all problem here in Tokyo is an ecological chaos," the Governor told me, "but the crisis is the indifference of a government that cares only for economic growth. They think only of the Gross National Product. They're saying now — oh, so proudly — that the GNP per livable square mile is 15 times that of the United States. If it goes up 10 per cent a year — and it always does—that's enough to satisfy them. The future of their capital city does not concern them. You will see here the very worst evidence of what happens when capitalism runs amok."

When I asked if industrial pollution was his severest problem, the governor walked across to the windows of his beautiful, all-grey reception room and gazed upon his enormous city. You could have sliced and packaged the smog that lay in the concrete canyons of Tokyo that morning.

"The environmental pollution here is a combination of many things all lumped together," he said, turning from the horrendous view. "Industrial pollution is simply one of them, but the lack of decent or reasonably-priced housing, the traffic congestion, the rising prices, the problems of the aged, the very quality and pace of life are all forms of pollution that the government will not recognize.

"In Tokyo, for example," he went on, "the automobile is our worst enemy. It is the main cause of our smog. It

HERE COMES SNIFFERBUG

By BRIAN BUTTERS

Times Staff

It hates air pollution so much that it is planning to rumble around the province for the next six months, nosing up bad smells wherever they exist.

"Snifferbug" is a new $75,000 mobile air quality laboratory put into service today by the Pollution Control Branch of the B.C. Water Resources Service.

It is housed in a 31-foot-long bus loaded with scientific measuring instruments, designed to monitor air quality continuously 24 hours a day whether its crew is present or not.

The apparatus is fully automated and air-conditioned and prints out measurements of air quality on a teletype console and punches out a paper tape which is fed directly into the provincial data centre in Victoria.

"Snifferbug" doesn't miss much in the way of air pollution, either. It is programmed to detect and measure almost any contaminant which could come from industrial processes, including: sulphur dioxide, hydrogen sulphide, carbon monoxide, oxidants, hydro-carbons, particulate matter and oxides of nitrogen.

The Pollution Control Branch says it intends to use "snifferbug" to monitor effects of industrial air pollution on air quality in surrounding neighborhoods. In this regard, the nosey vehicle will be co-operating with about 100 fixed air monitoring stations scattered throughout the province.

First stop on the trail of bad smells is to be a six-month junket to Prince George, Kamloops, Trail and Victoria with stays of one or two months in each place.

ASPER CUT OUT BY FINAL VOTE

WINNIPEG (CP) — Returning officer Jim Maloway cast the deciding ballot in deadlocked Wolseley constituency Wednesday and declared NDP candidate Murdoch MacKay the winner over Liberal leader Izzy Asper. Asper's executive assistant, Peter Liba, immediately announced a judicial recount would be requested.

Pending the recount, standing after the Manitoba general election June 28 is NDP 32, Conservatives 21 and Liberals four.

Vancouver IAM Out

Facts Hidden, Says Senator

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Nixon administration was accused today of making false statements about the proposed Alaska oil pipeline and withholding information that would promote development of an alternative route through Canada.

Senator Birch Bayh (Dem. Ind.) said in the Senate it is "common knowledge" that the administration has given its allegiance to the oil companies that want to build the pipeline across Alaska.

Bayh cited the state department's recent letters to members of Congress that said "the Canadian government has no strong current interest in the construction of a Mackenzie Valley pipeline."

He said the state department "did not inform Congress of the existence of those questions and answers.

telligence gathering must be rather poor since Canadian Prime Minister Trudeau said on the floor of the Parliament on May 14, 'Our policy is still to indicate that the Mackenzie route is one which we would be prepared to consider if there is an application made in the proper form, and that we would be very happy to follow-up on that,' " Bayh said.

The senator also said the state department sought to withhold information "from the Canadian government to questions state had asked relative to the possibility of a Mackenzie Valley oil pipeline."

He said the state department "did not inform Congress of the existence of those questions and answers.

TRUDEAU A LIAR —SNUBBED MP

OTTAWA (CP) — Jack Horner (PC-Crowfoot) accused Prime Minister Trudeau of telling "a downright lie" in the Commons Wednesday and managed, temporarily at least, to get away with it.

The cause of it all was a dinner the government held for the Queen at the Palliser Hotel in Calgary June 5 during her 11-day visit to Canada.

Douglas Roche (PC-Edmonton Strathcona) raised the subject by complaining that the government failed to invite a number of Alberta MPs in order to make room for defeated Liberal candidates.

The complaint was echoed later by Ken Hurlburt (PC-Lethbridge) and Horner got into the act when Trudeau rose to reply.

The prime minister said "a sincere attempt" was made to invite a cross-section of people representing all political parties.

"That's a downright lie!" Horner shouted.

I don't think the prime minister should be allowed to make statements that are totally false," he said later in an interview.

Roche, who spoke at the start of the House sitting, said he was told by the prime minister's office before the Calgary dinner that only "the four Calgary" MPs were being invited.

Defeated Liberal candidates from as far away as Winnipeg were invited, he said.

Roche said those attending included Hu Harries, a Liberal MP he defeated in the 1968 election. He called this a deplorable partisan abuse of MPs' rights.

Gov't Leasing Land

Nicolson said three areas being considered for such development include about 1,700 acres of the University of B.C. endowment lands, 200 acres of provincial land on Burnaby Mountain and some of the 650 acres of the Blair Rifle Range in the district of North Vancouver which is owned jointly by federal and provincial governments.

The minister said he believes the prohibitive price of land is the main reason for the current high cost of housing in Greater Vancouver and said he plans to make use of government programs and legislation to influence the market and force prices down.

The government intends to lease land below market values with adequate restraints to prevent speculation, he said.

Times News Services

PAPEETE, Tahiti — Armed guards were placed on all French commercial planes flying to or from Papeete today as a precaution against hijacking as the first nuclear explosion in France's 1973 test series became imminent.

All airline passengers and their baggage were closely searched at the airport since officials feared nuclear-test opponents might attempt to divert a plane into the test zone.

A Probe Into the Mind of Mitchell

By JULES WITCOVER

The Washington Post

WASHINGTON — It was about 4:50 p.m. Wednesday and the former attorney-general of the United States, John Mitchell, was just completing nearly 10 hours of testimony before the senate Watergate committee.

It had started out as an effort to extract from him all he knew about the Watergate break-in and related "White House horrors," as Mitchell himself had dubbed the assorted other illegalities.

But, finally, it had become an inquiry into another question.

What manner of man is it who can serve as the chief law-enforcement officer of the nation and remain silent when he knows crimes are being proposed, and in fact have been carried out, under White House auspices?

On Tuesday, Sen. Herman Talmadge (D—Ga.) had begun the line of questioning in asking why Mitchell had never told the president that he knew during the 1972 campaign that, for example, a White House burglary team had broken into the office of Dr. Daniel Ellsberg's psychiatrist.

Earlier Wednesday, Sens. Daniel Inouye (D—Hawaii), Sam Ervin (D—N.C.) and Howard Baker (R—Tenn.) had pressed him on the point.

But all three succeeded only in eliciting the same response from Mitchell — that he kept his mouth shut so as not to jeopardize President Nixon's re-election.

Now, in late afternoon, the final questioner of the day was Mitchell's fellow Republican, Sen. Lowell Weicker of Connecticut. Weicker had methodically gone over the circumstances under which Mitchell said he was told of "the White House horrors" and then started bearing down on the same old question: Why hadn't he done something to see that justice was done?

He had been, after all, not just any American citizen, Weicker reminded Mitchell, who had become increasingly gloomy as he sat in the witness chair. Mitchell had been attorney general, said Weicker, and Mitchell still was a lawyer and as such "an officer of the court" pledged to uphold the law.

Weicker: Did you bring the Ellsberg break-in to anyone's attention?

Weicker: As an officer of the court, as a former attorney general, you were content to remain silent . . . even though you knew that your silence might possibly convict an American citizen (Ellsberg) by means of illegal conduct . . .
